The Iſraelites gathered them together, and came to Maſpha before Jeruſalem: for in Maſpha was ꝑ place * were they prayed afore tyme. So they faſted that daye, and put ſack clothes vpon them, caſt aſhes vpon theyr heades, rente theyr clothes, and layde forth the bokes of the lawe (wherout the Heythen ſought the lykneſſe of theyr ymages) and brought the prieſtes ornamentes, the firſtlynges and the Tythes. They ſet there alſo the * abſteyners (which had fulfylled theyr dayes) before God, and cryed with loude voyce towarde heauen, ſaynge: what ſhall we do with theſe? and whyther ſhall we cary them awaye? 1.Reg.7.b

For thy Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled, thy prieſtes are come to heuynelle and diſhonoure: and beholde, the Heythen are come together for to deſtroye vs. Thou knowelt what thinges they ymagen agaynſt vs. How maye we ſtonde before them, except thou (o God) be oure helper. G

They blewe out the trompettes alſo with a loude voyce. Then Judas ordened * captaynes ouer the people: ouer thouſandes ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ti. But as for ſuch as buylded them houſes, maried wyues, and planted them vynyardes, and thoſe that were fearfull: he cōmaunded them euery man to go home, & acordynge to the lawe. The.iiii.Chapter.

Josephus vbi supra.

THen toke Gorgias fyue thousande men of fote, and a thousande of the best horsmen: and remoued by nyght, to come vpe where ỹ Jewes hoost laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the conueyers of the. Then arose Judas to smyte the chefe and pryncipall of the kynges hoost at Emmaus for the army was not yet come together, In ỹ meane season came Gorgias by night in to Judas tentes: & when he founde no man there, he sought them in the mountaynes, & thought they had bene fled awaye because of hym. But when it was daye, Judas shewed himself in the felde with thre thousande me onely, which had nother harnesse nor sweardes to theyr myndes.

But on the other syde, they sawe that the Heythen were mightie and wel harnessed, and their horsmen aboute them, and all these well experte in feates of warre. Then sayde Judas to the me that were with him: Deu. 20, 8 * Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayed of theyr violente runnynge: remẽbre how oure fathers were delyuered * in Exo. 14. f. the reed see, when Pharao threatned them 1. Mac. 9 c with a greate hoost.* Euen so let vs also crye now towarde heauen: and the LORDE shall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of oure fathers, yee and destroye this hoost before oure face this daye: And all Heythen shall knowe, that it is God hymselfe, whiche delyuereth and saueth Israel.

Then the Heythen lyft vp their eyes: and when they sawe that they were commynge agaynst them, they were out of their tentes in to the battayll: and they that were 1. Mac. 3 d wyth Judas, blewe vp the trompettes.* So they hukled together, and the Heythen were discomfyted, and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hynmost of them were slayne. Forther followed vpon them vnto Azare, moth, and in to the feldes of Idumea toward Azot and Jamnia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne with his hoost, and sayde vnto the people: Be not greedy at the spoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fyght: for Gorgias and hys hoost are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stonde ye fast agaynst oure enemyes, and ouercome the: then maye ye sekely take the spoyles.

As Judas was speakynge these wordes, there apeared one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gorgias sawe that they of his partie were fled, and the tentes brent vp (for by the smoke they might vnderstonde what was done) they perceaupnge this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also that Judas and his hoost were in ỹ felde ready to stryke battayll, they fled euerychone in to the londe of the Heithen.

So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gat much golde and syluer, precious stones, purple & greate riches Thus they wente home, & sunge a Psalme of thankesgeuynge and prayse God in heauen: * for he is gracious, & his mercy endureth for euer: And so Israel had a greate victory in that daye. Jere. Psal. 117. 118.

Now all the Heythen that escaped, came and tolde Lysias euerythinge as it happened. Wherfore Lysias was sore afrayed & greued in his mynde, because Israel had not gotte such mysfortune as he wolde they shulde, nether as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folo wynge, gathered Lysias thre score thousande chosen men of fote and fyue thousande horsmen, to fyght agaynst them.

So they came in to Jewry, and pitched their tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynst them with ten thousande men. And whe he sawe so greate & myghtye an hoost, he made his prayer and sayde: Blessed be thou (o saueoure of Israel) * which 1. Mac. diddest destroye ỹ violent power of ỹ giaunte, in the honde of thy seruaunt Dauid * & 1. Sa. gauest the hoost of the Heithē in to ỹ honde of Jonathas (the sonne of Saul) and of his weapenbearer.

Put this hoost now in to the honde of thy people of Israel, and let them be confunded in their multitude and horsmen. Make them afrayed, & discomforte the boldnes of their strength, ỹ they maye be moued therow their destruccion. Cast the downe therow the sweardes of thy louers, then shall all they that knowe thy name, praise the wyth thankesgeuynge.

So they stroke ỹ battayll, and there were slayne of Lysias hoost, fyue thousande men. Then Lysias seynge the discomfeynge of hys men, and the manlynesse of the Jewes, howthey were ready, ether to lyue or to dye like men, he wente vnto Antioche and chose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they myght come agayn ne to Jewry. Then sayde Judas and his brethren: behoulde, oure enemies are discomfited: Let vs now go vp, to clense and to repayre the Sanctuary.

* Vpon this, all the hoost gathered them together, and wente vp vnto mount Syon.
And whē they sawe the Sanctuary layed waste, the aulter defyled, the dores brent vp,
the shrubbes growinge in the courtes, lyke as in a wood or vpon moūtaynes, yee and that the prestes Celles were broken downe:
they rente theyr clothes, made greate lamē tacion, cast asshes vpon theyr heades, fell downe flat to the grounde, made a greate noyse with the trompettes, and cried toward heauen.

Then Judas appoynted certayne men to fight agaynst those whiche were in the castell, vntil they had clensed the Sanctuary.
So he chose prestes that were vndefyled, suche as had pleasure in the lawe of God: &
they clensed the Sanctuary, and bare out ỹ defyled stones in to an vncleane place. And in so much as the aulter of burnofferinges was vnhalowed, he toke aduysement, what he myght do wythall: so he thought it was best to destroye it (lest it shulde happen to to them ony shame) for the Heythen had defyled it, and therfore they brake it downe.
As ỹ stones, they layed them vp vpon
the mountayne by the house in a conuenient place, vntil there cam a prophet to shew, what shulde be done with them.

* So they toke whole stones accordynge to the lawe, and buylded a new aulter such one as was before, and made vp the Sanc tuary within and without, and halowed ỹ courtes. They made new ornamentes, and brought the candelsticke, the aulter of incē se, and the table in to the temple. The incē se burned they vpon the aulter, and lighted the lampes whiche were vpon the candel-sticke, that they might burne in the temple.
They set the shewbread vpon the table, and hanged vp the vale, and set vp the temple, as it was afore. * And vpon the .xxv. daye of the .ix. moneth (which is called the mo-neth Casleu) in the .C.xlviii. yeare: they rose vp by tymes in the mornynge for to do sacrifice (accordynge to the lawe) vpon the new burnofferynge aulter, that they had made after the tyme and season that ỹ Hey-then had defyled it. The same daye was it set vp agayne, with songes, pipes, harpes, & cymbales.

And all the people fell vpon their faces, worshyppinge and thankynge the God of heauen, which had geuen them the victory,
* So they kepte the dedicacion of ỹ aulter viii. dayes, offerynge burnt sacrifices and thankoffringes with gladnesse. They deckt the temple also with crownes and shyldes of golde, and halowed the portes and celles, and hanged dores vpon them. Thus was there very greate gladnes amonge the people, because the blasphemy of the Hey-then was put awaye. 2 Ma.7.b

So Judas and hys brethren with the whole congregacion of Israel, ordened,
* ỹ the tyme of the dedicacion of the aulter shulde be kept in his season from yeare to yeare, by the space of .viii. dayes, from the
xxv. daye of the moneth * Casleu: yee and ỹ with myrth and gladnesse. Ioh.10.a Nouēber

And at the same tyme buylded they vp ỹ mount Sion with hye walles and stronge towres roūde aboute: lest the Gētiles shulde come and treade it downe, as they dyd afore. * Therfore Judas set mē of warre in it, to kepe it: and made it stronge, for to defende. * Bethsura: that the people myght 1 Ma.6.d

IT happened also that when ỹ A olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroye the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: In so much that they begāne to slaye and to persecute certayne of the people.

* Then Judas fought agaynst the childrē Ex.15.f of Esau in Idumea, & agaynst those whiche and.35.a were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde 2.Ma.10.f aboute the Israelites) where he slewe and spoyled a greate multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malice and vnfayth-fulnes of the children of Bean, how they were a snare and stoppe vnto the people, & how they layed wayte for them in the hye waye, wherfore he shut thē vp in to towers, and came vnto them, condemned them, and brent vp theyr towres, with all that were in them.

Afterwarde wente he agaynst the childrē of Ammon, wherof he founde a mightie po wer and a greate multitude of people, with Timothe their captayne. So he stroke ma ny battayls with them, which were destroyed before him. And when he had slayne thē

he wanne Gazer the cite, with the townes belonginge thetto, and so turned agayne in to Jewry. The Heythen also in Galaad gathered them togeather, agaynst the Israelites that were in their quarters, to slaye the: but they fled to the castell of Datheman, & B sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren sayenge: The Heythe are gathered agaynst vs on euery syde, to destroye vs, and now they make them for to come and laye sege to the castell, whervnto we are fled, and Tymothe is the captayne of their hoost: come therfore and delyuer vs out of their handes for there is a greate multitude of vs slayne all ready. yee and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne and destroyed (wel nye a thousande men) and their wyues, their children and their goodes haue the enemyes led awaye captyue.

Whyle these letters were yet a readinge, beholde, there came other messangers from Galile, with rente clothes: which tolde vnto the same tydinges, and sayde, that they of Ptolomais, of Tirus and Sydon were gathered agaynst them, and that all Galile was fylled with enemyes to destroye Israel. * When Judas and the people herde 2.Mac.8.c this, they came together (a greate congregacion) to deuyse, what they might do for their brethren, that were in trouble and besieged of their enemies. And Judas sayde vnto Symon his brother: chose the out certayne men, and go delyuer thy brethren in Galile. As for me and my brother Jonathas, we wil go in to Galaadithym. So he left Josephus the sonne of Zachary, and Azarias, to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remnaunt of the hoost in Jewry, and commaunded them, sayenge: Take the ouer syght of this people, and se that ye make no warre agaynst the Heythen, vntill the tyme that we come agayne. And vnto Symon he gaue three thousande men for to go in to Galile, but Judas himself had eight thousande in to Galaaditihym.

C Then wente Symon in to Galile, and stroke dyuerse battels vp the Heythe: whom he discomfited, and followed vpon them vnto the porte of Ptolomais. And there were slayne of the Heythe almoost iii. thousande men. So he tooke the spoyles of them, & caried awaye the Israelites (that were in Galile and Arbatis) with their wyues, their children and all that they had, and brought them in to Jewry with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas, went ouer Jordane, & trauayled iii. dayes iourney in the wyldernesse: Where Nebuthees met them, and receaued them in vyngly, and tolde the euerythinge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaaditihym, and how that many of them were besieged in Barsa, Bosor, Alimus, Casphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all these are strange walled and mighty greate cytes) and that they were kepte in other cities of Galaad also: & tomorow they are appoynted to bringe their hoost vnto their cities, to take them and to wynne them in one dayt.

So Judas and his hoost turned in al the haist in the wildernesse towarde Bosor, and wanne the cyte, slewe all the males with the swearde toke all their goodes, and set fyre vpon the cyte. And in the night they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the castell. And by tymes in the morninge when they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearyng ladders and other instrumentes of warre, to take the castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayll begame, and that the noyse therof went vp and ranne in to the heauen, and that there was so greate a crie in the cyte: he sayde vnto hys hoost: fyght this daye for your brethren. And so came behynde their enemyes in three companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Timothes hoost perceaued that Machabeus was there, they fled from hym, and the other slewe them downe right sore: so that there were kylled of the that same daye, almoost eight thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Malpha, layed sege vnto it and wanne it, slew all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fyre vpon it. For thence wente he and toke Calbon, Mageth, Bosor and the other cities in Galaad.

* After this gathered Timothe another D hoost, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas sent to spye the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayenge: All the Heythen that beryd̄e aboute vs, are gathered vnto hym, and the hoost is very greate: yee they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe them, & haue pitched their tentes beyonde the water, and are redy to come & fight agaynst the. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Timothe sayde vnto the captaynes of his hoost: when Judas and his hoost come nye the ryuer, yf he go ouer first, we shal

not be able to wythstonde hym: for why, he wyll be to stronge for vs, But yf he darre not come ouer, so that he pitch hys tente beyonde the water: then wyll we go ouer, for he shall be stronge ynough agaynst hym. And as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appoynted certayne scrybes of the people and commaunded them, sayenge: se that ye leaue none behynde vpon thys syde of the ryuer, but let euery man come to the batayll. So he wente fyrst ouer vnto them, and all the people after hym.

And all the heythen were dyscomfyted before hym, and let theyr weapens fall, and ranne to the temple that was at Carnaim. Which cyte Judas wanne, and brent the temple with al that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and myght not wythstonde Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Israelites that were in Galaadythym, from the leest vnto the moost, with theyr wyues, and chyldren (a very greate hoost) for to come in to the londe of Juda.

* So they came vnto Ephron, which was a myghtye, greate and strong cyte, and lay in theyr waye. For they couldе not go by, nother of the ryght honde nor of the lyfte, but must go thorow it. Neuertheless they that were in the cite, wolde not let them entre, but walled vp the portes with stones. And Judas sent vnto them with peaceable wordes, sayeng: * Let vs passe thorow your londe, for we maye go in to oure owne londe: there shall no body do you harme, we will but onely go thorow. But they wolde not let them in.

And Judas besieged the cyte all that daye and all that nyght, and so wanne it: where by slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the cite, and spoyled it, and wente thorow all the cyte ouer them that were slayne. Then wente they ouer Jordane in to the playne felde before Bethsan. And Judas gathered those forwarde that came behynde, and gaue the people good exortacyon al the waye thorow, tyll they were come in to the londe of Juda. Thus they wente vp vnto the mount Syon, where they offred with myrth and * thankesgeuynge: because there were none of them slayne, but came home again peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas, and Jonathas were in the londe of Galaad, and Symon theyr brother in Galyle before Ptolomays: Then Josephus the sonne of Zachary, and Azarias the captaynes, hearynge of the actes that were done, and of the battels that were stryken, sayde: Let vs get vs a name also, and go fyght agaynst the heythen, that are rounde about vs.

So they gaue theyr hoost a commaundement, and wente towarde Jamnia. Then came Gorgias, and hys men out of the cyte, to fyght agaynst them: Josephus also and Azarias were chased vnto the borders of Jewry, and there were slayne that daye of the people of Israel.ii.M. men: so that there was a greate mysery amonge the people, * and all because they were not obedyent vnto Judas and hys brethre, but thought they shuld quyte them selues manfully. Neuertheles they came not of the sede of these men, by whom Israel was holpen. But the men that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the syght of all Israel, and all heythen, where so euer theyr name was herde vpon and the people came vnto them byddynge them welcome.

After thys wente Judas forth with hys brethren, and fought agaynst the chyldren of Esau, in the londe that lyeth towarde the south where he wanne the cyte of Hebron, and the townes that lye beside it: and as for the walles and towres rounde about it, he brent them vp. Then remoued he to go in to the londe of the Philistynes, and wente thorow Samaria. At the same tyme were there many prestes slayne in the battayll, which wylfully, and without aduysement wente out for to fyght to get them honoure. And when Judas came to Azot in the Philistynes londe, * he brake downe theyr altares, brent the ymages of theyr Idols, spoyled the cytyes, and came agayne in to the londe of Juda.

The.vi.Chapter.

NOw * when kynge Antiochus trauayled thorow the hygher coostes, he herde that Elymas in Perisa was a noble and plenteous cyte in syluer and golde, and that there was in it a very ryche temple where as where clothes, cote amoures, and shyldes of golde, which Alexander the sonne of Philyppe kynge of Macedonya had left behynde hym. Wherfore he went about to take the cyte, and to spoyle it, but he was not able: for the cytyzens were were warned of it, and fought with hym. And so he fled, and departed wyth greate heuynesse, and came agayne into Babylon Moreouer ther came one which brought him tydynges in Perisyde, * that hys hoostes which were in the londe of Juda, were dryuen awaye, and how that Lysyas wēte forth fyrst with a greate power, and was dryuen awaye of the Jewes: how they had wonne the victory, and gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes that perished: how they had broken downe ꝑ abhominacyon, * which he set vp vpon the altare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sanctuary with hye walles, lyke as it was afore: yee and Bethsura hys cyte also.

B So it chaunched, that when the kynge had herde these wordes, he was afrayed, and greued very sore. Wherfore he layed hym downe vpon hys bed, and fell sycke for very sorowe: and al because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there contynued he longe, for hys grefe was euer more and more, so ꝑ he sawe he must nedes dye. Therfore he sent for hys frendes, and sayde vnto the: the slepe is gone fro myne eyes, for ꝑ very sorowe and vexacion of harte that I haue. For when I consyder in my mynde the greate aduersyte that I am come vnto, and the floudes of heuynesse which I am in, where as afore tyme I was so merry, and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Agayne, consyderynge the euell that I haue done at Jerusalem, from whence I toke all the ryches of golde and syluer that were in it, and sent to fetch awaye the inhabytours of Jewry wythout eny reason, why: I knowe, that these troubles are come vpon me for the same cause. And beholde, I must dye wyth greate sorow in a straunge londe,

Then called he for one Philyppe a frende of hys, whom he made ruler of all hys realme, and gaue hym the crowne, hys robe and hys rynge: that he shulde take hys sone Antiochus vnto hym and bryng him vp, tyll he myght raygne hymself. * So the kynge Antiochus dyed there in the. C.xlix. yeare. When Lysyas knewe that the kynge was dead, he ordened Antiochus hys sone, (* whom he had brought vp) to raygne in hys fathers steade and called hym Eupator. Now they that were in the castell (at Jerusalem) kepte in the Jewes rounde about the Sanctuary, & sought euer styll to do the harme, for the strengthenynge of ꝑ hethē.

Josephus cap.14. lib.12. 1.ma.4 d

Wherfore Judas thought to destroye them, and called al the people together, that they myght laye sege vnto them. So they came together in the. C.l. yeare, and besieged them layenge forth theyr ordinaunce and instrumentes of warre. Then certayn of them that were besieged, wente forth (vnto whom some vngodly men of Israel ioyned them selues also) and wente vnto the kynge, sayenge: How longe wyll it be, or thou punysh and auēge oure brethre? We haue bene euer mynded to do thy father seruyce, to walke in hys statutes, and to obeye hys commaundemētes: Therfore oure people fell from vs and where so euer they founde eny of vs, they slewe them: and they haue not onely medled with vs, but wyth all oure countrees: and beholde, thys daye are they besegynge the castell at Jerusalem, * and haue made vp the stronge holde in Bethsura: And yf thou doest not preuente them ryght soone, they wyll do more then these, and thou shalt not be able to ouercome them.

1.Mac.

* When the kynge herde thys, he was very angrye, and called all hys frendes, the captaynes of hys fote men, and of all hys horsemen together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes, & out of the Iles of the see, which came vnto hym. And the nombre of hys hoost was an hundreth thousande fote men, and twentye thousande horsmen, and .xxxii. Elephantes wel exercysed to battayll. These came thorow Idumea vnto * Bethsura, and besieged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumentes of warre agaynst it. But the Jewes came out, and brent them, and fought lyke men. Then departed Judas from the castel at Jerusalem and remoued the hoost towarde Bethzacaran ouer agaynst the kynges armye.

So the kynge arose before the daye, and brought ꝑ power of his hoost in to ꝑ waye to Bethzacaran, where the hoostes made them to the battayll, blowynge the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fyght they shewed them the sappe of reed grapes and mulberyes. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hoost: so that by euery Elephante there stode a .M. men well harnesed, and helmettes of stele vpon theyr heades: yee vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordened .v.C. horsmen of the best, which wayted of the Elephante, goyng where so euer he wente, and departed not from hym. Euery Elephant was couered wyth a stronge tower of wood, where vpon were xxxii. valeaunt men wyth weapens to fyght and wythin it was a man of Inde to rule the beast.

As for the remnaunt of the hoſtmen, he ſet them vpon both the ſydes in two partes with trompettes, to prouoke the hooſt, and to ſtere vp ſuch as were ſlowe in the armye. And when the Sonne ſhone vpō theyr ſhyldes of golde and ſtele, the mountaynes glyſtred agayne at them, and were as bryght as the creſhettes of fyre. The kynges hooſt alſo was deuided, one parte vpon the highe mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: ſo they went on, takynge good hede, and keppynge theyr ordre. And all they that dwelt in the lande, were afrayed at the noyſe of theyr hooſt, whan them vttytude went forth, and when the weapens ſmote together, for the hooſt was both greate, and myghty. Judas alſo and hys hooſt entred in to the battayll, and ſlewe. vi. C men of the kynges armye.

Now whan Eleaſar the ſonne of Saurydyſe one of the Elephantes deckte with the kynges badge, and was a more goodly beaſt then the other: he thought the kynge ſhuld be vpon hym, and ſoperded hymſelfe to deliuer hys people, and to get hym a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne wyth a corage vnto the Elephante in the myddeſt of the hooſt, ſmytinge them downe of both the ſydes, and ſlewe many aboute hym. So went he to the Elephantes fete, and gat hym vnder hym, and ſlewe hym: then fell the Elephante downe vpon hym, and there he dyed. Judas alſo, and hys men ſeynge the power of the kynge and the myghtye vyolence of hys hooſt, departed from them. And the kynges armye went vp agaynſt them towarde Jeruſalem, and pitched theyr tentes in Jewry beſyde mount Syon. Moreouer the kynge toke truce wyth them, that were in Bethſura.

But when they came out of the cyte (becauſe they had no vytayles wythyn, and the lande laye vntylled) the kynge toke Bethſura, and ſet men to kepe it, and turned hys hooſt to the place of the Sanctuary, and laye ſege to it a greate whyle. Where he made all maner ordynaunce: handbowes, fyrehartes, ratbettes to caſt ſtones, ſcorpyons to ſhute arowes, and ſlynges. The Jewes alſo made ordynaunce agaynſt theyrs, and fought a longe ſeaſon.

But in the cyte, there were no vytayles, for it was the ſeuenth yeare of the warres, and thoſe Heythen that remayned in Jewry had eaten vp all theyr ſtoare. And in the Sanctuary were few men lefte, for the hunger came ſo vpon them, that they were ſcatered abrode euery man to hys owne place.

So when Lyſias herde, that Philyppe *(whom Anthochus the kyng whyle he was yet lyuynge, had ordened to bringe vp Antiochus hys ſonne, that he myght be kynge) was come agayne out of Perſya and Media with the kynges hooſt, and thought to optayne the kyngdome: He gat hym to the kynge in all the hayſt, and to the captaynes of the hooſt, and ſayde: We decreaſe dayly, and oure vytayles are but ſmall: Agayne, the place that we laye lege vnto, is very ſtrōge, and it were oure parte to ſe for the realme. Let vs agre wyth theſe men, and take truce wyth them, and wyth all theyr people and graunte them to lyue after theyr lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued, and do all theſe thynges agaynſt vs, because we haue deſpyſed theyr lawe. So the kynge, and the princes were content, and ſent vnto them to make peace, and they receaued it. 1.ma. 6.b. G

Now when the kynge, and the princes had made an ooth vnto them, they came out of the caſtell, and the kynge went vp to mount Syon. But when he ſawe that the place was well fenced, he brake the ooth that he had made, and commaunded to deſtroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the hayſt, an returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philyppe haupnge dominyon of the cyte. So he fought agaynſt hym, and toke the cyte agayne in to hys hondes.

The. viii. Chapter.

In the. C. li. peare came Demetrius the ſonne of Seleucus from the cyte of Rome, wyth a ſmall company of men, vnto a cyte of the ſee coaſt, and there he bare rule. And it chaunched, that when he came to Antioche the cyte of hys progenytours, hys hooſt toke Antiochus, and Lyſyas, to bringe them vnto hym. But when it was tolde hym, he ſayde: let me not ſe theyr faces. So the hooſt put them to death. Now whan Demetrius was ſet vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, there came vnto hym wycked, and vngodly men of Iſrael: whoſe captayne was Alcymus, that wolde haue bene made hyghe preſt. Theſe men accuſed the people of Iſrael vnto the kynge, ſayenge: Judas and hys bretheren haue ſlayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of oure owne londe. Wherfore ſende now ſome man (to whom thou geueſt credence,) A 2.ma:14.a that he maye go and se all the destruccyon, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges londe, and let hym be punyshed wyth all hys frendes and fauourers.

B Then the kynge chose Bachydes a frende of his, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) & faythfull vnto the kynge: and sent hym to se the destruccyon that Judas had done. And as for that wycked Alcymus, he made him hyghe Prest, and commaunded hym to be auenged of the chyldren of Israel. So they stode vp, and came wyth a greate hoost in to the londe of Juda, sendyng messaungers to Judas, and hys brethren, and spake vnto them wyth peaceable wordes: but vn-
1.Mac.1.b. der deceate. * Therfore Judas and his people beleued not theyr sayenge, for they sawe that they were come wyth a greate hoost.

After thys came the scrybes together vnto Alcymus & Bachydes, trustynge the best vnto them. And fyrst, the Assydeans requyred peace of them, sayenge: Alcymus the Prest is come of the sede of Aaron, how can he deceaue vs? So they gaue them louynge wordes, and swore vnto them, and sayde: we wyll do you no harme, nother your frendes: and they beleued them. But the very same daye toke they. lx. men of them, and slewe them: accordynge the wordes that are wryt-Psa.78.a ten: * They haue cast the flesh of the saynctes, and shed theyr bloude rounde aboute Jerusalem, and there was noman that wolde bury them.

C So there came a greate feare, and dread amonge the people, sayenge: there is nother treuth nor ryghteousnesse in them, for they haue broken the appoyntmēt, and ooth that they made. And Bachydes remoued hys hoost from Jerusalem, and pytched hys tente at Bethzecha: where he sent forth, and toke many of them that had forsaken hym: he slewe many of the people also, and cast them in to a greate pyt. Then committed he the londe vnto Alcymus, and left men of warre wyth hym to helpe hym, and Bachydes hymself wente vnto the kynge. And thus Alcymus defended hys hyghe prestho de, and all such as vered Israell, resorted vnto hym: In so much that they optayned the londe of Juda, and dyd much euell vnto the Israelytes.

Now when Judas sawe al the myschefe that Alcymus, and hys company had done (per more then the Heythen them selues) vnto the Israelytes: he wente forth rounde aboute all the borders of Jewry, & punyshed those vnfaythfull rennagates, so that they came nomore out in to the countre. So whē Alcymus sawe, that Judas and hys people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them he wente agayne to the kynge, and sayde all the worst of them that he coulde. * Then the 1.Mac.
kynge sent Nycanor, one of hys chefe pryn-ces (which bare euell wyll vnto Israel) and commaunded hym, that he shulde vtterly destroye the people.

So Nycanor came to Jerusalem with D a greate hoost, and sent vnto Judas, and hys brethren wyth frendly wordes (but vnder deceate) sayenge: there shall be no warre betwyxte me and you: I wyll come with a few men, to se how ye do, with frendlyppe. Upon thys he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enmyes were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto hym but vnder deceate: wherfore he gat hym awaye from hym, and wold se hys face nomore. When Nycanor perceaued that hys councel was bewrayed, he wente out to fyght agaynst Judas besyde Capharsalama: where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost. v. M. men: the residue fled vnto the castell of Dauid.

After thys came Nycanor vp vnto mount Syon: and the Prestes wyth the elders of the people wente forth to salute hym peaceably, and to shewe hym the burntsacrifyces that were offered for ꝓ kynge. But he laugh ed them to scorne, mocked them, defyled theyr offerynges, and spake dysdaynfully yn E and swore in hys wroth, sayenge: * yf Judas and hys hoost be not delyuered now in to my hondes, as soone as euer I come a-gayne (and fare well) I shall burne vp this house. Wyth that, wente he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode before the aulter of the temple, wepynge and sayenge: * For so much as thou (o LOR-DE) hast chosen thys house, that thy name myght be called vpon therin, and that it shulde be * an house of prayer and petycyon vnto thy people: Be auenged of thys man, and hys hoost, and let them be slayne wyth the swearde: remembre the blasphemyes of them, and suffre them not to contynue any longer.

When Nycanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched hys tente at Bethoron, and there an hoost met hym out of Syrya. And Judas came to Adarsa wyth. iii. M. men. and made hys prayer vnto God, sayenge: O

LORDE, * because the mesiaungers of kynge Senacheryb blasphemed the, the an gell wente forth, and slewe an. C. lxxxv. thou sande of them: Euen so destroye thou thys hoost before vs to daye: that other people maye knowe, how that he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuary: and punyth hym, accordyng to hys malycyousnesse.

And so the hoostes stroke the felde, the fourtenth daye of the moneth. * Adar: and Nycanors hoost was dyscomfyted, * and hymself was fyrst slayne in the battayll. When Nycanors men of warre sawe that he was fallen, they cast awaye theyr weapons and fled: but the Jewes folowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney, from Adasa vnto Gazara, blowynge wyth the trompettes and makinge tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the townes there about, and blewe out theyr hornes vpon them, and turned agaynst them: Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them lefte.

Then they toke theyr substaunce for a pray, and smote of Nycanors heade, and his right honde (* which he helde vp so proudly) and brought it wyth them, and hanged it vp ouer Jerusalem. Wherfore the people were exceadyngly reioyced, and passed ouer that daye in greate gladnesse. And Judas ordeyned, that the same daye (namely the xiii. daye of the moneth Adar) shulde be kepte wyth euery yeare. Thus the londe of Juda was in rest a lytle whyle.

The.viii. Chapter.

Judas herde also the fame of the Romanes, that they were myghtie and valeaunt men, agreable to all thynges that are required of them, and make peace wythall men which come vnto them, and how they were doughty men of strength. Besydes that it was told hym of theyr battayls, and noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, how they had conquered them and brought them vnder tribute: and what greate thynges they had done in Spayne, how that wyth theyr wysdome, and sober behauoure they had wonne the Mynes of syluer and golde, that are there, and optayned all the londe, wyth other places farre from them: how they had dyscomfyted, and slayne downe the kynges that came vpon them from the vttermost parte of the earth, and how other people geue them tribute euery yeare: how they had slayne and ouercome Philyppe, & Perses, ye kynge of Cethym, and other mo (in battayll,) which had brought theyr ordinaunce agaynst them: how they dyscomfyted greate Antiochus kynge of Asya (that wolde nedes fyght wyth them) hauynge an hundreth and. xx. Elephantes, wyth horsmen, charettes and a very greate hoost: how they toke hymself alyue, and ordened hym (wyth such as shulde raygne after him) to paye them a greate tribute, * yee and to lynde them good suertyes and plege: Besydes all thys, how they had taken from hym Indya, Media, and Lydia (hys best londes) and geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceaunynge that the Grekes were commynge to vexe them sent agaynst them a captayne of an hoost which gaue them battayll, slewe many of them, led awaye theyr wyues and chyldren raytyue, spoyled them, toke possession of theyr londe, destroyed theyr stronge holdes, and subdued them to be theyr bonde men vnto thys daye: Moreouer, how that as for other kyngdomes and Iles, which somtyme withstode them, they destroied them, and brought them vnder theyr dominyon: But helped euer theyr owne frendes and those that were confederate with them, and conquered kyngdomes both farre, and nye: and that who so euer herde of theyr renowne, was afrayed of them: for whom they wolde helpe to their kyngdomes, those raygned, and whom it lyked not them to raygne, they put hym downe: And how they were come to greate preemynence: hauynge no kynge amonge them, nother ony man clothed in purple, to be magnyfyed there thorow: but had ordened them selues a counte, where in there sat. C. and. xx. Senatours daylie vpon the councell, to dyspatch euer the busynesse of the people, and to kepe good order: And how that euery yeare they chose a Mayre, to haue the gouernaunce of all theyre lande: to whom euery man was obedyent, and that there was nother euell wyll nor dyssencyon amonge them.

Then Judas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Johni, the sonne of Jacob, and Jason, the sonne of Eleasar, and sent them vnto Rome for to make frendshyppe, and a bonde of lone wyth them: that they myght take from them the bondage of the Grekes, for they Jewes sawe that the Grekes wold subdue the kyngdome of Israel. So they wente vnto Rome (a very greate iourney) and came in to the courte, & sayde: Judas Machabeus &

hys brethren, and the people of the Jewes hath sent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendshyppe and peace wyth you, and ye to note vs as youre louers and frendes. And the matter pleased the Romaynes ryght wel wherfore it was wytten vp: of the which the Romaynes made a wytynge in tables of laton, and sent it to Jerusalem: that they myght haue by them a memoryall of the same peace and bonde of frendshyppe, after thys maner: God saue the Romaynes, and the people of the Jewes both by see and by londe, and kepe the swearde and enemy frō them for euermore. yf there come fyrst ony warre vpon the Romaynes or ony of theyr frendes thorow out all theyr dompynyon, the people of the Jewes shall helpe them (as the tyme requyreth) and that wyth all theyr hartes. Also they shall nother geue nor sende vnto theyr enemyes vytayles, weapēs, money nor shyppes: but fulfyll thys charge at the Romaynes pleasure, and take nothynge frō them therfore. Agayne yf the people of the Jewes happen fyrst to haue warre, the Romaynes shall stonde wyth thē wyth a good wyll, accordynge as the tyme will suffre: Nother shall they geue vnto the Jewes enemyes, vytayles, weapens, money, nor shyppes. Thus are the Romaynes content to do, and shall fulfyll theyr charge wythout ony deceate.

Accordynge to these artycles, the Romaynes made the bonde wyth the Jewes. Now after these artycles (sayde they) yf ony of the partyes wyll put to them, or take ony thyng from them, they shal do it wyth the consente of both: and what so euer they adde then vnto them or take from them, it shal stonde fast And as touchynge the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue wytten vnto hym, sayenge. Wherfore layest thou thy heuy yocke vpon the Jewes oure frendes and louers? yf they make ony complaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shall defende them, and fyght wyth the by see, and by londe.

1.Mac.7.f Ios.ca.17 libro.12.

IN the meane season when Demetrius herde that * Nycanor & hys hoost was slayne in ỹ felde, he proceded further to sende Bachydes and Alcymus agayn in to Jewry, and those that were in the ryght wynge of hys hoost, wyth them. So they wente forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched theyr tentes before Mesaloth which is in Arbellis, and wanne the cyte, and slewe much people. In the fyrst moneth of the .cliii. yeare, they brought theyr hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp, and came to Berea, wyth .xx.M. foote men, and .ii.M. horsmen.

Now Judas had pitched hys tente at Laisa, wyth thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multytude of the other armey, that it was so greate, they were sore afrayed, and many conueyed them selues out of the hoost. In so much that there abode no mo of them but .viii.C. men. Whē Judas sawe that hys hoost fayled hym, and that he must nedes fyght: it brake hys harte that he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuertheles he sayde vnto them, that remayned wyth hym: Up, let vs go agaynst oure enemyes, peraduenture we shall be able to fyght wyth them. But they wolde haue stopped hym, sayenge: we shall not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, & turne agayne to our brethren, and then wil we fyght agaynst them, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayd: God forbyd, that we shulde fle from them. Wherfore yf our tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not stayne oure honoure. Then the hoost remoued out of the tentes, and stode agaynst them. The horsmen were deuyded in two partes: the slynge casters, and the archers wente before the hoost, and all the myghty men were formest in ỹ felde. Bachydes hymself was in the ryght wynge of the battayl, and the hoost drewe nye in two partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas syde blewe the trompettes also, and the earth shoke at the noyse of the hoostes, and they stroke a felde from the morow tyll nyght. And when Judas sawe that Bachydes hoost was strongest of the ryght syde, he toke wyth hym all the hardymen, and brake the ryght wynge of theyr ordre, and folowed vpon them vnto the mount Azot.

Now when they which were of the left wynge, sawe that the right syde was discomfyted, they persecuted Judas and them that were wyth hym. Then was there a sore battayl, for many were slayne and wounded of both the partes, Judas also himself was killed, and the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symon toke Judas theyr brother, and buryed hym in hys fathers sepulchre in the cyte of Modyn. And all the people of Israel made greate lamentacyon for hym, & mourned longe, sayenge: Alas, that thys worthy holde be slayne, which delyuered the people of Israel. As for other thynges pertaynynge to the battayls of Judas the noble actes that he dyd, & of hys worthynesse: they are not wryten, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, wycked men came vp in all the coastes of Israel, and there arose all such as worke vngodlynesse. In those dayes was there a greate derth in the londe, and all the countre gaue vnto them selues and theirs vnto Bachides and Bachides chose wycked men, and made them lordes in the londe. These sought out and made serch for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachydes: which auenged hymself vpō them wyth greate despyte. And there came so greate trouble in Israel, as was not sence the tyme that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so much as thy brother Judas is dead, there is none like him to go forth agaynst oure enemies, agaynst Bachydes, and such as are aduersaryes vnto oure people. Wherfore thys daye we chose the for hym, to be oure prynce and captayne to order oure battayll. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon him at the same tyme, and ruled in steade of hys brother Judas. Whē Bachydes gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slaye hym: But Jonathas and Symon hys brother, perceaued that, fled in to the wylderneſſe of Thecua wyth all theyr company, and pytched theyr tentes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachydes vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane wyth all hys hoost vpō the Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathas sent his brother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to praye hys frendes the Nabuthytes, that they wolde lende thē theyr ordynaunce, for they had much. So the chyldren of Jamry came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon, & all that he had, and wente theyr waye wyth it. Then came worde vnto Jonathas, and Symon hys brother, that the chyldren of Jambry made a greate mariage, & brought the bryde from Madaba, wyth greate pompe: for she was doughter to one of the noble princes of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the bloude of Jhon theyr brother, and wente vp, and hyd them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp theyr eyes, and loked: and beholde, there was much a do, and great trayne: for the bridegrome came forth, and hys frendes, and hys brethrē met them wyth tympanys, instrumentes of musyck, and many weapens. Then Jonathas and they that were wyth hym, rose out of theyr shouldynge places agaynst them, and slewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled in to the mountaines, and they toke al theyr substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mournynge, and the noyse of theyr melody in to lamentacyon. And so when they had auenged the bloude of theyr brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.

Bachydes hearynge this, came vnto the very border of Jordane wyth a greate power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathas sayde to hys company: let vs get vp, and fyght agaynst oure enemyes: for it stondeth not wyth vs to daye, as in tymes past: Beholde, oure enemyes are in oure waye, the water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, wyth bankes, fennes and woodes of the other syde, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto. * Wherfore crie now vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of youre enemies. So they stroke the battayll. And Jonathas stretched out hys honde to smyte Bachydes, but he fled backwarde. Then Jonathas and they that were wyth hym leapte in to Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordane vnto hym, and there were slayne of Bachydes syde that daye, a thousande men. 2.Pa.20.a 1.Ma.4.b

Therfore Bachydes wyth hys hoost turned agayne to Jerusalem, and buylte vp the castels, and stronge holdes that were in Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethel Thannata, Phara, and Thopo, wyth hygh walles, wyth portes, and wyth lockes: and set men to kepe them, that they myght vse theyr malyce vpon Israel. He walled vp Bethsura, Gazara and the castell at Jerusalem also, and prouyded them wyth men, and vytayles: He toke also the chefest mens sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kept.

Afterwarde in the. C.liii. yeare in the seconde moneth, Alcymus commaunded, that the walles of the ynnoſt Sanctuary shulde be destroyed, and the buyldynges of the prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroye them, ỳ thynges that he wente about were hyndered: for he was smytten wyth a palsey, and his mouth shut, so that he could nomore speake nor commaunde ony of hys house concernynge hys busynesse. Thus dyed Alcymus in greate mysery at the same tyme. And when Bachydes sawe that Alcy-mus was dead, he turned agayne to the kynge, and so the londe was in rest. ii. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a coũcell, sayenge: Beholde, Jonathas and hys company are at ease, and dwel wythout care Wherfore let vs brynge Bachydes hyther, and he shall take them all in one nyght.

So they wente and gaue Bachydes this councell, which arose to come wyth a greate hoost, and sent letters pryuely to hys adherentes which were in Jewry, to take Jonathas and those that were with him: but they myght not, for the other had gotten knowlege of theyr deuyce. And Jonathas toke. L. men of the countre (which were the ryngleders of them) and slewe them. Then Jonathas and Symon wyth theyr company departed vnto the cyte Bethbessen, which lieth in ỹ wyldernesse, and repayred the decay the roof, and made it stronge. When Bachydes knewe thys, he gathered all hys hoost, and sent worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he, and layed sege to Bethbessen, and fought agaynst it a longe season, and made instrumentes of warre. Now Jonathas left hys brother Symon in the cyte, and wente forth hymself in to the countre, and came wyth a certayne nombre, and slewe Odares, and hys brethren, and the chyldren of Phaseron in theyr tentes: so that he beganne to be stronge, and to increase in power.

As for Symon and hys company, they wente out of the cyte, and brent vp the instrumentes of warre, and fought agaynst Bachydes, and dysconfyted hym. And Bachydes was sore vexed, because hys councell, and trauayle was in vayne. Wherfore he was wroth at the wycked men (that gaue hym councell to come in to theyr londe) and slewe many of the. Then purposed he w̃ his company to go awaye in to hys owne countre: whereof when Jonathas had knowlege he sent ambassiatours vnto him for to make peace w̃ hym, & that he shulde delyuer hym hys prysoners agayne. To the which Bachydes cõsented gladly, & dyd accordyng his desyre: yee and made an ooth, that he shulde neuer do hym harme all the dayes of hys lyfe. So he restored vnto hym all the prysoners that he had taken out of the londe of Juda, and then turned and wente hys waye in to hys owne londe, nother proceded he ony further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Israel had no more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men out of Israel.

The.x. Chapter.

In the hundreth. x. yeare came Alexander the sonne of noble Antiochus, and toke Ptolomays, whose cytyzens receaued hym, and there he raygned. When Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceadynge greate hoost, and wente forth agaynst hym to fyght. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas wyth louynge wordes, and prayed hym greatly. For he sayde: we wyll fyrst make peace wyth hym, before he bynde hymselfe wyth Alexander agaynst vs: els he shall remembre the euel that we haue done against him, hys brother and hys people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hoost, to make weapens, and to be confederate wyth hym, and commaunded the pledges, that were in the castell, to be delyuered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the castell. And therfore were they sore afrayed, because they herde, that the kynge had gyuen hym licence to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges delyuered vnto Jonathas whych restored them to theyr elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Jerusalem, and beganne to buylde vp, and to repayre the cyte commaundynge the worke men, to wall it, and the mount Syon rounde about wyth fre stone, to be a stronge holde, and so they dyd. As for the Heythen that were in the castels which Bachydes had made vp, they fled: so that euery man left theyr place and wente in to hys owne countre. Onely at Bethsura remayned certayne of the Jewes, which had forsaken the lawe, and commaundementes of God, for Bethsura was theyr refuge.

Now when kynge Alexander herde of the promyses that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde hym of the battayls, and noble actes, which he, and hys brethren had done, and of the great trauayles that they had taken: he sayde: where shall we fynde such a man? well, we wyll make hym oure frende, and be confederate wyth hym. Upon thys he wrote a letter vnto hym, with these wordes: Kynge Alexander saluteth hys brother Jonathas. We haue herde of the, that thou art a valeyant mã, & mete to be our frend, wherfore this day we ordene the to be the hyghe preest of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende. (Upon thys, he sente him a purple clothyng and a crowne of golde) that thou mayest consyder what is for oure profyt, and kepe frendshyppe towarde vs.

So in the. vii. moneth of the. C. lx. yeare vpon the solempne feast daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon hym. Then gathered he an hooste, and made many weapens. Which when Demetrius herde, he was maruaylous sory, and sayde: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuented vs in gettynge the frendshyppe of the Jewes, for hys owne defence? yet wyll I wryte louyngly vnto the, yee and promyse them dygnyties, and rewardes, that they maye be of my syde. Wherupon he wrote vnto them these wordes: kynge Demetrius sendeth gretynge vnto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte youre conuenaunt towarde vs, and continued in oure frendshyppe, not enclynynge to oure enemyes, we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne styll and be faythfull to vs: and we shall wel recompense you for the thynges, that ye haue done on oure partye: we shall release you of many charges, and geue you rewardes.

And now I discharge you and all the Jewes from trybutes, I forgeue you the customes of salt, and release you of the crowne dues, of the thyrde parte of sede, and half of the fruite of trees, which is myne owne dewte. These I leaue for you, from thys daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the lande of Juda nor of the thre cytyes which are added ther vnto out of Samaria, and Galile, from thys daye forth for euermore. Jerusalem also wyth all thynges belongynge vnto, shall be holy and free, yee the tythes, and trybutes shall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of the castell which is at Jerusalem, I remytte and geue it vnto the hyghe preest, that he maye set in it such men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I freely delyuer all the Jewes that are presoners throwow out all my realme: so that euery one of them shall be free from payenge ony trybute, yee euen of their cattel.

All the solempne feastes, Sabbathes, newmones, the dayes appoynted, the thre dayes before and after the feast shall be free to all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shall haue power to do ony iniury, or to moue ony busynesse agaynst ony of them in ony maner of cause. There shall. xxx. M. also of the Jewes be wrytten vp in the kynges hooste, and haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kynges shulde haue: and of them shalbe ordened certayne, to kepe the kynges strong holdes: yee and some of them shall be set ouer the kynges busynesse, that they maye faythfully deale wyth the same. The Jewes also shall haue prynces of their own, and walke in their owne lawes, as the kynge hath commaunded in the londe of Juda.

And the thre cytyes that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria, and Galile, shall be taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nother be subiecte to ony straunge lorde, but to the hyghe preest. As for Ptolomays and the londe pertaynynge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expences of the holy thynges. Moreouer, I wyll geue euery yeare. xv. M. Sycles of syluer out of the kynges checker (which pertaineth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yee and loke what remayneth (which they that had oure matters in honde in tymes past, haue not payed) that same shall they geue vnto them also. And besydes all thys, the. v. M. Sycles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sanctuary, shall belonge vnto the prestes that do seruyce.

Item, who so euer they be that flye vnto the temple at Jerusalem or wythin the liberties therof, where as they are fallen in to the kynges daunger for ony maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes they haue in my realme, shalbe free. For the buyldynge also and repayrynge of the worke of the Sanctuary, expences shalbe geuen out of the kynges Checker: yee and for the makynge of the walles rounde about Jerusalem, for the breakynge down of the olde, and for the settynge vp of the stronge holdes in Jewry, shall the costes and charges be geuen out of the kynges Checker.

* But when Jonathas, and the people herde these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, nother receaued them: for they remembred the greate wyckednesse that he had done vnto Israel, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherfore they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendly wyth them, and so they stode by hym alwaye. Then gathered kynge Alexander a greate hooste, and brought hys armye agaynst Demetrius. So the two kynges stroke battayl together, but Demetrius 1. Ma. 7. b hoost fled and Alexander folowed after, and fell vpon them. A myghtye soze felde was it, contynuynge tyll the Sonne wente downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

F And Alexander sente embassyatours vn to Ptolome the kynge of Egypte wyth these wozdes, sayenge: Foz so much as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the trone of my progenitours, and haue got ten the dompynyon, ouercome Demetrius, conquered the londe, and stryken a felde vp hym, so that we haue dyscomfyted both him and hys hoost, and syt in the trone of hys kyngdome. Let vs now make frendshyppe together, geue me thy doughter to wyfe: so shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and hyr greate dygnyte. Ptolome the kynge gaue answere, saienge: Happy be the daye wherin thou art come agayn to the londe, of thy progenytours, and set in the trone of theyr kyngdome. And now wil I fulfyll thy wyrynge: but mete me at Ptolomays, that we maye se one another, and that I maye mary my doughter vnto the accozdynge to thy desyze. So Ptolome wente out of Egypte wyth hys doughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomays in the. Cliii yeare: where kynge Alexander met hym, and gaue Alexander hys doughter Cleopatra, and maryed them at Ptolomays wyth greate wozshyppe, lyke as the manet of kynges is to be.

Then wzote kynge Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he shulde come and mete hym. So he wente honozably vnto Ptolomays, and there he met the two kynges, and gaue them greate pzesentes of golde and syluer, and founde fauoure in theyr syght. And there came together agaynst Jonathas certayn wycked men and vngracyous personnes of Israel, makynge complaynres of hym, but the kynge regarded them not. As foz Jonathas, the kynge commaunded to take of his garmentes, and to clothe hym in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appoynted hym to syt by hym, and sayde vnto hys pzynces. Go wyth hym in to the myddest of the cyte, and make a pzoclamacyon, that no man complayn against hym of ony matter, and that noman trouble hym, foz ony maner of cause.

So it happened that when hys accusers sawe the wozshyppe which was pzocalmed of hym, and that he was clothed in purple, they fled euerychone. And the kynge made much of hym, wzote hym amonge his chefe frendes, made hym a duke, and partaker of hys dompynyon. Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem wyth peace, and gladnesse. In the. C. lxv. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Creta in to hys fathers londe: whrof when Alexander herde tell, he was ryght soze, and returned vnto Inttoche. And Demetrius chose. * Appollonius (which had the gouernaunce of Celosyzia) to be hys captayne.

So he gathered a greate hoost, and came vnto Jamnia, and sente wozde vnto Jonathas the hyghe pzest, sayenge: Darrest thou wythstonde vs thy self alone? As foz me, I am but laughed to scozne and shamed, because thou pzouest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Now therfoze yf thou trustest in thyne owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs pzoue oure strength together: thou shalt fynde, that I haue valeaunt men of warre wyth me: & shalt know who I am, and the other that stonde by me: which saye, that youre fote is not able to stonde before oure face, foz thy fathers haue bene twyse chaced in to theyr owne londe. And now, how wylt thou be able to abyde so greate an hoost of hozsmen and fotemen in the felde, where as is nother rocke, stone, noz place to flye vnto.

When Jonathas herde the wozdes of Appollonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfoze he chose. x. thousande men & wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon hys brother met hym foz to helpe hym: And they pitched theyr tentes at Joppa, but the cyte kepte hym fozth, foz Joppa was an holde of Appollonius. Then Jonathas layed sege to it and they that were in the cyte, foz very feare let hym in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearynge of thys, toke thze thousande hozsmen, with a greate hoost of fote men, & wente as though he wolde go to Azotus, and came immedyarly in to the playne felde: because he had so many hozsmen, and put hys trust in them. So Jonathas folowed vpō hym to Azotus, and there they stroke the battayll. Now had Appollonius lefte a. M hozsmen behynde them pzyuely in the tentes. And when Jonathas knewe that such wayte was layed behynde them, they wente rounde aboute the enemies hoost, and shot dartes at the people from the mozynge to the euenynge. As foz Jonathas people, they kepte theyr ozde as he had commaunded them, and the mennes horses were euer labourynge.

Then brought Symon forth his hoost, and set them agaynst the fote men. For the horsmen were weery already. So he discomfited the, and they fled. And they that were scatred in the felde, gat them to Azotus, and came in to the temple of Dagon their God, that they myght there saue their lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus, and all the cytyes rounde aboute it, and toke their goodes, * and brent vp the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and brent wel nye.viii. thousande men. So Jonathas remoued the hoost from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where the men of the cyte came forth, and met hym wyth greate worshyppe. After this went Jonathas and his hoost agayn to Jerusalem, wyth greate substaunce of good. And when kyng Alexander herde these thynges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshypp, and sent hym a colar of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto such as are of the kynges nerre bloude. He gaue hym also the cyte of Accaron (wyth the londes belongynge therto) in possessyon.

The.xi.Chapter.

AND the kynge of Egypte gathered an hoost, (lyke the sonde þ̄ that lyeth vpon the see shore) and many shyppes: and wente aboute thorow deceate to opprese the kyngdome of Alexander, and to bryng it vnto his owne realme. Upon this he toke his iourneye in to Syria, and was lorde in to the cyties, and men came forth to mete hym: for kynge Alexander had commaunded them so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Now when Ptolome entred into any cyte, he lefte men of warre to kepe it, and thus he dyd thorow out all the cyties. And whē he came to Azotus, they shewed hym the temple of Dagon & Azotus, * that was brent vp, wyth the other thinges which were destroyed, the dead bodies cast abrode and the graues that they had made by the hye hyde. for such as were slayne in þ̄ felde: And tolde the kynge that Jonathas had done all these thynges, to þ̄ entēt they myght get hym euell will. But the kynge sayde not a worde therto.

And Jonathas met the kynge with great honour at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and to be their rest. So when Jonathas had gone wyth the kynge, vnto the water þ̄ was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolome had gotten the dompnion of the cyties vnto Seleucya vpon the see coast, ymagynyng wycked counceis agaynst Alexander, and sent embassyatours vnto Demetrius, sayenge: Come let vs make a bonde betwixte vs, so shall I geue the my doughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raygne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my doughter, for he goeth about to slaye me. And thus he slaundred Alexander, because he wolde haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his doughter from hym, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so þ̄ his malyce was openly knowne And Ptolome came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne heade: the crowne of Egypte and of Asya. In þ̄ meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst hym. But when Alexander herde of this, he came to warre agaynst hym. So kynge Ptolome brought forth his hoost, and met hym with a myghtie power, and chaced hym awaye. Then fled Alexander in to Araby, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomes honoure increased. And Zabdiel the Arabyan smote of Alexanders heade, and sent it vnto Ptolome. But the thyrde daye after, dyed kynge Ptolome hymselfe: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those that were wythyn the cyties. And Demetrius raygned in the hundreth and seuen and syxtie yeare.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry to laye sege vnto the castell which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre agaynst it. Then wente there certaine vngodly persones (which hated their owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde him, that Jonathas beseged the castel. So when he herde it, he was angrie, and Immediatly came to Ptolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shulde not laye sege to the castell, but come and speake wyth hym in all the hayst. Neuertheiesse when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to beseege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and preistes of Israel, and put hymselfe in the parell and toke wyth hym golde, syluer, clothynge, and dyuerse presentes: and wente to Ptolomays vnto the kynge, and founde hym gracious.

And though certayne vngodly men of

hys owne people made complaynte vpon 1.ma.10.b hym, yet the kynge intreated hym, * lyke as hys predecessours had done before: and promoted hym in the syght of all hys fren-des, confyrmed hym in the hyghe presthode wyth all the worshyppe that he had afore, and made hym hys cheke frende. Jonathas also desyred the kynge that he wolde make 1.ma.10.b Jewry free, * wyth the thre head cytyes of Samaria and the londes pertaynynge ther to: vpon thys dyd Jonathas promyse hym thre C. talentes. Where vnto the kynge con sented, and gaue Jonathas wrytynge of the same conteynynge these wordes: kynge De metrius sendeth gretynge vnto hys brother D Jonathas and to the people of the Jewes.
We sende you here a copy of the lettre which we dyd wryte vnto oure elder Las-thenus, concernynge you, that ye shulde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretynge vn to Lasthenus hys elder. For the faithfulnes that oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louynge kyndnes which they beare towarde vs: we are determyned to do them good. Wherfore we ordene all the coastes of Jewry wyth the thre cyties, Lyda and Ramatha (which are added vnto Jewry from Samaria) and all the londes pertaynynge there vnto, to be fre ly separated for such as do sacrifyce in Jeru salem: both concernynge the paymentes which the kynge toke yearly afor tyme, and the frutes also of the earth and trees. As for other tythes and tributes that belonged vn to vs, we dyscharge them therof from thys tyme forth. In lyke maner we graunte vnto them all the customes of salt and crowne tares, which were brought vnto vs. And thys fredome shall they haue fyrme and sted fast, from thys tyme forth for euermore.
Therfore se that ye make a copy of these our letters, and delyuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpon the holy mount in a conuenient place.

E After thys, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that thys londe was in rest, and that no resystaūce was made hym: he sent awaye all his hoost euery man to hys owne place, excepte an armye of straungers, whom he brought from the Iles of the Heythen, wher fore all hys fathers hoost had euell wyll at 1.Ma.11.f hym. * Now was there one Tryphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) whych when he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynst Demetrius: he wente to Emalcuel the Arabyan (that brought vp Antyochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye for vpon hym, to delyuer hym thys yonge Antiochus: that he myght raygne in hys fathers steade. He tolde hym also what greate euell Demetrius had done, and how hys men of warre loued hym not: and so remayned the re a longe season.

And Jonathas sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem and in the other refugies, for they dyd Israel greate harme. So Demetrius sent worde vnto Jonathas, sayenge: I wyll not onely do these thynges for the, and thy people, but at tyme conuenient I wyll do both the, and thy people greate worshyppe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, yf thou wylt sende me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is gone fro me. So Jonathas sent hym .iii. M stronge men vnto Antiochе, and they came vnto the kynge: wherfore the kynge was very glad at theyr commynge. But they that were of the cyte (euen an. C. xx. thousande men) gathered them together, and wold haue slayne the kynge, which fled in to hys courte: and the cytesyns kepte the streetes of the cyte, and beganne to fyght.

Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto hym all together, and wente abrode thorow the cyte, and slew
the same dye an hundreth. M. men: set fyre vpon the cite, gat many spoiles in that daye, and delyuered the kynge. So when the cytesyns sawe that the Jewes had gotten theyr wyll of the cyte, and they them selues dysspoynted of theyr purpose: they made theyr supplycacyon vnto the kynge, sayenge: Graunte vs peace, and let the Jewes ceasse from troublynge vs, and the cyte, and vpon thys they cast awaye theyr wea-pens. Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gat greate worshyppe in the syght of the kynge, and in the syght of all that were in hys realme, and were spoken of thorow out the kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem wyth greate goodes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone G of hys kyngdome, and had peace in hys londe. Neuertheles he dyssembled in al that euer he spake, and wythdrewe hymselfe from Jonathas, nother rewarded hym accordynge to the benefytes which he had done for hym, but troubled hym very sore.
After thys came Tryphon agayne wyth yonge Antiochus, which raygned, and was crowned kyng. The there gathered vnto hi all the men of warre, whō Demetrius had put awaye these fought agaynst Demetrius, which fled and turned his backe. So Cripho toke the Elephantes, and wanne Antioche. And yōge Anthiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, sayēge: I confirme the in thy prelhode, & make the ruler of. iiii. coūtrees that thou mayest be a frende of the kynges.

Upon this he sent him goldē vessel to be served in, & gaue hym leue to drynk in gold & be clothed in purple, and to weare a coyne of golde, he made his brother Symō al so captayne, from the coastes of Tyrus vnto the borders of Egipte. Thē Jonathas toke his journey, & wente thorow ꝑ cyties beyonde ꝑ water (of Jordane) & all ꝑ men of warre of Syria gathered thē vnto hym for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, & they of the cite receaued him honorably: & from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not let him in: wherfore he layed sege vnto it, burninge vp and spoylinge the plaine that were aboute the cite.

And the citesyns of Gaza submytted thē selues vnto Jonathas, which made peace with thē, but toke of their sonnes to pledge, sent thē to Jerusalē, and wente thorow the countre vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathas herde that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (which is in Galile: with a greate hoost, purposinge to put Demetrius out frō medlinge with the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Symō his brother in the londe: which came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, and discomfited them. So they desyred to haue peace with him, which he graūted thē, and afterwarde put them out from thence, toke the cite, and set mēs kepe it. And Jonathas with hys hoost came to the water of Genesar, & by tymes in the morynge gat thē to the playne felde of Hasor.

And beholde, the hoostes of the Heithen met thē in the felde, & layed watch for thē in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas came agaynst them, the other (which were layed to watch) rose out of their places, & fought, and they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euery man: and there was not one of them left, excepte Mathathias the sonne of Absalomus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the hoost. Then Jonathas rēte his clothes, layed earth vpon his heade, made his prayer, and turned agayne to thē in the felde: where they fought together, & he put thē to flyght. Now when his owne men that were fled, sawe this: they turned agayne vnto hym, and helped him to folow vpon all their enemies vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the Heithē the same daye, iii. M. men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

Jonathas seynge that the tyme was mete for him, chose certayn mē & sent thē vnto Rome for to stablish & to renue * the frendshipe with thē. He sent letres also vnto Sparta, and to other places in lyde manet. So they wēte vnto Rome & entred in to ꝑ councell, & saide Jonathas ꝑ hygh prest & the people of ꝑ Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renue ꝑ olde frendshippe & bōde of loue. Upon this ꝑ Romaynes gaue thē fre passportes, ꝑ mē shulde lede thē home in to the londe of Juda peaceably. And this is the copy of the lettres that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians. * 1.Mac.8.a

Jonathas the hygh prest, with the elders, prestes, and the other people of the Jewes, sende gretinge vnto ꝑ Spartians their brethē. There were lettres sente longe ago vnto Onias the high prest, frō Arius which than raigned amōge you, that ye are oure brethren, as the wrytinge made ther vpon specifieth, And Onias intreated ꝑ embassitoure that was sent honorably, and receaued the lettres: wherin there was mencion made of the bonde of loue and frendshippe. But as for vs, we nede no such wrytinges: for why, we haue the holy bokes of scripture in oure hondes to oure comforte. Neuertheles we had rather sende vnto you, for thē renuynge of the brotherhode and frendshippe: lest we shulde be straūge vnto you, for it is longe, sence ꝑ tyme that ye sent wolde vnto vs. Wherfore in ꝑ sacrifices ꝑ we offre & other ceremonies vpon ꝑ hyghe solēpne dayes & other we alwaye remembre you without ceassinge (like as reason is, & as it becōmeth vs to thynke vpon oure brethren) yee and are right glad of youre prosperous honoure.

And though we haue had greate troubles and warres, so that the kynges aboute vs haue foughten againste vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you nor to other of oure louers & frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe frō heaue, so that we are deliuered, and our enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius ꝑ sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, & sente thē vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frenshippe and loue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to salute you, and to delyuer you oure lettres, concerninge the renouacion of oure brotherhode. And now ye shal do right wel, to geue vs an answere there vnto.

C And this is the copy of the wrytinge, which Areus the kynge of Sparta sente vn to Onias: Areus kynge of the Spartians sendeth grettinge vnto Onias the hye preest. It is foude in wrytinge, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethren, and come of ꝑ generacion of Abraham. And now for so much as this is come to oure knowlege, ye shal do wel, to wrte vnto vs of youre prosperite as for vs, we haue written oure mynde vnto you: Oure cattell and goodes are yours: and yours, ours. These thinges haue we commaũded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius princes were come forth to fight against him with a greater hoost thẽ afore, he wente frõ Jerusalem, and met them in the londe of Hemath, for he gaue thẽ not space to come in to his owne countre. And he sent spyes vnto their tentes, which came agayne and tolde hym, that they were appoynted to come vpon him in the night season. Wherfore when the Sonne was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watch all the night, and to be ready with weapens for to fight: and set watchmen rounde aboute the D hoost. But when the aduersaries herde that Jonathas was ready with his men to the battayll, they feared and were afrayed in their hartes, and kyndled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and his company knewe it not tyll the morninge, for they sawe the fyres burnynge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon thẽ, but he might not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleuterus. So Jonathas departed vnto ꝑ Arabiãs (which were called Zabadei) slew them, & toke their goodes. He proceded furthur also, and came vn to Damascus, & wente thorow all that coũtre But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon & to the nerte strõg holdes, departinge vnto Joppa, and wãne it. For he herde: that they wolde stonde of Demetrius partie: wherfore he sent men of warre in the cite, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together: and deuysed with thẽ for to buylde vp the strõge holdes in Jewry and the walles of Jerusalem, to set vp an hygh wal betwixte the castel and ꝑ cite, for to separate it from the cite, that it might be alone, and that men shulde nether bye nor sell in it.

Upon this they came together for to buylde vp the cite: and for much as the wall vpon the broke of the west syde (called Caphetheta) was fallen downe, they repayred it. And Symon set vp Adiada in Sephela, and made it stroge, settinge gates & lockes vpon it. Now when * Triphõ purpo- C sed to raigne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afra- 1. Ma. yed that Jonathas wolde not suffre hym, but fyght agaynst hym. Wherfore he wente aboute to take Jonathas, and to kill hym.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan Then wente Jonathas forth against him to the battayll wyth forty thousande chosen mẽ, and came vnto Bethsan also. But whẽ Triphõ sawe that Jonathas came with so greate an hoost to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued hym honorably, cõmended him vnto all his frendes gaue him rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obedient vnto hym as to hymself.

And saide vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused thys people to take such trauayle, seynge there is no warre betwixte vs: Therfore sende them home agayne, and chose certayne men to watte vpõ the, and come thou with me to Ptolomais for I wil geue it ꝑ, with the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers: As for me, I must departe, this is only the cause of my cõmynge Jonathas beleued hym, and dyd as he said puttinge awaye his hoost, which wente in I to the lõde of Juda. He kepte but. iii. M. by him wherof he sente. ii. M. in to Galilee, and one M. wente withimself.

Now as soone as Jonathas entred in to Ptolomais, the citesyns sperred the gates of the cite, and toke hym, and slewe all them with the swearde, that came in wyth hym. Then sent Tryphon an hoost of fote men & horsmen in to Galile and in to the greate playne felde, to destroye all Jonathas compayny. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken, and all they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke councell together, and came forth ready to the battayll. So when they which folowed vpon them, sawe, that it was a matter of life, they turned backe agayne: as for the other, they wente in to the londe of Juda peaceably, & bewayled Jonathas, & them that were with him right sore.

And Israel made greate lamentacion. The all the Heithen ỳ were rounde aboute them, sought to destroye thẽ. For they sayde: now haue they no captayne, nor ony mã to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out their name frõ amonge men.

The.xiii.Chapter.

NOw whan Symon herde that Triphõ gathered a greate hoost to come in to the londe of Juda, and to destroye it: and sawe that the people was in greate fearfulnesse and care: He came vp to Jerusalẽ, and gathered the people together, and gaue thẽ exortacion, sayenge: ye knowe what greate battayls I and my brethren & my fathers house haue stryken for the lawe & the Sanctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: thorow occasiõ wherof * all my brethren are slayne for Israels sake, & I am left alone. And now let not me spare myne owne lyfe in ony maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but will auenge my people and the Sanctuary, oure children and oure wyues: for all the Heithẽ are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malyce.

At these wordes the hartes of the people were kyndled together, so that they cryed with a loude voyce, sayenge: Thou shalt be oure captayne in steade of Judas & Jonathas thy brethrẽ, ordre thou oure battayll, & what so euer thou commaũdest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makinge haist to fynish al ỳ walles of Jerusalẽ, which he made stronge rounde aboute. Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absalomus wt a fresh hoost vnto Joppa, which dyde them out ỳ were in the castell and remayned there hymself. Triphon also remoued from Ptolomais with a greate armye, to come in to the londe of Juda, and Jonathas wt hym beynge in warde. And Symõ pitched his tẽtes at Addus before ỳ playne felde.

But when Triphõ knewe that Symon stode vp in steade of his brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre agaynst hym: he sent messaũgers vnto him, sayenge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owenge in the kynges accompte, concernynge the busynesse ỳ he had in hõde. Wherfore sende now an. C. talẽtes of syluer and his two sonnes for suerties, that whẽ he is lette forth he shal not forsake vs: and we shal sende him agayne. Nevertheless Symon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money & children to be delyuered vnto him: lest he shulde be the greater enemye agaynst ỳ people of Israel, and say because he sent him not the money and the childre, therfore is Jonathas dead.

So Symon sent him the children and an C hundreth talentes, but he dyssembled, & wolde not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon in to the londe, to destroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, ỳ ledeth vnto Ador. But where so euer they wente, thither wente Symon and his hoost also. Now they that were in the castell, sent messaungers vnto Triphon that he shulde make hayst to come by the wyldernesse, and to sende them vytales: And Triphõ made redy al his horsmen to come that same night. Neuertheless it was a very greate snowe, so ỳ he came not in Galaadithim. And whẽ he drewe nye Baschama, he slew Jonathas and his sonnes there, and thẽ turned for to go home in to his owne londe.

Thẽ sente Symon for to fet his brothers dead coarse, and buried it in Modin his fathers cite. So al Israel bewayled him with greate lamentacion, and mourned for him very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulcre of his father and his brethrẽ a buyldynge hygh to loke vnto of fre stone behinde & before: and set vp seuen pylers, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and foure brethren) & set greate pilers rounde aboute, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and carued shippes beside the armes: ỳ they might be sene of men sayllinge in ỳ see. This sepulcre wich he made at Modin, stondeth yet vnto this daye.

D *Now as Triphon wente forth to walke with the ponge kynge Antiochus, he slewe hym trayterously, and raigned in his steade crowned himself kynge of Asia, & dyd much euell in the londe, Symon also buylte vp the castels in Jewry, makynge them stõge wyth towres, greate walles, portes and lockes, and layed vp vytales in the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sente them to kynge Demetrius: to desyre hym, that he wolde discharge the londe from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered hym, and wrote vnto hym after this maner. Joseph. vlpre. 18, lib. 13.

Demetrius ỳ kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hygh preest his frende, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crówne and p;ecious stone that ye sente vnto vs, haue we receaued: & are ready to make a stedfast peace with you, yee & to w;yte vnto oure officers, fo; to release you, cōcerninge ꝑ thinges wherin we made you fre: and the appoyntmēt that we make with you, shalbe firme & stable. The stróge holdes which ye haue buylded, shal be your owne. As fo; ony ouerlight o; faute committed vnto this daye, we fo;geue it, and ꝑ crowne tare ꝑ ye ought vs allo. And where as was ony other trybute in Jerusalem, it shall now be no tribute: and loke who are mete amonge you to be in oure courte, let them be w;ittē vp, that there maye be peace betwirte vs.

C Thus the yock of the Heithen was taken from Jsrael, in the hundzeth and seuentie yeare. And the people of the Jewes begāne to w;ite in their lettres and actes on this ma-
1. Macha. 14.d ner: * Jn the first yeare of Symō the hygh p;est and p;ince of the Jewes.

Jn those dayes wente Symon vnto Gaza, and beseged it rounde aboute, where he set vp o;dinaunce of warre. And wanne a towe, which he toke. So they that gat in to the towe leapte in to the cyte, which was in a greate feare: Jn so much that the people of the cyte rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and childzen, beseckynge Symon to be at one with them, sayenge.

O rewarde vs not after oure wickednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shal do ꝑ
F seruyce. Then Symon fo; very pite, wolde fight nomo;e agaynst them, but put them out of the cyte, and caused the houses (wher in the ymages were) to be clensed: and so entrend the cyte with Psalmes of p;aysse, geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE. So whē he had cast al abhominations out of the cite he set such men in it as kepte the lawe of God, and made the cite stróge, and buylded a dwellinge place fo; himself.

Now when they in the castell at Jerusalem were kepte so straitely, that they coulde not come fo;th no; in to countre, and might nether bye no; sell: they were very hungrie, and many of them famished to death: Jn so much that they besought Symon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence: and clensed the castell from fylthynesse. And vpon the.xxiii. daye of the seconde moneth in the Clxxi. yeare they entred in to it with thankesgeuynge and braunches of palme trees with harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, synginge psalmes and songes of p;aysse vnto God fo; that the greate enemy of Jsrael was ouercome.

And Symon o;dened that the same daye shulde be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse, & made stronge the hyll of the temple that was beside the castell, where he dwelt himself with his company. Symon also perceaued vpnge that John his sonne was a myghtie man of armes, made him captayne of al the hoostes, and caused hym to dwell at Gaza.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

Jn the Clxxii. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoost, & departed vnto Media, to get hym helpe fo; to fyght agaynst Typhon. Now when Arsaces the kynge of Persia and Media herde, that Demetrius was entred within his bo;ders he sent one of his p;inces to take hym alyue and to b;ynge hym vnto hym. So he went and slewe Demetrius hoost, toke hymselfe, b;ought hym to Arsaces, which kepte hym in warde. And all the londe of Juda was in rest, so longe as Symō lyued: fo; he sought the wealth of hys people, therfo;e were they glad to haue hym fo; their ruler, and to do hym wo;shippe alwaye.

Symon wanne the cite of Joppa also fo; an hauen towne, and made it an intraunce in to the Jles of the see. He enlarged the bo;ders of his people, and cōquered them mo;e londe: He gathered vp many of their people that were p;esoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethsura & the castell, which he clensed frō fylthines, and there was no mā that resisted him: So that euery man tylled his grounde in peace, the londe of Juda & ꝑ trees gaue their frute and encrease. The B elders sat all in iudgement, and toke their deuyce fo; the wealth of the lōde: the yonge men put on wo;shippe and harnesse vpon them. He p;ouyded vytayles fo; the cyties, and made goodly stronge holdes of the: so that the fame of his wo;shippe was spoken of vnto the ende of ꝑ wo;lde. * Fo; he made 1.ma.
peace thoro;ow out the londe, and Jsrael was 1.Ma full of my;th and iope.

Euery mā sat vnder his vyne and fygge trees, and there was no mā to fraye them awaye there was none in the lōde to fyght agaynst them, fo; then the kynges were ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersite amōge his people, he was di;igit to se the lawe kepte: as fo; such as were vngodly & wicked, he toke them awaye. He set vp the Sanctuary, and entreased the holy vessels of the temple.

When the Romaynes and Spartians had gotten worde, that Jonathas was dead, they were vyght sory. But when they herde that Symon hys brother was made hygh preest in hys steade, and how he hadde wonne the londe agayne wyth the cyties in it: they wrote vnto hym in tables of laton, to renue the frendshippe and bonde of loue, which they had made afore wyth Judas and * Jonathas hys brethren. Which wrytynges were red before the congregacion at Jerusalem.

And this is the copy of the lettres, that the Spartians sent: The Senetours, and citizens of Sparta sende gretinge vnto Simon the greate preest with the elders, preestes and the other people of the Jewes their brethren: When youre embassitours that were come vnto oure people, certifyed vs of your worshipe, honoure and prosperous wealth: we were glad of their comminge, and haue written the earande which they spake before the councell of the people: namely, that Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, & Antipater the sonne of Jason the Jewes embassatours are come vnto vs, for to renue & make frendshippe wyth vs. Upon this the people consented, that the men shulde be honorably intreated, and that the copy of their earande shulde be written in the speciall bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Spartians: yee and that we shuld sende a copy of the same vnto Symon the greate preest.

After this dyd Symon sende Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden shilde of a thousande pounde weight, to confirme the frendshippe with them: which whē the Romayns vnderstode, they said: what thankes shall we recompence agayne vnto Symon & his children? For he hath stablished his brethre, and ouercome the enemies of Israel. Wherfore they graunted him to be free. And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of laton, & nayled it vnto the pylers vpon the mount Sion. The copy of the wrytinge is this:

The.xviii. daye of the moneth, * Elul in Asaramel, yeare in the thirde yeare of Symon the hygh preest, in ỹ greate congregacion of preestes, rulers of the people, & elders of the countre at Asaramel, were these wordes openly declared:

For so much as there was much warre in oure londe, therfore Symon ỹ sonne of Mathias (come of the children of Jareb) and his brethren, put them selues in parell, and resisted the enemyes of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe might be mantayned, and dyd their people greate worshippe. Jonathas in like maner, after ỹ he had gouerned his people & bene their hygh preest dyed, and leyeth buryed beside his elders.

After that wolde their enemies haue trodden their holy thinges vnder fote, destroyed their londe, and vtterly waisted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withstode them, and fought for his people, spent much of hys owne money, weapened the valeaūt mē of his people, gaue them wages, made stroge ỹ cities of Juda, with Bethsura that lyeth vpon the borders of Jewry, (where the ordinaunce of their enemyes laye somtyme) & set Jewes there for to kepe it.

He made fast Joppa also, which lyeth vpon the see, and Gaza that bordreth vpon Azotus, (where the enemyes dwelt afore) and there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what so euer was mete for the suddaynge of the aduersaries, that layed he there in. Now whē the people sawe the noble actes of Symō, and what worshippe he purposed to do for them, his godly behauoure, and faythfulnesse whych he kepte vnto them, & how he sought by al wayes ỹ wealth of his people, because he dyd all this, therfore they chose him to be their prince & hygh preest. And in his tyme they prospered wel by him, so ỹ the Heithē were take out of their londe: & they also which were in the cite of David at Jerusale in the castell (where they wente out and defiled al thinges that were about the Sanctuary, and dyd greate harme vnto clēnes) & Symō put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the londe and the cite, and set vp the walles of Jerusalem.

And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hygh preesthode, made hym his frende, & dyd hym greate worshippe. For he herde ỹ the Romayns called ỹ Jewes their frendes, louers, and brethren: how honorably they receaued Symons embassatours: how the Jewes & preestes consented that he shulde be their prince & hygh preest perpetually (tyll God rayse vp the true prophet) and that he shulde be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary: and to set officers vpō the workes, therof, ouer the lōde, ouer the weapens, ouer the houses of defence, to make prouysion for the holy thynges, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the wrytynges of the londe to be made in his name: ꝑ he shulde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be laufull for none of the people nor prestes to breake ony of these thynges, to withstonde his wordes, nor to call ony congregacion in the londe without hym: that he shulde be clothed in purple, & weare a colar of golde: And yf there were ony which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he shulde be punysshed.

So all the people consented to alowe Symon, and to do accordynge to these wordes. Symon also himself toke it vpon hym, and was contente to be the hygh prest, the captayne and prynce of the Jewes and prestes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this wrytinge in tables of laton, and to fasten it vnto the compasse of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symō & his posterite might haue it.

The.xv.Chapter.

MOreuer, kynge Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sente letres from the Iles of the see, vnto Symon the hygh prest and prynce of the Jewes, and to all the people, conteynynge these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hygh prest and to the people of the Jewes. For so much as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdome of our progenitours. I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the olde estate.

Wherfore I haue gathered a greate hoost and made shippes of warre: that I maye go thorow the coūtre, and be auenged of them which haue destroyed oure londe, and wasted many cities in my realme. And therfore now I make the free also from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue released the) what so euer they be: yee I geue the leaue to coyne money of thine owne within thy londe. As for Jerusalem, I wil that it be holy and free: and all the weapens and houses of defence which thou hast builded and kepest in thine hondes, shal be thine. Where as ony thinge is or shall be owenge vnto the kynge, I for geue it the, from thys tyme forth for euermore. And when we haue optayned oure kyngdome, we shall do the, thy people and the temple greate worshyppe: so that youre honoure shall be knowne thorow out the whole worlde.

In the.clxxiii.yeare were Antiochus into his fathers londe, & all the men of warre came together vnto hym, so that fewe were left with Typhon. So the kynge Antiochus folowed ꝑ him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lyeth by the see syde, for he sawe ꝑ there was myschefe commynge vnto hym, and that his hoost had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an hundreth and twentye thousande men of armes vpon fote, and eyght thousande horsmen. So he compassed the cyte rounde about, & shyppes came by the see. Thus they vexed the cyte by londe and by water, in so much that they suffred no man to go in nor out.

In the meane season came * Numenius (& they ꝑ had bene with him) from the cyte of Rome, hauynge lettres wrytten vnto the kynges and prouynces, wherin were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome sendeth gretinge vnto Ptolome ꝑ kynge. The embassatours of the Jewes oure frendes beynge sent frō Symon the hygh prest and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendshippe and bonde of loue, and brought a shilde of golde weyenge a thousande poūde, which we were contente to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges & prouinces, to do thē no harme, nor to take parte agaynst thē, their cities, nor coūtres, nether to mayntene their enemyes agaynst thē. If there be ony wycked personnes thes fore fled frō their countre vnto you, delyuer thē vnto Symon the hygh prest, ꝑ he maye punysh thē accordynge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Demetrius the kynge, to Attalus, Araba, Arsaces and to all regions: as Sāsanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Sydon, Caria, Samos, Phamphilia, Lycia, Halicarnassum, and to Rhodes: to Faselis, Coo, Syda, Arado, Gortyna, Gnydum, to Cypres and to Cyren. And of euery lettre they sent a copy to Symon the hygh prest & to ꝑ people of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kynge brought his hoost vnto Dora the seconde tyme, to take it: where he made dyuers ordinaunces of warre, & kepte Typhō in, that he shulde not come forth. Then Symon sent Antiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe him with golde, syluer and other plenteous gear: Neuertheles he wold not receaue them, but brake all the couenaunt which he made with Symon afore, and withdrewe hymself from hym.

he sent Athenobius also a frende of his vnto Symon for to reason wt him, sayenge: ye withholde fro me Joppa and Gaza) with the castell that is at Jerusalem) wich are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed, and done greate euell in the lōde hauynge the dominacion in many other places of my kingdome. Wherfore delyuer now the cities which ye haue taken, with ỹ tributes of the places that ye haue rule vpon without the borders of Jewry: Or els geue me fyue hundreth talentes of syluer, for and for the harme that ye haue done in the cytes and for the trybutes of the same, other fyue hundreth talentes. If no, we shall come and fyght agaynst you.

So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jerusalem, and when he sawe the greate worshyppe & honoure of Symon in golde, syluer and so greate plenty of ornamentes: he marueyled, and told Symō as ỹ kinge commaunded hym. Then answered Symō and sayde vnto hym:* As for vs, we haue neither take other mens londe, nor withholde them, but only our fathers heretage, which oure enemies had vnrighteously in possessi in a certayne tyme. This heretage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in processe of tyme. And where as thou cōplaynest concer nynge Joppa and Gaza, they dyd greate harme to oure people & in oure londe, yet will we geue an C. talentes for them.

Nevertheles Athenobius answered hym not one word, but turned agayne wrothful vnto the kynge, & told him al these wordes, and the greate dignite of Symon with all that he had sene, and the kynge was very angrie. In the meane tyme fled Tryphon by shippe vnto Orthosaida. Thē the kynge made Cendebeus captayne of ỹ see coast, & gaue hym an hoost of fote men and horsmen, commaundinge hym to remoue the host towarde Jewry, and to buylde vp the ryte of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for the kynge hymself, he folowed vpon Tryphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, and beganne to vexe ỹ people, to treade downe Jewry, to take the people preſoners & slaye them and * to buylde vp Cedron: where he set horsmen and other mē of warre that they myght come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewry, lyke as the kynge had commaunded hym.

The.xvi.Chapter.

THen came Jhon vp from Gaza, and tolde Symon hys father, what Cedebeus had done amonge their people. Upon this called Symon two of his eldest sonnes, Judas and Jhon, and sayde vnto them: I and my brethren and my fathers house, haue euer from oure youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynst the enemyes of Israel, and God gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Israel oftymes. And now for so much as I am olde, be ye in stede of me and my brother, to go forth and fyght for oure people, and the helpe of God be wt you. So he chose.xx. M. fyghtinge men of the countre, with horsmen also, which were forth agaynst Cendebeus and rested at Modin. 1.ma.13.a

In the morninge they arose, and wente to the playne felde: and beholde a myghtye greate hoost came agaynst thē, both of fote mē & horsmē. Now was there a water broke betwixte them, & Jhon remoued the hoost to warde them. And when he sawe that ỹ people was afrayed to go ouer the water broke he wente ouer fyrst himself: and the men seynge this, folowed hym.

Then Jhon set his horsmen & fote men in order, the one by the other, for their enemies horsmen were very many. But when they blew vp the prestes trompettes, Cendebeus fled wt his hoost, wherof many were slayne, and the remnaunt gat them to their stronge holde Judas also Jhōs brother was wouded at the same tyme. And Jhon folowed styll vpon the enemies, till he came to Cedron * which he buylded. The enemies fled also vnto the townes that were in the feldes of Azotus, and those dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slayne.u. M. men of thē, and Jhon turned agayne peaceably in to Jewry. 1.ma.15.d

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolome the sonne of Abobus made captayne: which because he had abundaunce of syluer and golde, (for he had maried the doughter of Symō the high prest) ware proude in his mynde, & thought to cōquere the lōde, ymagininge falsed agaynst Symō and his sonnes, to destroye thē. Now as Symon was goynge aboute thorow the cities, that were in the coūtre of Jewry, and carynge for thē: he came downe to Jericho, with Mathatias & Judas his sonnes, in ỹ C.xxvii. yeare in the.xi. moneth called * Sabat. Thē Ptolome the sonne of Abobus receaued them (but with deceate) in to a stronge house of Jamna.

hys called Doch, which he had buylded, where he made them a bancket.

So when Symon and his sonnes were merry and had dronken well, Ptolome stode vp with his men (whom he had hyd there) and toke their weapens, entred in to ꝯ banket house, and slewe Symon with hys two sonnes, & certayne of his seruauntes. Such greate vnfaythfulnesse dyd Ptolome in Israel, and recompensed euell for good. Then wrote this Ptolome the same vnto kynge Antiochus, requyringe him that he shulde sende hym an hoost to helpe hym, & so shuld he delyuer him the londe wyth the cyties & trybutes of the same. He sent other men also D vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to hym, & he shuld geue them syluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other to take it and ꝯ Sanctuary.

Then ranne there one before, and tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father and hys brethren were slayne, and how that Ptolome had sent to slaye him also. Whē Jhon herde thys, he was sore abashed, and layed hōdes on them that were come to destroye hym, & slewe them: for he knewe, that they wente aboute to kyll hym.

As for other thynges concerninge Jhon: of hys warres, of hys noble actes (wherin he behaued him self manfully) of the buyldinge of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: They are writtē in the cronicles of his prelsthode, from ꝯ tyme forth that he was made hygh prest after hys father.

The bzethzen of ꝑ Jewes which be at Jerusalem and in the lond of Jewry, wysh vnto those bzethzen of the Jewes that are thorow out Egipte: good foztun, health & peace. God the LORDE be gracious vnto you, & ꝛ̃ vpon hys conuenaunt that he made with Abraham, Isaac, & Jacob his kaythfull seruantes: * & geue you all such an harte, ꝑ ye maye loue and serue hym, yee, and perfourme his wyl with an whole harte, and of a wyllynge mynde: He open youre hartes in his lawe, & his commaundementes, sende you peace: heare youre prayers, be at one wꝺ you, & neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is here oure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius raygned, in the.C.lxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble, and violence that came vpon vs. In those yeares after that Jason departed out of the holy londe and kyngdom they toke vp the portes, and shed innocēt bloud. Then made we oure prayer vnto the LORDE, and were herde: we offred, and lighted the candels, settynge forth cakes and bread. & Now come ye vnto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth * Casleu.

In the.C.lxxviii. yeare the people that were at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the counsell and Judas hymself, sent this wolsome admonicion vnto Aristobolus kynge Ptolomeus master, which came of the generacyon of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In so much as God hath delyuered vs from greate parels, we thanke hym hyghly, In that we relysted so mighty a kynge. And why? he brought me out of Perisy by heapes, to fyght agaynst the holy cyte. For as he was in Persis himself, the captayne with the greate hoste he perished in the temple of Naneas, beynge bereaued thorow the deuyce of Naneas prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there. Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther, to receaue much money in a deuy. So whē Naneas prestes had layed forth the moneye, he entred wyth a small company in to the compasse of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Soone when Antiochus entred by openinge the priuy intraunce of the temple, ꝑ prestes slewe the captayne to death, hewed the in peces that were with him, smote of their heades, and threwe them out. In all thynges God be praysed, which hath delyuered the wicked into oure hondes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purificacion of the temple vpon ꝑ. xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certifie you therof: that ye also myght kepe the tabernacles feast daye, and the daye of the fyre, whych was geuen vs when Nehemias offred, after that he had set vp the temple and the aulter. For what tyme as oure fathers were led awaye vnto Persis, the prestes (which then sought ꝑ honoure of God) toke the fyre pryuely from the aulter, and hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe dry pyt: and therin they kepte it, because the place was vnknowne to euery man. Now after many yeares when it pleased God, that Nehemias shulde be sent from the kynge of Persia: * he sent the childers childre of those prestes (which had hyd the fyre) to seke it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thycke water. Lruit.6. & 10.d.16.d.

Thē cōmaunded he them to drawe it vp, and to bryngе it hym, and the offeryнges wythall. Now when the sacrifices were layed on and ordred, the prest Nehemias commaunded to sprenkle them and the wood wyth the water. When this was done, and the tyme came that the Sonne shone, which afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a greate fyre kyndled, In so much that euery man marueyled. Now all the prestes prayed, whyle the sacrifice was a makynge. Jonathas prayed fyrst, and the other gaue answere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O LORDE God maker of all thynges, thou fearfull and stronge, thou ryghteous and mercifull, thou that arte onely a gracious kynge, onely liberall, onely iust, Almyghtie and euerlastinge, thou that delyuerest Israel from all trouble, thou that hast chosen the fathers and halowed them: receaue the offeryнge for the whole people of Israel, preserue thyne owne portion, and halowe it. Gather those together, that are scatred abrode from vs: deliuer them that are vnder the Heathens bandage, loke vpon them which are despysed and abhorred, that the Heithen maye knowe and se, how that thou art oure God punyshe them that oppresse vs, and proudly put vs to dishonoure. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place, * lyke as Moses had spoken. Deut.30.d.

And the prestes songe psalmes of than-kelgeuynge, so longe as the sacrifyce endured. Now when the sacrifyce was brent. Nehemias commaunded the greate stones to be sprenkled wyth the resydue of the water.

Judit. 6 b ; Re.18,c. Ecclī.48 a * Which when it was done, there was kindled a flamme of them also: but it was consumed thorow the lyght, that shyned from the aulter. So when thys matter was knowe, it was tolde the kynge of Persya, that in the place were ỳ prestes (which were led awaye) had hyd fyre, there appeared water in steade of fyre, and that Nehempas and hys company had purifyed the sacrifices withal. Then the kynge consyderinge the matter diligently, made hym a temple, to proue the thynge that was done. And when he founde it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many gyftes, and dyuerse rewardes: yee he toke thē wyth hys owne honde, and gaue them. And Nehempas called the same place Nephthar, which is as much to saye as a clensynge: but many men call it Nephy.

The.ii.Chapter.

IT is founde also in the writinges of Jeremy the prophet, that he commaunded them which were caried awaye, to take fyre

2 Mac 1 c ; Jer.29 b Baruc.6 a * as it is sayde afore. ; He commaunded them also, that they shulde not forget the lawe and commaundementes of the LORDE, and ỳ they shulde not erre in theyr myndes, when they se ymages of syluer and golde, with their ornamentes. These and such other thynges commaunded he them, and exhorted them that they shulde not let the lawe of God go out of theyr hartes.

It is written also, how the prophet (at the commaundement of God) charged them, to take the tabernacle and the arcke with them and he went forth vnto the mountayne,

Exo.34.a * where Moses clymmed vp, and sawe the herytage of God. And when Jeremy came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle, the arcke, and the aulter of incense, and so stopped the hole. Ther came certayne men together also folowyng hym, to marke the place, but they coulde not

23 fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued them, sayenge: As for that place it shalbe vnknowne, vntyll the tyme ỳ God gather hys people together agayne, and receaue thē vnto mercy. Then shall God shew them these thynges, and the maiesty of the LORDE shall appeare, and the cloude also,

Exo.33. b * lyke as it was shewed vnto Moses: and

1.Reg. * lyke when Salomon desyred that the place myght be sanctifyed, and it was shewed hym.

For he beynge a wyse man, handled hys matter prudently and wysely: offerynge vnto God in ỳ halowinge of the temple, when it was fynyshed. * And lyke as when Moses prayed Leui. vnto the LORDE, the fyre came downe from heauen, and consumed the burntofferynge: * Euen so prayed Salomon also, and the 2.Par. fyre came downe from heauen, and consumed the burntofferynge. And Moses sayde: because the synofferinge was not eaten, therfore it is cōsumed. In lyke maner Salomō kepte ỳ dedicatiō (or halowing) eight dayes.

In the Annotacions & writinges of * Jeremy, were these thinges put also: & how he made a library, and how he gathered out of all countrees the bokes of the prophetes, of Dauid, the epistles of the kynges, and of the presentes. Euen so Judas also, like what he learned by experience of warre, and such thynges as had happened vnto vs, he gathered them al together, and so we haue them by vs. ỳf ye now desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Where as we then are aboute to celebrate the purificacion, we haue written vnto you. Therfore ye shal do well, ỳf ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also, that the God (which delyuered his people, and gaue thē all the herytage, kyngdome, prestehode and Sanctuary * that he promysed them in the lawe) shall shortly haue mercy vpon vs, & gather vs together from vnder the heauen in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs fro greate parels, & hath clensed the place.

As concernynge Judas Machabeus & his brethren, the purificacion of the greate temple, the dedicacion of the aulter, warre of the warres ỳ cōcerne noble Antiochus and * Eupator his sonne, of the synnynges that came downe frō heauen vpon those, which manfully defended the Jewes. (For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole londe, droue awaye ỳ enemies bande, recouered agayne the temple, ỳ was spoken of thorow out all the worlde, delyuered the cite doynge their best ỳ the lawe of the LORDE which was put downe, might be al manquilite be restored agayne vnto the LORDE ỳ was so mercyful vnto thē.) As touchynge Jason also of Cyren, we haue labored dependiously to brynge in to one boke, ỳ thinges ỳ were cōprehended of hym in fyue. For we cōsiderynge the multitude of the bokes, and how harde it shulde be for them that holde medle wyth stozies and actes (and that because of so dyuerse matters) haue vs taken so to comprehende the stozies: that men myght ate dyspoled to reade, myght haue pleasure and pastyme therin: and that they which ate dyligent in such thynges, might thereby thynke vpon them: yee and that this our trauayle myght haue prospe-

Nowthelesse we our selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortninge of the labour take no smale laboure, but greate watchynges and trauayle. Lyke as one that make a feast, wolde fayne do other mens pleasure: Euen so we also (for mas-ny mens sakes) are very wel cõtent to take the labour, where as we maye shortly comprehende of thinges that other men haue tru-

For he that buyldeth an house a new, must prouyde for many thinges to the whole buyldynge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde, seketh but only what is comly, mete and cõ-uenient to garnysh it withall. Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And why? He that beginneth to wryte a story for the first, must ordeyne and vnderstondynge gather the matter together, set his wordes in order, and dyligently serche out euery parte: But he that afterwarde wyll shorten it, vseth fewe wordes and watcheth not the matter at the largest. Let this be sufficient for a prologe, now wil we beginne to shewe the matter: for it is but vnfitting thynge to make a longe prologe, & wery story in the story itself.

The.iii.Chapter.

That tyme as the holy cyte was inhabited in all peace & wealth and when the lawes were yet very well kepte. (For so was it ordered by Onias the hygh

and other godly men, that were enemiges and pryuces the selues vyd the greate worshyppe, and garnyshed the

with greate giftes: In so much that

Seleucus kynge of Asia of his owne rétes

all the costes belongynge to the seruyce offeryinges. Then * Symon of the of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, to worke some mischefe in the cite hygh preest resisted hym.

nothelesse when he might not ouer-

Onias, he gat him to * Appollonius of Thesta, which the was chefe lorde in Celosyria and Phenices) and tolde him, that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of innumerable money, & how that the comuns goodes (which belonged not vnto the offe-ringes) were exceadinge greate also: yee & how it were possyble, that all these myght come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appallonius had shewed the kynge of the moneye, as it was tolde hym, the kynge called for Heliodorus his stewarde and sent hym with a commaundement, to bringe hym the sayde money. Immediatly Heliodorus toke his iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go thorow Celosyria and Phenices to vyset the cities, but his purpose was to fulfyl the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalē, & was louyngly receaued of the hygh preest in to the cite: he tolde what was determined cõcernynge the moneye, and shewed the cause of his commynge: he axed also, yf it were so in dede. Then the hygh preest tolde hym, that there was such money layed vp for the vphol dinge of wedowes and fatherlesse children, and how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobye a noble mā: and that of all the moneye (which that wicked Symon had bewrayed) there were .iiii. hundreth talentes of syluer, and .ii. hundreth of golde yee & that it were vnpossible for those mens meaninges to be deceaued, that had layed vp their moneye in the place & temple (which is hadde in worshyppe thorowe the whole worlde) for the mayntenaunce & honoure of the same. Wherunto Heliodorus answered that the kynge had commaunded him in ony wyse, to bringe him the moneye.

So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred in to the temple to order this matter. But there was no smyll feare thorowe out the whole cite. The preestes fell downe before the aulter in their vestimentes, & called vp to heauen vpon him, of whom have made a lawe concernynge thinges geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserued, for such as cõmitte the vnto keppynge. The who so had loked the hygh preest in the face, it wolde haue grieued his harte: For his countenance and the chaungynge of his colour, declared the inwarde sorow of his mynde. The mā was all in heuynesse, and his body in feare: wher by they that loked vpon him, might perceaue the greate of his harte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the comun prayer, because the place was lyke to come in to confusion. The women gyrte together thorow the streetes, with hercie clothes aboute their brestes.

D The virgins also that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, some to the walles, other some loked out at the wyndowes: yee they all helde vp their hondes toward heaué, and prayed. A mysserable thinge was it, to loke vpon the comune people, & the hygh prest beynge in such trouble. But they belought Almyghtie God, that the goodes which were cõmitted vnto thé, might be kepte whole, for those þ had delyuered them vnto their kepinge. Nuertheles the thynge þ Heliodorus was determined to do, þ performed he in þ same place, he hymself personally beynge aboute the treasury with his men of warre. But the spyrete of Almyghtie God shewed hym selfe openly, so that all they which presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorow the power of God in to a greate fearfulnesse & drede. For 2.Mac.3.c. and.11.b. * there apeared vnto thé an horse, with a terrible man syttinge vpõ him, decked in goodly araye, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with his fore fete. Now he that sat vpon the horse, had harnesse of golde vpon him.

Moreouer there apeared.ii. fayre and beutiful ponge mé in goodly araye, which stode by him, scourged hym of both the sydes, & gaue hym many stripes without ceasslinge.

2.Mac.3.c. * With þ, fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto the grounde. So they toke him vp (beynge cõpassed about with greate darcknesse) & bare hym out vpon a beare. Thus he that came with so many rumers and men of warre in to þ saide treasury, was borne out, where as no man might helpe hym: and so the power of God was manyfest and knowne. He laye styll domme also by the power of God, destitute of all hope and lyfe. And they praysed the LORDE, that he had shewed hys power vpon hys place and temple, which a lytle afore was full of feare and trouble: and that thorowe the reuelacion of the Almyghtye LORDE it was fylled with ioye & gladnesse.

E The certayne of Heliodorus frendes prayed Onias, that in all hayst he wolde call vpon God, to graunte him his life, which was ge uynge vp the goost. So the hygh prest consydered the matter, and lest the kynge shuld suspecte that the Iewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healthofferynge for hym. Now when the hygh prest had opteyned his petition, the same ponge men in the same clothynge appeared, and stode beyde Heliodorus, sayinge: Thanke Onias þ

Act.27.c. hygh prest, * for hys sake hath the LORDE

F graunted the thy lyfe: therfore seynge that God hath scourged the, geue him prayse & thankes, and shewe euery man his might & power. And when they had spoke these wordes, they appeared nomore.

So Heliodorus offred vnto God, made greate vowes vnto him which had graũted hym hys lyfe, thãked Onias, toke his host and wente agayne to the kynge. Then testified he vnto euery man, of the greate workes of God, that he had sene with his eyen. And when the kynge axed Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Ierusalem, he sayde: yf thou hast any enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende hym thither, and thou shalt haue hym punyshed yf he escape with hys lyfe: for in that place (no doute) there is a special power and worynge of God. For he that dwelleth in heaué, byldeth & defendeth þ place: & all þ come to do it harme, he punysheth & plageth the. This is now þ matter cõcerninge Heliodorus, & the kepinge of þ treasury at Ierusalé.

The.iiii.Chapter.

THis Symon now * (of whom we spake afore) beynge a bewrayer of þ money & his owne naturall countre, reported the worst of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto thys, and as though he had bé a byleger by of euel. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemye of the realme, that was so faythfull an ouerseyer & defender of the cite & of hys people: yee & so feruent in the lawe of God. But when þ malice of Symõ increased so fare, that thorowe his frendes there were certayne manslaughters cõmitted: Onias cõsidered the parell þ might come thorow this strife, & how that Appollonius (namely the chefe lorde in Celosyria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, & Symõs malice increased the same: He gat hym to þ kynge, not as an accusar of the cytesyns, but as one that by hymself intended the comune wealth of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, nother Symon to leaue of from his foolishnesse, except the kynge dyd loke therto.

But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called þ noble) toke the kyngdome: Iason the brother of Onias labourd to be hygh prest: For he came vnto þ kynge, and promised him thre hũdreth & lx. talentes of syluer, & of the other rétes. lxxx. talentes. Beysdes this he promised hym yet an C. & X. yf he might haue þ scole of þ childré, and that he might call them of Ierusalem Antiochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, and he had gotten the supemente: he beginnes immediatly to drawe his kynsmen to the costums of the Heythen, and drewe them thynges, that the Jewes had of Joue, by Jhon the father of Eupolemus (which was sent embassatoure vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshippe with Judas) He put downe all the lawes, and ordynaunces of the Jewes, and set vp wyckednesse. He durst make a fyghtynge wall vnder the castell, and set fayre yonge men to learne the maners of whores, and gentylnesse.

This was now the begynnynge of the Heythenly, and straunge conuersacyon, wrought in thorow the vngratyous, and vnholy wickednesse of Jason (which shulde not be called a preest, but an vngodly persone:) Insomuch, that the preestes were now no more occupyed about the seruyce of the aulter, but despysed the temple, regarded not the offerynges: yee gaue theyr dylygence to learne to fyght, to wrestle, to leape, to runne, and pullynge the stone: not settynge by the honour of the fathers, but lyked the glory of the Grekes best of all: for the which they strone perlously, and were gredy to folowe theyr statutes, yee theyr lust was in all thynges to be lyke them, which afore were their enemyes and destroyers. Now beyng in so wyckedly agaynst the lawe of God, shall not escape vnpunyshed: but of thys we shall speake here after.

What tyme as the * Olympiades spore were played at Tyrus (the kynge hymselfe beynge present) thys vngratyous Jason sent wycked men, bearynge from them of Jerusalem (which now were called Antiochians) iii. hundreth drachmas of syluer to an offerynge to Hercules. These had they that caryed them, desyred vnder such a colour, as though they shulde not haue ben offered, but destowed to other vses. Nethelesse he that sent them, sent them to the entent that they shulde be offered vnto Hercules. But because of those that were present, they were geuen as to the makynge of Galeys. And Appollonius the sonne of Menestheus was sent in to Egypte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolome Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued that he was put out from medlynge in the realme, he sought hys owne profyt, departed from thence, came to Joppa, and then to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason, and the cyte, and was brought in wyth torche lyght, and with grete prayse: and so he turned hys hoost vnto Phenyces.

After. iii. yeare Jason sent Menelaus the fore sayde Symons brother * to beare the money vnto the kynge, and to bringe hym answere of other necessary matters. But he (when he was prayed of the kynge for magnyfycence of hys power) turned the hyghe preesthode vnto hymself, layenge vp. iii. C talentes of syluer for Jason. So whe he had gotten commaundementes from the kynge, he came, haynge nothynge that becommeth a preest, but bearynge the stomack of a cruel tyraunte, and the wrath of a wylde brute beast. Then Jason (* which had deceaued hys owne brother) seynge that he hymself was begiled also, was fayne to flye in to the londe of the Ammonytes, and Menelaus gat the dominion. But as for the moneye, the he had promyled vnto the kynge, he dyd nothynge therin, when Sostratus the ruler of the castell requyred it of hym. (For Sostratus was the man, that gathered the customes) wherfore they were both called before the kynge. Thus was Menelaus put out of the preesthode, and Lysymachus hys brother came in his stead. Sostratus also was made lorde of the Cyprians.

It happened in the meane season, that the Tharsyans and Mallocyans made insurrection, because they were geuen for a present vnto kynge Antiochus concubine. The came the kynge in all the hayst, to stynt them agayne and to pacifye the matter, leauynge Andronicus there to be hys deputy, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposynge that he had gotten a tyght conuenient tyme stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue them to Andronicus for a present: and some he solde at Tyrus, and in the cytyes therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a suertye he reproued hym: but he kepte hym in a sentuary beside Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat hym to Andronicus, and prayed hym that he wolde slaye Onias. So when he came to Onyas, he counceled hym craftely to come out of the sentuary, geuynge hym hys hond with an ooth (how beit he suspecte hym) and the he slewe Onias, without any regarde of ryghteousnesse. For the which cause not only the Jewes, but other nacions also toke indignacion, and were displeased for the vnryghtuous death of so godly a man.

And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Grekes wente vnto hym, complayninge for the vnrighteous death of Onias. Yee Antiochus himselfe also was sory in his mynde for Onias, so þ it pytied hym, and he wepte, remembringe his soberneſſe and manerly behaueour. Wherfore he was so kyndled in his mynde, þ he cõmaunded Andronicus to be striped out of his purple clothinge, and so to be led thorowe out all the cite, yee and the vngracious mã to be slayne in the same place, where he cõmitted his wyckednesse vpon Onias. Thus the LORDE rewarded hym hys punyshment, as he had deserued. Now when Lysimachus had done many wycked dedes in the temple thorowe the councell of Menelaus, and the voyce came abrode: the multitude gathered them together agaynst Lisimachus, for he had caried out now much golde.

So when the people arose and were full of displeasure, Lisimachus armed. iii. M. vnthryftes to defende him: a certayne tyraũt beynge their captayne, which was growen both in age & woodnesse. But when the people vnderstode the purpose of Lysimachus, some gat stones, some good stronge klubbes & some cast ashes vpon Lisimachus. Thus there were many of them wounded, some beynge slayne, and all other chaced awaye. But as for þ wycked churchrobber himself they killed him besyde þ treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus.

Now when þ kynge came to Tyrus, they made a cõplaynte vnto him of Menelaus, concernynge this busynesse, and the embassatours were thre. But Menelaus wente and promysed Ptolome to geue him much money, yf he wolde persuade the kynge. So Ptolome wente to the kynge in to a courte (where as he was set to coole him) and brought hym out of that mynde: In so much that he discharged Menelaus from the accusacions, that not withstõdinge was cause of all mischefe: and those poore men (which yf they had told their cause, yee before the Scytians, they shulde haue bẽ iudged innocent) them he condemned to death. Thus were they soone punyshed, which followed vpon the matter for the cite, for þ people and for the holy vessell. Wherfore they of Tyrus tooke indignacion, and buried thẽ honorably. And so thorowe the couetousnesse of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned still in authorite, increasinge in malyce, to the hurte of the cytesyns.

The.v.Chapter.

AT the same tyme Antiochus made hym ready to go agayne in to Egypte. Then where there sene at Jerusalem (.xl. dayes longe) horsmen runnynge to & fro in the ayre which had rayment of golde, & speares. Ther were sene also whole bandes of men weaponed, and horsis runnynge in an order, how they came together, how they helde forth their shyldes, how the harnessed men drew out their swerdes, & shot their dartes. The shyne of the golden weapens was sene, and of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayed, that those tokens myght turne to good. Now whẽ there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had bene dead: Jason toke a .M. men, and came sodenly vpon the cyte. The cytesyns ranne vnto the walles, at the last was the cyte taken, and Menelaus fled in to the castell.

As for Jason, he spared not hys owne cytesyns in the slaughter, nother consydered he what greate euell it were to destroye the prosperyte of his owne kynsmen: but dyd as one that hath gotten the victory of hys enmyes, and not of hys frendes. For all thys gat he not the superioryte, but at the last receaued confusyon for hys malyce, & fled agayne lyke a vagabunde in to the londe of the Ammonytes. Fynally (for a rewarde of his wickednesse) he was accused before Aretha the kynge of the Arabyans: In so much that he was fayne to flye from cyte to cyte being despised of euery mã as a forsaker of þ lawes, and an abhominable personne. And at the last (as an open enemy of hys owne natural countre and of the cytesyns) he was dryuen in to Egypte.

Thus he that afore put many out of their owne natyue londe, perysshed from home hymself. He wente to Lacedemon, thynkyng there to haue gotten succoure by reason of kynrede. And he that afore had caused many one out buburied, was throwen out hymself, no man mournynge for hym, nor puttynge hym in hys graue: so that he nother enioyed the buryall of a straunger, nother was he partaker of hys fathers sepulcher.

Now when thys was done the kynge suspected, that the Jewes wolde haue fallen from hym: wherfore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egypte, & toke the cyte by violence. He commaunded hys men of warre also, that they shulde kyll and not hunt, but slaye dowue such as wythstode them, clymmed vp vpon the houses. Thus was there a greate slaughter of yonge men, olde men, women, chylderen, and virgyns. In all dayes were there slayne. lxxx. M. four hundreth put in prison, and no lesse sold yet was he not content wyth thys, but durst goo in to the moost holy temple (Menelaus the traytour to the lawes and to hys owu natyuell countre, beyng hys gyde) and with his wycked handes toke the holy vessell, which other kynges, and cyties had geuen thether for the garnyshynge and honourc of the place: them toke he in hys handes vnwoz thy and defyled them.

The madde was Antiochus, that he coulde not, how that God was a litle wroth for the synnes of them that dwelt in the cyte, for the which such confusion cam vpon that place. * And why e yf it had not happened first to haue bene lapped in many synnes, syr Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had shortely bene punyshed, and shut out for his presumpcion: * lyke as Heliodorus was, whom Seleucus the kynge sent to robbe the treasury. Neuertheles God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples euyll, but afterwarde shall it enioye the welth of them. And lyke as it is now for a season the wrath of almyghty God, so when the greate God is reconcyled, it shall be set vp in hyghe worshyppe agayne.

Now when Antiochus had taken a. M. and. lxii. hundreth talentes out of the temple, he gat hym to Antioche in all the hayll, supposynge in hys pryde, that he myght make lande vpon the drye londe, and to go vpon the see, such an hyghe mynde had he. In the cytyes there to were the people: At Jerusalem left he Philippe a Phrygian, in maner more cruell then hymselfe that set him there. In Garysim he left Andronicus, and moreouer, which were more greuous to the people then other. * Now as he was thus set in malyce agaynst the Jewes, bare Apollonius an hatefull prynce, wyth a. M. commaundynge hym to slaye all tho that were of perfecte age, and to sell the women, maydes and chyldren. When he was come to Jerusalem, he layned peace, and kepte hym styll vntyll the Sabbath day. And then he commaunded hys men to put on their weapens (for the Jewes had holy dayes,) and so he slewe all them, that were gone forth to the open playe, running, here and there thorow the cyte wyth hys men weapened, and murthured a great nombre. * But Judas Machabeus which was the tent, fled in to the wyldernesse, led hys lyfe there wyth hys company amonge the wylde beastes, and vpon the mountaynes: dwellynge there and eatynge grasse, lest they shulde be partakers of the fylthynesse. 1.99 a. 2.8

The. vi. Chapter.

NOt long after thys, sent ꝑ kynge a messaunger of Antioche, for to compell the Jewes to alter the ordinaunces of the fathers and the lawe of God, to defyle the temple ꝑ was at Jerusalē, and to call it ꝑ temple of Jupiter Olympius: that they wyth shulde be in Gazarym, shulde be as thole which dwell at the place of Jupiter the herberous. Thys wycked seduycion of the vngodly was heuy vpon all the people: for the temple was full of voluptuousnes, bedynge, and hollynge of the heythen, of rybaudes and harlottes together. The women wente in to the holy place, and bare in that was vnlaw full. The altare also was ful of vnlawful thynges, wyth ꝑ lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbathes were not kepte, the other solempne feastes of the lord were not regarded. To be playne, there durst no mā be a kno wne that he was a Jew. 1.99 a. 2. b.

In the daye of the kinges wyth they were compelled perforce to offre: and when the feast of Bacchus was kepte, they were constrained to beare garlandes of yuy, and so to go aboute for the honoure of Bacchus.

Moreouer thorow the counsell of Ptolome, there wente out a commaundement in ꝑ nerre cyties of the heythen, that they shulde intreate the Jewes in lyke maner: namely, to compell them for to do sacrifyce after the lawes of the Gentyles: and who so wolde not, to put them to death. A pituous thynge was it to se. There were. ii. women accused to haue circumcised theyr sonnes, whom when they had led rounde aboute the cyte (the babes hangynge at theyr breastes) they cast them downe headlynges ouer the walles. Some that were crepte in to dennes, and had kepte the Sabbath, were accused vnto Philippe, and brent in the fyre: because that for the feare of God they kepte the commaundement, so stedfastly and wold not defende them selues.

Now I beseke all thole which reade this boke, that they refuse it not for these faules of aduersyte: and iudge the thynges (that are happened) for no destruccyon, but for a chastenynge of our people. And why? Whē God suffreth not synners longe to folowe theyr own mynde, but shortly punyssheth thē Pro.3.b. * it is a token of hys greate louynge kyndnes. For thys grace haue we of God more then other people, that he suffreth not vs longe to synne vnpunyshed lyke other nacyons, that when the daye of iudgment commeth, he maye punysh them in the fulnes of theyr synnes. For we synne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth hys mercy from vs: and though he punysh wyth aduersyte, yeth doth he neuer forsake hys people. But let thys that we haue spoken now wyth few wordes, be for a warnynge, and exhortacyon of the Heythen. Now will we come to the declarynge of the matter. Eleazar one of the C principall scrybes, an aged man, and of a welfauoured countenaunce, was constrayned to gape wyth open mouth, * and to eate

2.mac.11.a. swynes flesh. But he desyrynge rather to dye gloriously then to lyue wyth shame, of fred hymself wyllyngly to the martyrdom. Now when he sawe that he must nedes go to it, he toke it patyently: for he was at a poynte wyth hymself, that he wolde consente to no vnlaufull thynge for ony pleasure of lyfe. They that stode by beynge moued wyth pyte (but not a tyght) for the olde frendshyppe D of the man, toke hym aside prively, and prayed hym that he wolde let such flesh be brought hym as were laufull to eate, and then to make a countenaunce as though he had eaten of the flesh of the sacrifyce lyke as the kynge commaunded, for so he myght be delyuered from death: and so for the olde frendshyppe of the man, they shewed hym thys kyndnes. But he beganne to consyder hys dyscrete and honorable age, hys noble and worshypfull stocke, and how that from hys youth vp he had bene of an honest, and good cōuersacion, yee and how constantly he had kepte the ordynaunces, and lawes commaunded by God, wherfore he gaue ths thys answere, and sayde:

yet had I rather fyrst be layed in my gra
2.Esd.5.c ne. * For it becommeth not myne age (sayde he) in ony wyse to dyssemble, wherby many ponge persones myght thynke, ỳ Eleazar beynge. lxxx. yeare olde and ten, were now gone to a straunge lyfe: and so thorow myne pyocrysy (for a litle tyme of a transitory lyfe) they myght be deceaued: by thys meanes also shulde I defyle myne age, and make it abhomynable. For though I were now delyWisd.7.a. uered from the tormētes of men, * yet shuld I not escape the honde of almyghtye God, nether alyue nor dead. Wherfore I will dye manfully, and do as it becommeth myne age: Wherby I maye peraduenture leaue an exaumple of stedfastnesse for such as be ponge, yf I wyth a ready mynde, and manfully dye an honest death, for the moost worthy and holy lawes.

When he had sayde these wordes, immedyatly he was drawen to the torment. Now they that led hym, and were mylder lytle afore, beganne to take displeasure, because of the wordes that he sayde: for they thought he had spoken them of an hyghe mynde. But when he was in hyghe martyrdome, he mourned and sayde: Thou (o LORDE) which hast the holy knowlege, knowest openly: that where as I myght be deliuered from death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am well content to suffre them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge, the memoryall of hys death for an exaumple, not onely vnto ponge men, but vnto al the people, to be stedfast and manly.

The.vii.Chapter.

IT happened also ỳ there were
vii. brethren (with theyr mother) taken, and cōpelled by ỳ kyng a gainst ỳ lawe, to eate swynes flesh namely wyth scourges & lothsom whyppes. And one of them which was the chefe, sayde: What seketh thou, and what requyrest thou of vs? As for vs, we are redy rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the fathers. Then was the kyng angrye, & bad heate caudrons and brasen pottes. Which when they were made hote, immedyatly he commaunded the tong of hym that spake fyrst, to be cut out, to pul the skynne ouer hys heade, to parte of the tippes of his handes and fete: yee and that in the syght of hys mother, and the other of his brethren. Now when he was thus marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made and so (whyle there was ony breth in him) to be fried in the caudron. And when he had bene longe parboyled, the other brethren with their mother exhorted one another manfully, saienge: The LORDE God shall regarde the truely, and comforte vs like as Moses testifieth, ỳ declared in his songe, saienge: * and he will haue compassion on his seruauntes.

So when the fyrst was dead after this maner, they brought the seconde to haue hym in derysyon, pulled the skynne wyth

the heere ouer hys heade, and ared hym, yf he wolde eate swynes flesh, or he were pay-ned in the other membres also throwow out hys body. But he answered boldly, and sayd I wyll not do it. And so was he tormented lyke as the fyrst. And when he was euen at the geuynge vp of the goost, he sayde: Thou moost vngracious persionne puttest vs now in death, but the kynge of the worlde shall rayse vs vp (whych dye for hys lawes) in the resurrecyon of euerlastynge lyke.

After hym, was the thyrde had in derysyon: and when he was requyred, he put out hys tunge, and that ryght soone, holdynge forth hys hondes manfully, and spake with a stedfast fayth: These haue I of heauen, but now for the lawe of God I despyse them for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of hym agayne. In so much that the kynge, and they which were wyth hym, maruayled at the ponge mans boldnelle, that he no-thynge regarded the paynes.

Now when he was dead also, they vexed
the fourth wyth tormentes in lyke maner.
So when he was now at hys death, he lyke: It is better that we beynge put to death of men, haue oure hope and trust in God, for he shall rayse vs vp agayne.
As for the, thou shalt haue no resurrec-yon to lyfe.

And when they had spoken to the fyfth, they tormẽted hym. Then loked he vnto the kynge, and sayde: Thou hast power among men (for thou art a mortall man also thy self) to do what thou wylt, but thynke not,
that God hath forsaken oure generacyon.
Abyde the, tary styll a whyle, and thou shalt se the greate power of God, how he wyll pu nysh the, and thy sede.

After hym they brought the syxte, which beynge at the poynte of death, sayde: Be not deceyued (o kynge) for thys we suffre for oure owne sakes, because we haue offended oure God, and therfore maruaylous thyngis are shewed vpon vs. But thynke not thou (which takest in honde to stryue a-gaynst God) that thou shalt escape vnpunysshed.

This excellent mother (worthy to be wel remembred of, and had in remembraunce) when she seuen sonnes dye in one day, and coulde it patiently, because of the hope that she had in God: yee she exhorted euery one of them in especyall, and that boldly, and manfully, wyth parfyte wysdome, waxynge vp hyr wyttes thought wyth a manly stomacke, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came in my wombe, for I nother gaue you breth nor soule, no nor lyfe. It is not I that ioyned the membres of youre bo dyes together, but the maker of the worlde, which fashyoned the byrth of man, and be-ganne all thynges. Euen he also of hys own mercy shall geue you breth, and lyfe agayn lyke as ye now regarde not youre owne sel-ues for hys lawes sake.

Now thought Antiochus that she had despysed him, therfore he let her go with his reproues, and beganne to exhorte the yon-gest sonne (which yet was left) not onely in wordes but swore vnto hym wyth an ooth, that he shulde make hym a ryche and welthy man (yf he wolde forsake the lawes of hys fathers) yee and that he shulde geue hym, what so euer were necessary for hym. But when the ponge man wolde not be moued, for all these thynges, he called hys mother, and counceled her to saue hyr sonnes lyfe. And when he had exhorted her wyth many wordes, she promysed hym, that she shulde spake vnto hyr sonne. So she turned her vnto hym (laughynge the cruell tyraunte to scorne) and spake wyth a bolde voyce: O my sonne, haue pyte vpon me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, norysshed the and brought the vp vnto thys age. I beseke the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen, and earth, and all that is therin, and consyder, that God made them, and mans generacyon of naught.
So shalt thou not feare thys hangman, but suffre death stedfastly, lyke as thy brethren haue done: That I maye receaue the agayne in the same mercy wyth thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speakynge these wor des, the ponge man sayde: Whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyll not obeye the kynges commaundement, but the lawe, * that God gaue vs by Moses. As for the that ymagyneth all mysscheefe agaynst the Iewes, thou shalt not escape the honde of God: for we suffre these thynges, because of oure synnes. Leuit.11.d Deu.14.d

And though God be angrie wyth vs a litle whyle (for oure chastenynge and reformacion,) yet shall he be at one agayne wyth his seruauntes. But thou (O shamefull, and moost abhomynable persionne.) Pryde not thy self thorow vayne hope, in beynge so ma licious vpon the seruauntes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgmẽt of the God, which is all myghty, and seyth al thin

ges. My brethren that haue suffred a lytle payne, are now vnder the conuenaunt of euerlastynge lyfe: but thorow the iudgment of God, thou shalt be punyshed ryghteously for thy pryde.

As for me (lyke as my brethren haue done) I offre my soul, and my body for the lawes of oure fathers, callynge vpon God, that he wyll soone be merryfull vnto oure oure people: yee and wyth payne and punyshment * to make the graunte, that he only 2.Ma.9. is God. In me now and in my brethren the wyath of almyghty God is at an end, which ryghteously is fallen vpon all oure people.
Then the kynge beynge kyndled in anger, was more cruel vpon hym then vpon al the other, & toke indignacion, ꝑ he was so lighty regarded. So this ponge man dyed vndefy led, & put his trust stil in ꝑ LORD. Last of all after the sonnes, was the mother put to death also. Let thys now be ynough spoken, concernynge the offerynges, and extreme crudelnesse.

The.viii. Chapter.

THen Judas Machabeus, & they
that were wyth hym, wente pry uely in to the townes, called theyr kynsfolkes, and frendes together, toke vnto them al such as contynued yet in the fayth and lawe of the Jewes, and brought forth, vi. M. men.
So they called vpon the LORDE, that he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, which was trodden downe of euery man: to be gra cyous vnto the temple, that was defyled of the vngodly: to haue compassion vpon the destruccyon of the cyte, (which was shortly lyke to be layed wayst) to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed vnto hym: to remembre the moost vnrygh teous deathes of yonge innocent chyldren, the blasphemyes also done vnto hys name, and to punysh them.
2.Ma.12.a. * Now when Machabeus had gathered thys multytude together, he was to myghty for the Heythen (for the wyath of the LORDE was turned in to mercy) he fell vpon the townes, and cytyes vnawares, brent them, toke he moost commodyous pla ces, and slewe many of the enemyes But specyally he made such chases by nyght, in so much that hys manlynesse was spoken of euery where.

So when Philyppe sawe tha the man increased by lytle and lytle, and that the mat ter prospered wyth hym for the moost parte:

he wrote vnto Ptolome (which was a captayne in Celosyria & Phenyces) to helpe him in the kynges busynes. * Then sent he Ny 1.Ma.3.

on of the Jewes, haynge to helpe hym one Gorgyas a man of warre, which in matters concernynge battayls had greate experyen-ce. Nycanor ordened also the trybute (which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be gi-uen vnto the kynge, out of the captyuyte of the Jewes, namely. ii. M. talentes. And immedyatly he sent to the cyttes of the see coast requyrynge them for to bye Jewes to be theyr seruauntes, and bonde men, promysynge to sell them. lxxx. and ten for one talcte but he consydered not the wyath of almyg ty God, that was to come vpon hym.

When Judas knewe of thys, he tolde the Jewes that were wyth hym, of Nycanors commynge. Now were there some of them fearfull, not trustynge vnto the ryg-tuousnes of God, and fled theyr waye. But the other that remained, came together, and besought the LORDE, to delyuer them from that wycked Nycanor, which had sold them or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for theyr sakes, yet for the conuenaunt that he made wyth theyr fathers, and because they called vpon hys holy, and glorious name. * And so Macha- 1.Ma.3. beus called hys men together, namely avnto theyr enemyes, * nother to be afrayd 1.Ma.3.

for the multytude of theyr aduersaryes com fyght manly, consyderynge the reprofe that they had done to the holy place wythout cause, how they had defyled, and oppressed the cyte, yee and destroyed the lawes of the fathers. * For they (sayde he) trust in theyr 1.Ma.3. weapens and boldnesse, but our confydence is in the almyghty LORDE, which in the twynklynge of an eye maye both destroye them that come agaynst vs, and all the worlde.

He exhorted them also to call to remem- D braunce the helpe, that God shewed vnto theyr fathers: * as when there perysshed an 1.Ma.3.

hym that was geuen them from heauen, wherby they alle had receaued many benefytes.

Thyrdly these wordes the men toke good herte vnto them, ready to dye for the lawe and the countre. Than he set vpon euery company a captayne, one of hys owne brethren, Ioseph and Jonathas: geuynge vnto eche .lx. handreth men. He caused Esdras to reade the holy boke vnto them, and gaue them a token of hys helpe of God. Then he hymself beynge captayne in the forefront of the battayll, buckled wyth them: And God was theyr helpe, in so much that they slewe aboue .ix.M. men and wounded y more parte of Nycanors hoost, so that they were so wounded and feble. That they toke the money from those that came to spye them, and folowed vpon them a ferr syde. But when the tyme came vpō them, they returned, for it was the sabbath therfore they folowed nomor vpō the. So toke their weapens, and spoyles, and kept the Sabbath, geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE, which had delyuered them that day, and shewed them hys mercy. After the Sabbath, * they dystrybuted the spoyles to the syche, to the fatherlesse, and to wydowes and the residue had they them selues wyth theyrs. When thys was done, and they all had made a generall prayer they besought the mercyfull LORDE to be reconcyled wyth hys seruauntes.

Of those also that were wyth Timotheus and Bachides, which fought agaynst them, they slewe .xx.M. wanne hyghe, and stronge holdes, and deuyded moo spoyles: and geuynge an equall portyon vnto the fatherlesse, to wydowes, and to the aged also. And when they had dylygently gathered theyr weapens together, they layed them all in convenient places, and the remnant of the spoyles brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe Phylarches that wycked persone, which was wyth Timotheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesgeuynge at Jerusalem for the victory, they brent those gates vp that were on the portes of the temple before Callithenes, which was fled in to a lytle house: and so they gat a worthy rewarde for their wyckednesse. As for that moost vngracious Nycanor, which had brought a thousande marchauntes, to bye the Jewes, was thorow the helpe of the LORDE brought downe, euen of them whom he regarded not: in so much that he put of hys glorious rayment, fled by see, and came alone to Antioche wyth greate shame, and dyshonoure, which he gat thorow the destruccyon of hys hoost. Thus he that promysed the Romaynes to paye them theyr tributes, when he toke Jerusalem: declared openly, that God was the defender of the Jewes, and therfore not possible to wounde them, because they folowed the lawes which God had made.

The.x. Chapter.

AT the same tyme came Antiochus agayne wyth dyshonoure out of Persis. For when he came to Persepolis, and vndertoke to robbe the temple and to subdue the cyte, the people came together, and defended them selues, in so much that he, and hys were fayne to flye wyth shame. And so after that flyght, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne wyth dyshonoure. But when he came to Ecbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nycanor, & Timotheus. Now as he was auaūcynge hymself in hys wyth, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therfore commaunded to make ready hys charrot, hastynge on hys iourney wythout restynge: the iudgment of God prouokynge hym, because he had spoke so proudly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the LORDE God of Israell, * that seyth all thynges, smote hym wyth an vnsyble plage, which no man could de heale. 2.Ma.16.h

For as soone as he had spoken these wordes, there came vpon hym an horrible payne of his bowels, and a sore grefe of the entrayles. And y was but ryght: for he had martyred other mens bowels wyth dyuerse and straunge tormentes, how be it he mente in no wyse cessle from hys malyce. yee he was yet the prouder, & more malycyous agaynst the Jewes: But whyle he was commaundynge to make hast in the matter, it happened that he fell downe violently from the charret, so that it bruised hys body, and dyd hym greate payne.

And so he that thought he myght commaunde the floudes of the see (so proude was he beyonde the condityon of man) and to weye the hyghe mountaynes in a payre of scoales, was now brought downe to the grounde, and caryed vpon an horsyeter, knowlegynge the manyfest power of God

vpon hym: so that the wycked body of hys Act.12.b. * was full of wormes, which in hys payne fell quyck out of hys flesh: In so much that hys hoost was greued wyth the smell, and vyncke of hym. Thus he that lyte afore thought he myght reach to ỹ starres of hea uen, hym myght no man now abyde nor bea re, for the vnbremenes of vyncke.

C Therfore he begynge brought from hys greate pryde, beganne for to come to know lege of hymselfe: for the punyshment of God warned hym, and hys payne increased euer more and more. And when he himself might not abyde hys owne stynche, he sayde these wordes: It is reason to be obedyent vnto God, and that a man desyre not to be lyke vnto hym. Thys wycked personne prayed also vnto the LORDE, of whom he shulde haue optayned no mercy. And as for the cyte that he came vnto so hastely, to brynge it downe to the grounde, and to make it a gra ue for dead men: now he desyred to delyuer it fre. And as towchynge the Jewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buryed, but wolde haue cast them out for to be deuoured of the foules, and wylde beastes, sayenge, that he wolde haue destroyed both olde, and yõge: Now he promyseth to make them lyke the cyteyns of Athens. And where as he had spoyled the holy temple afore, now he ma-keth promyse to garnysh it wyth greate gyf tes, to increase the holy ornamentes, and of hys owne rentes to beare the costes and charges belongynge to the offerynges: yee and that he wolde also become a Jewe hym self, to go thorow euery place of the worlde, and to preach the power of God.

D But when hys paynes wolde not ceasse, (for the ryghteous iudgment of God was come vpon hym) out of a very despayre he wrote vnto the Jewes a lettre of intercessyo-on, conteynynge these wordes: The kynge, and prynce Antiochus wysshet vnto the ver-tuous cytesyns of the Jewes, much health, and good prosperyte.

If ye and youre chyldren fare well, and yf all thynges go after youre mynde: we gi ue greate thankes. In my sycknesse also do I remembre you louynglye: for as I came out of Persya, and was taken wyth sore dysease, I thought it necessary to care for the comune welthe. Nother despayre I in my self, but haue a good hope to escape thys syckenesse.

But consyderynge that my father led an hoost sometyme in the hyer places, and shew ed who shulde raygne after hym, that (yf there happened ony contrauersy, or ony harde thynge were declared,) they in the londe myght knowe therof: therfore, that there shulde be no daunreccyon: Agayne, when I ponder in my self, how that all the E myghtye men, and neyghbours rounde abouts, are layenge wayte, and loke but for opportunyte to do harme: I haue ordeyned that my sonne Antiochus shall raygne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wrytten vnto hym as it folowe-eth hereafter. Therfore I praye you, and requyre you, to remembre the benefytes, that I haue done vnto you generally, and in especyall. For I hope that he shall be of sober, and louynge behauoure, and yf he fo-lowe my deuyce, he shall be indyfferent vn-
to you.

* Thus that murth rer, and blasphemer D of God was sore smytten: and lyke as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a vnpytable death in a straunge countre vpon a mountayne. And hys body dyd Philippe (that wente wyth hym) carpa waye: which fearing the sonne of Antiochus, wente in to Egypte to Ptolome Philometor.

The.x.Chapter.

MAchabeus now and hys compa I ny (thorow the helpe of the LOR DE) wanne the temple, and the cyte agayne, destroyed the aulters, and chappels that the hey-then had buylded thorow the stretes: clen-sed the temple, * made another aulter of E flynte stone, and after .ii. yeares they offered sacrifyces, sette forth the incense, the lyg htes, and shewbread. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the grounde, and besought the LORDE, that they myght come nomore in to such trouble; but yf they synned ony more agaynst hym, he hymself to chastē them wyth mercy, and not to com in the hondes of thos alcauntes, and blasphemous men.

Now vpon the same daye that the straun gers poluted the temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clensed agayn
* namely, the .xxv. daye of the moneth cal- F led Casleu. They kepte .viii. dayes in glad-nesse, lyke as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembrynge that not longe afore, they he lde the feast of the tabernacles vpon ỹ moun taynes and in dennes lyke beastes. And to the same token they bare grene bowes, braunches and palmes before hym that had geuen them good fortune to clense hys place. They agreed also together, and made a statute, that euery yeare those dayes shulde be solempnly kepte of all the people of the Iewes.

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficyently tolde. Now will we speake of Nycanor the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with hym: and so with few wordes to comprehende the aduersyte that chaunced in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lysyas (which had bene captayne of the hoost in Phenyces, and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme.

Ptolome that was called Macron, began a ruler for the Iewes (and especyally, to sye in iudgment for such wronge as was don vnto them) vndertoke to deale peasably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator, and when he was suspecte to be a traytoure (because he had left Cypers, that Philome had committed vnto hym: and because he departed from noble Antyochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned hymselfe, and dyed.

Now when Gorgyas was gouernoure of the same places, he toke straungers, and therfore oftentymes to warre with the Iewes. Moreouer the Idumeans that helde stronge holdes, receaued those that were flowne from Ierusalem, and toke in honde warre also. * But they that were with Machabeus, besought and prayed vnto the LORDE, that he wolde be theyr helper: and so they fell in to the stronge holdes of the Idumeans, and wanne many places by strength: Such as came agaynst them they slewe, and kylled no lesse (of altogether) then twentye thousande. Neuertheles some (no lesse then nyne thousande) were fled in to two stronge towers, hauynge all maner of ordynaunce to wythstande them.

Then Machabeus leauynge Symon, Iosephus, Zacheus, and those that were with them, (which were very many) wente to besege them, and to fyght where moost nede was. Now they that were with Symon beynge led with couetousnesse, were intysed for money, thorow certayne of those that were in the towers: toke .lxx. M. drachmas, and let some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called the capetaynes of the people to gether, accusinge those personnes, that they had solde the brethren for money, and let theyr enemyes go. So he slewe those traytours, and immedyatly wente in hond with the .ii. towers. And when they had ordred them selues manly with theyr weapes, and hondes, they slewe in the two castels mod then twentye thousande.

* Now Tymotheus: whom the Iewes had ouercome afore, gathered a multytude of straunge people, brought an hoost also of horsmen of the Asyans, to wynne Iewry by strength. But when he drewe nye, Machabeus, and they that were with hym, * fell to theyr prayer, sprencled allhes vpon theyr heades, beynge gyrded with heery cloth aboute theyr loynes, fel downe before the aulter, and besought the LORDE, that he wolde be mercyfull to them, but an enemye vnto theyr enemyes, & to take parte agaynst theyr aduersatyes, * accordynge as it is promysed in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wente on further frō the cyte: and when they came nye the enemyes, they prepared them selues agaynst them.

And by tymes in the morynge at the breake of the daye, both the hoostes buckled together. * The one parte had the LORDE for theyr refuge, which is the geuer of prosperyte, strength and victory. The other had a manely stomack, which is a captayne of warre.

The battayl now beynge greate, * there appeared vnto the enemies from heauen .v. men, vpon horsback with brydels of golde, leadynge the Iewes, and two of them haunge Machabeus betwyxte them, that kepte hym safe on euery syde with theyr weapens, but shot dartes, and lyghtenynges vpō ye enemyes, where thorow they were confolded with blyndnesse, and so sore afrayed that they fell downe. There were slayne of fote men twenty thousand, .v. C. .vii. bi. hundreth horsmen. As for Tymotheus hymself, he fled vnto Gazar a very stronge holde, wherin Cereas was captayne. But Machabeus, and hys company layed sege to it cheerfully .iiii. daies. Now they that were within trustynge to the strength of the place, cursed and banned erreadyngly, and made greate crakynge with wycked wordes. Neuertheles vpon the fyfth daye in the morynge .xx. yonge men of Machabeus companye, beynge set on fyre in theyr myndes because of the blasphemye came manfully vnto the wall, and with bolde stomackes they and theyr other companyons clymmed vp vpon the towres, vndertakynge to set fyre vpon the portes, and to burne those blasphemous personnes quycke. Two dayes were they destroyenge the castel, which whē they founde Tymothus (that was crepte in to a corner) they kylled hym, and slewe Cereas hys brother in lyke maner wyth Apollophanes. When thys was done, they sunge Psalmes, wyth prayses and thankesgeuynges vnto the LORDE, which had done so greate thynges for Israel, and geuen them the victory.

The.xi. Chapter.

A NOt longe after thys, Lysyas the kynges stewarde and a kynsma of hys, (which had the gouernaunce of hys matters,) toke sore displeasure for the thynges that had happened: and when he had gathered.lxxx. M. men of fote wyth all the hoost of the horsmen, he came agaynst the Jewes, thynkynge to wynne the cyte, to make it an habitacion for the Heythen, * and the temple wolde he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the Heythen are, and to sell the prestes office euery yeare: Not consyderynge the power of God but was wylde in hys mynde, *truskynge in the multytude of fote men, in thousandes of horsmen, and in hys.lxxx. Elephantes.

B So he came in to Jewry and then to Bethsura (a castell of defence lyenge in a narow place. v. furlonges from Jerusalem) and wanne it. Now when Machabeus and hys company knew that the stronge holdes were taken, * they fell to theyr prayers vnto weppynge and teares before the LORDE, and all the people in lyke maner besought hym, that he wolde sende a good angell to delyuer Israel. Machabeus hymself was the first that made him ready to the battayl erhortynge the other that were wyth hym, to ioperde them selues, and to helpe theyr brethren. And when they were goynge forth of Jerusalem together wyth a ready, and wyllynge mynde, * there apeared before them vpon horsbacke a man in whyte clothynge wyth harnesse of golde, shakynge hys speare. Then they praysed the LORDE altogether, which had shewed them mercy, and were conforted in theyr mynde: in so much that they were ready, not onely to fyght wyth men, but wyth the moost cruell beastes, yee and to runne thorow walles of yron.

2.Mach.10.c

2.Mach.3.d.

Thus they wente on wyllyngly dauntyng C an helper from heauen, and the LORDE mercyfull vnto them. They fell myghtyly vpon theyr enemyes lyke lions, brought downe.xi.M. fote men. rvi. hundreth horsmen, put all the other to flyght, many of the beynge wounded, and some gat awaye naked. yee Lysyas hymself was fayne to flye shamefully, and so to escape. Neuerthelesse the man was not wythout vnderstondynge but consydered by hymself that hys power was minished, and pondred how the Jewes beynge defended by the helpe of almyghty God, were not able to be ouercome: wherfor he sent them worde, and promysed, that he wolde consente to all thynges which were reasonable, and to make p kinge theyr frend. To the which prayer of Lysias Machabeus agreed, seekynge in all thynges the commune wealth: and what so euer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysyas concernynge the Jewes, the kynge graunted it. For there were letters wrytten vnto the Jewes from Lysyas conteynynge these wordes.

Lysyas sendeth greetynge to the people D of the Jewes. Jhon, and Absalon which were sent from you, delyuered me wrytynges, and requyred me to fulfyll the thynges concernynge theyr earande. Therfore lokt what myght be graunted. I certified the kynge therof: and what so euer was commytted, I agreed therto. yf ye now wyl be faythfull in the matters, I shall endeuer my self herafter also to do you good. As cōcernynge other thinges by euery article therof, I haue commytted them to youre messaungers, and to those whom I sent vnto you, to commune wyth you of the same. fare ye well. In the hundreth and.xlviii. yeare, the.xxiii. daye of the moneth Dioscorinthius.

Now the kynges letre conteyned these wordes: kynge Antiochus sendeth greetynge vnto hys brother Lysyas. For so muche as our father * is now dead, our wyl is, that they which are in oure realme, lyue without ony insurrecyon, and euery man to be diligent in hys owne matters. We vnderstond also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to our father, for to be brought vnto the customme of the Gentyles, but stycke by to theyr owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to let them remayne styl by theyr owne lawes.

2.Mach.9.a

Wherfore oure mynd is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded, and determined also, to restore the theyr temple again, that they maye lyue according to the fa-and custume of theyr forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, yf thou sende vnto them, and agre wyth them: that when they are certified of youre mynde, they maye be of good cheare, and loke to theyr owne busynes.

And thys was the lettre, that the kynge sente vnto the Jewes: kynge Antiochus sendeth gretynge vnto the councell, and the other people of ỹ Jewes. yf ye fare well, we haue our desyre: as for vs, we are in good helth. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how that youre desyre was to come downe to youre people, which are wyth vs.

Wherfore those that wyll come, we geue safe conduyte, vnto the .xxx. daye of the moneth Xanthicus, that they maye vse the meanes of the Jewes, and theyr owne lawes, lyke as afore: and none of them by ony maner of wayes to haue harme, for thinges done in ignorance. Menelaus whom we haue sent vnto you, shall comon wyth you at large, fare ye well. In the .C.lviii. yeare, the .xv. daye of the moneth of Xanthicus.

The Romaynes also sent a lettre, conteynyng these wordes: Quintus Mennius, and Tytus Manlius embassatours of the Romaynes, sende gretynge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lysias the kynnesman, hath graunted you, we graũt you the same also. But as concernynge the thynges which he referred vnto the kynge vnto hym selfe: some wyth spede: and ponder the matter dyligently amonge youre selues, how we maye cast the best to youre profyte, for we must departe now vnto Antioche. And therfore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe youre mynde. Fare well. In the hundreth .xlviii. yeare, the .xv. daye of the moneth of Xanthicus.

The. xii. Chapter.

When these conuenaunces were made, Lysias went vnto the kynge, and the Jewes tylled theyr grounde. But Timotheus, Apollonius the sonne of Genneus, and Hieronymus, and Demophon the proude, ouer the captayne of Cypers, and they wolde not let them lyue in vnite and peace. They of Joppa also dyd suche a shamefull dede: They prayed the Jewes that dwelt amonge them to go with their wyues, and children in to the shyppes which they had prepared, and dyd not thynke as though they had ought them any yll. For so much then as there was gone forth a generall proclamacion throughout the cyte because of peace, they consented therto, and suspected nothynge: but when they were gone forth in to the depe, they drowned no lesse then .ii. hundreth of them.

When Judas knew of this cruelte shewed vnto hys people, he commaunded those that were wyth hym to make them ready, exhortynge them to call vpon God the ryghteous iudge, went forth agaynst those murtherers of hys brethren, set fyre in the hauen by nyght, brent vp the shyppes, and those that escaped from the fyre, he slewe wyth the swearde. And when he had done thys, he departed as though he wolde come agayne, and rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gotten worde, that the Jamnytes were mynded to do in lyke maner vnto the Jewes which dwelt amonge them, he came vpon the Jamnytes by nyght, and set fyre in the hauen wyth the shyppes: so that the lyght of the fyre was seue at Jerusalem, vpon a .ii. hundreth, and .xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence .xx. furlonges, in theyr iourney towarde Timotheus: .v. thousande men of fote, and .v. hundreth horsmen of the Arabians fought wyth hym. So when the battayll was earnest, and prospered wyth Judas thorow the helpe of God: the residue of the Arabians beynge ouercome, besought Judas to be at one wyth them, and promysed to geue hym certayne pastures, and to do wyth hym good in other thynges. Judas thynkynge that they shulde in dede be profytable cõcernyng many thynges, promysed them peace: wherupon they shoke hondes, and so they departed to theyr tentes. Judas went also vnto a cyte, which was very fast kepte wyth dyches, fensed rounde about wyth walles, and dyuerse kyndes of people dwellynge therin, called Calsys.

They that were wythin it, put such trust in the strength of the walles, and in theyr store of vytayles: that they were the slacker in theyr doynges, cursynge and reuylynge Judas wyth blasphemyes, and speakynge such wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vpon the greate prynce of the worlde (which wythout ony battayrammes or ordinaunce of warre, * dyd cast downe the walles of Jericho in the tyme of Josue) fel manfully vpon the walles, toke the cyte, and (thorow the helpe of the LORDE) made an exceadynge greate slaughter: In so much that a lake of .ii. furlonges brode which laye therby, semed to slowe wyth the bloude of the slayne.

Then departed they from thence.viii.hundreth and.L.furlonges.and came to Tarasca vnto the Jewes that are called Cubianey. But as for Tymotheus, they coulde not get hym there: for (not one matter dispatched) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very stronge holde. But Dosytheus ād Sosypater which were captaynes wyth Machabeus, slewe those that Tymotheus had lefte in the house of defence, euen.v.M.men. And Machabeus prepared hym wyth the.vi.M.men that were aboute hym, set them in order by companies and wente forth agaynst Tymotheus, which had wyth hym an hundreth, and.xx.M.men of fote.ii.M.and.v.hundreth horsmen.

D When Tymotheus had knowlege of Judas commynge, he sent the women, chyldren, and the other baggage vnto a castell called Carnyon. (For it coulde not be wonne, and was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narow) and when Judas company came fyrst in syght, the enemyes were smytten wyth feare, thorow the presence of God, which seyth all thynges: In so much that they flyenge one here, another there, were rather dyscomfyted of theyr owne people, and * wounded wyth the strokes of theyr owne swerdes. Judas also was very earnest in folowynge vpon them, and punyshynge those vngodly, and slewe.xxx.M.men of them. Tymotheus also hymselfe fell in to the.hondes of Dosytheus, and Sosypater, whom he besought wyth many prayers, to let hym go wyth hys lyfe: because he had many of the Jewes fathers, and brethren in prison, which (yf they put hym to death) myght be dyspoynted. So when he had promysed faythfully to delyuer them agayne accordynge to the condycyon made, they let hym go wythout harme, for the health of the brethren. And when Judas had slayne.xxv.M. he wente from Carnion.

E Now after that he had chased awaye, and slayne hys enemyes, he remoued the 1.Ma.5.f. hoost towarde. * Ephron a stronge cyte, wherin dwelt many dyuerse people of the Heythen, and the stronge yonge men kepte the walles, defendynge them myghtely. In
2.Ma.10.f. thys cyte was much ordynaunce, and prouyson of dartes. * But when Judas, and hys company had called vpon Almyghty God, (which wyth hys power breaketh the strength of the enemyes) they wanne the cyte, and slew.xxv.M. of them that were wythyn. From thence wente they to the cyte of the Scythians, which lyeth.vi.hundreth furlonges from Jerusalem. But when the Jewes which were in the cyte testyfyed, that the cytesyns dealte louyngly wyth them, yee and intreated them kyndly in the tyme of theyr aduersyte, Judas and hys company gaue them thankes, desyrynge them to be frendly styll vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem, * the hyghe feast of the weekes
2.Ma. beynge at honde. And after the feast they wente forth agaynst Gorgias the gouernoure of Idumea, wyth.iii.M.men of fote and.iiii.hundreth horsmen. Which when they met together, it chaunced a few of the Jewes to be slayne.

And Dosytheus one of the Bachenors ‡ a myghty horsman toke holde of Gorgyas, and wolde haue take hym quycke. But an horsman of Thracya fell vpon hym, and smote of hys arme, so that Gorgyas escaped and fled in to Marysa. When they now that were of Gorgyas syde, had foughten longe and were weery: Judas called vpon the LORDE, that he wolde be theyr helper, and captayne of the felde: and wyth that, he beganne wyth a manly voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, and a rye: In so much that he made the enemyes afrayed, and Gorgyas men of warre to take theyr flyght. So Judas gathered hys hoost, and came vnto the cyte of Odolla. And when the seuenth daye came vpon them, they clensed them selues (as the customes was) and kepte the Sabbath in the same place. And vpon the daye folowynge, Judas and hys company came to take vp the bodyes of them that were slayne, and to bury them in the fathers graues. Now vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes which were slayne, they found Jewels that they had taken out of the temple, and from the Idols of the * Jamnytes: ‡ which thynge is forbydden the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man sawe that thys was the cause, wherfore they were slayne.

And so euery man gaue thankes vnto the LORDE for hys righteous iudgmēt, had opened the thynge that was hyd. They fell downe also vnto theyr prayers, and besought God, that the fawte which was made, myght be put out of remembraunce. Besydes that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly, to kepe them selues from synne, for so much as they sawe before theyr eyes, that these men were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a mayne, in so much that he brought together .ii. thousãde drachmas of syluer, which he sent vnto Jerusalē, þ there might a sacrifice be offred for the myssedede. In the which place he dyd well and right: for he had some cõsideracion & pondringe of the ꝑsone that is after this tyme. For þ he had not thought that they, which were slayne, shuld not lyue, it had bene superfluons and folysshe, to make ony vowe or sacrifice, for the

that were dead. But for so much as he sawe that they which dye in the fauoure & beleefe of God, are in good rest & ioye, he thought it to be good & honorably for a recõpylinge vnto the same for those which were slayne, that the offence might be forgeuen.

The.xiii.Chapter.

IN the .cxlix. yeare gat Judas knowlege, that Antiochus Eupator was cõmynge vñ a greate power in to Jewry, and Lisias the stewarde & ruler of his matters with him: hauynge an C. and x. M. mē of .M. horsmē, xxii. Elephantes, and
iii. C. charettes. Menelaus also ioyned him self with them (but with greate decreate) and came fayre to the kyng, not for ony good of the coütre, but because he thought to haue ben made some greate man of auctorite.
But the kyng of kynges moued Antiochus spede agaynst this vngodly personne, and Lisias informed þ kynge, * that this Me-nelaus was þ cause of all myschefe: so þ the kynge commaunded to take hym, & (as the maner of them is) to put hym vnto death in the same place.

There was also in the same place a tower
.l. cubites high, heaped with asshes: but aboue it was so made, that men might loke downe on euery syde. Where vnto the kyng commaunded that shamefull person to be led amonge the asshes, as one that was worthy of all vngracyousnesse. And reason it was, that the vnthryft shulde dye such a death, and not to be buryed: for he had done many myschefe vnto þ aulter of God (whose fyre and asshes were holy) therfore was it ryght, that he hymself also shulde be destroyed with asshes.

But þ kynge was wode in his mynde,
and came to shewe himself more cruell vnto
the Jewes, thē his father was. Which whē Judas perceaued, * he commaũded the peo ple to call vpon the LORDE nyght & dayes that he wolde now helpe them also, lyke as he had done alwaie: (for they were afrayed to be put from their lawe, from the naturall countre and from the holy temple:) and not to suffre the people (which a lyte whyle afore beganne to recouer) to be subdued a-gaynst of the blasphemous nacions.

So when they had done this together, & C and besought the LORDE for mercy, with weppynge and fastinge thre dayes longe, flat vpon the grounde: Judas exorted them, to make them selues redy. But he and the elders together deuysed, to go forth first with their people, afore the kynge brought hys hoost in to Jewry, and afore he besieged the cite, & so to committe the matter vnto God.
Wherfore he ascryued the power of all thyn ges vnto God the maker of þ worlde, exhor tinge his people to fight manfully, (yee euē vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, þ cite, their owne natyue countre, & to defende the citesyns: & set his hoost before Modin. He gaue thē also that were with him, a token of the victory of God, chosinge out the mānest yonge men, wente by nyght in to the kinges pauylion, slewe of the hoost xviii. M. men, * and the greatest Elephantes, with those 1.Mac.6.f that sat vpon them.

Thus when they had brought a greate D feare & rumour amonge þ tentes of their enemies, & al thinges wente prosperously vñ them, they departed in the breake of þ daye.
God beynge their helper & defender. Now when the kynge perceaued the manlynesse of the Jewes, he wente aboute to take the stronge places by craft, & remoued his hoost vnto * Bethsura, which was a well kepte 2.Mac.11.a house of defence of þ Jewes: but they were chaced & wayte, hurte and discomfited. And Judas sent vnto them that were in it, such thynges as were necessary. In the Jewes hoost also there was one Rhodocus, which tolde the enemies their secretes: but they sought him out, and when they had gotten him, they put him in prison. After this dyd the kynge commune with thē þ were in Beth-sura, toke truce with thē, departed, & strodē a battayll with Judas, which ouer came him.

But when he vnderstode, that Philippe E (whom he had left to be ouerseer of his busynesses at Antioche) begāne to rebell agaynst him, he was astonied in his mynde: so that he yelded hymself to the Jewes, and made thē an oth, to do what so euer they thought ryght. Now when he was reconcyled with them, he offered, made much of the temple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, enbraced Machabeus, makynge hym captayne and gouernoure from Ptolomays vnto ȳ Gerrenes.

Neuertheleſſe when he came to Ptolomais, the people of the cite were not content with that bonde of frendſhippe: for they were afrayed, that he wolde breake the cõuenaũt Then wente Lyſias vp in to the ſeate, and enkourmed the people, ſhewed thẽ the cauſe why, and pacified thẽ. So he came agayne to Antioche. This is now the matter concernynge ȳ kynges iourney & his returne.

The.xiiii.Chapter

¶ AFter thre yeares was Judas enformed, how that Demetrius the ſonne of Seleucus was come vpon with a greate power and ſhippes, thorow the haven of Tripolis (to take certayne commodious places and countrees) agaynſt Antiochus and hys captayne Lyſias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hygh preſt, and wilfully defyled hymſelf, in the tyme of the myxtinge) ſeynge, that by no meanes he coulde be helped, nor haue ony more entraunce to the altar: he came to kynge Demetrius in the hundreth and one and fyfteth yeare, preſentinge vnto hym a crowne of golde, a palme & an olyue tre: which (as mẽ thought) belonged to the temple, & that daye he helde his tunge.

But when he had gotten oportunite for his madneſſe, Demetrius called hym to counſell, and ared him, what thynges or counſels the Jewes leaned vnto? He answered: The Jewes that be called Aſſidei (whoſe captayne is Judas Machabeus) mayntayne warres, make inſurrection, and wyl not let the realme be in peace.

¶ For I beynge depryued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hygh preſthode) am come hither: partely becauſe I was faythfull vnto the kynge, and partely becauſe I ſought the profit of the citezyns. And whyle all oure people (thorow the wickednelle of them) are not a litle troubled. Wherfore I beſeche ȳ (o kynge) conſidre al theſe thinges diligently, & then make ſome prouiſion for the lõde & the people, accordinge to the kyndnelle ȳ thou haſt offred vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the vpper honde, it is not poſſible that men can lyue in peace.

When he had ſpoken theſe wordes, other frendes alſo haynge euell will at Judas, ſet the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynſt him, * Which immediatly ſent Nicanor (ruler of the elephantes) a captayne, in to Jewry: commaũdinge hym, to take Judas hym ſelf alyue, but to ſlaye them that were with him, & to make Alcimus hygh preſt of the temple.

Then the Heythen which fled out of Jewry from Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes thynkynge the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now when the Jewes herde of Nicanors commynge, & the gatheringe together of ȳ Heythe: they ſprenckled thẽ ſelues vp earth, * & belought him (which made them his people, and euer defended his owne portion with euydent tokens) that he wolde preſerue them ſtill. So at the commaundement of the captayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Deſſalan. And Symon Judas brother fell in honde with Nicanor, but thorow the ſodane commynge of the enmies, he was afrayed.

Neuertheles Nicanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were with Judas, & the bolde ſtomackes that they had to fight for their naturall countre, durſt not preue the matter with bloudſheddinge. Wherfore he ſent Poſſidonius, Theodocius & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduyſement therupon, and the captayne ſhewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appointed a day to ſyt vpon theſe matters quyetly amonge the ſelues, ȳ ſtooles alſo were brought and ſet forth. Neuertheleſſe Judas cõmaunded certayne mẽ of armes to watch in conuenient places, leſt there ſhulde ſodenly aryſe any euell thorow the enemies. And ſo they commoned reſonably together.

Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jeruſalem, ordred hymſelf not vnreaſonably, but ſent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his harte, and fauoured hym. He prayed hym also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth chyldren. So he maried, lyued in reſt, and they led a comune lyfe. But Alcimus perceauynge the loue that was betwixte them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him ȳ Nicanor had take ſtraunge matters in honde, and ordened Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges ſucceſſoure. Then ȳ kynge was ſore diſpleaſed & thorow the wicked accuſations which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was ſo prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, ſayinge: that he was very angrie for the frendſhippe and agreement, which he hadde made with

Machabeus. Neuertheles he cõmaunded him in all ꝑ haist, ꝑ he shulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sende him to Antioche.

Which lettres when Nicanor had sene, he was at his wittes ende, and sore greued, wherin they had agreed: spectally, seynge Machabeus was the man, that neuer dyd hym harme. But because he might not with stande ꝑ kynge he sought oportunite to fulfill his commaundement. Notwithstondinge when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlish vnto him, and that he intreated him more rughly then he was wonte, he perceaued ꝑ such vnkindnes came not of good, & therfore he gathered a nũbre of his men, and withdrewe himself frõ Nicanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully preuented hym, he came in to the greate and moost holy temple: and commaunded the prestes (which were besyde their vsuall offeringes) to delyuer him the man. And when they sware that they colde no tell, where the man was whõ he sought, he stretched out his honde, * and made an ooth, sayenge: yf ye will not delyuer Judas captyue, I shal remoue this temple of God in to a playne felde, I shall breake downe ꝑ aulter, and consecrate this temple vnto Bachus. After these wordes he departed.

Then the prestes lift vp their hondes towarde heauen, and besought him that was ever the defender of their people, sayenge: Oure LORD of all, which hast nede of nothinge woldest that the temple of thy habitation shulde be amonge vs. Therfore now (o moost holy LORDE) kepe this house euer vndefyled, * which lately was cleused. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor one Razis, an Alderma of Jerusalem, a louer of the whole cite, and a man of good reporte: which for the kynde hart that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of ꝑ Jewes. This man oftymes (when the Jewes were compelled to kepe them selues vndefyled) defended and delyuered them, beynge content manfully to spende his body and his life for his people.

So Nicanor willinge to declare the hate that he bare to the Jewes, sent fyue hũdreth men to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he shulde bringe the Jewes in greate bondage. Now when the people beganne to assaile in at his house, to breake the dores, & to set fyre on it: he beynge now taken, wold haue defended himself with his swarde: chosynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde himself to those wicked doers: and because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte.

Notwithstondinge what tyme as he myssed of his stroke for hast, and the multitude fell in violently betwixte the dores: he rãne boldly to the wall, and cast himself downe manfully amonge the heape of them, which gaue soone place to his fall, so that he fell vpon his belly. Neuertheles whyle there was yet breath within him, he was kynded in his mynde: and whyle his bloude gushed out exceadingly (for he was very sore wounded) he ranne thorow ꝑ middest of the people, and gat him to the toppe of a rocke. So whẽ his bloude was now gone, he toke out his one bowels with both his hondes, and threw them vpon the people: callinge vpon the LORDE of lyfe and spirite, to reward him this agayne, and so he dyed.

The.xv. Chapter

NOw * when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the countre of Samaria, he thought with all his power to stryke a fride with hym vpon ꝑ Sabbath daye. Neuertheles the Jewes ꝑ were compelled to go with hym, sayed: O do not so cruelly and vnkyndly, but halowe the Sabbath daye, & worshyppe him that seyth all thynges. For all this, yet sayed the vngracious personne: * Is there a mightie one in heauen ꝑ commaunded the Sabbath daye to be kepte: And when they sayde: yee the lyuynge God, the mightie LORDE in heauen * cõmaunded the seuenth daye to be kepte, he sayde: And I am mightie vpon earth, to cõmaunde the for to arme the selues, & to performe the kynges busynesse. Notwithstondinge he might not haue his purpose.

Nicanor had deuysed with greate pryde to ouercome Judas, and to bringe awaye ꝑ victory. But Machabeus had euer a sure confidence & a perfecte hope in God, that he wolde helpe hym, & erhorted his people, not to be afrayed at the commynge of the Heithen but alwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yee and to be sure now also, ꝑ Almyghtie God wold geue thẽ the victory. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, puttinge them in remembraunce of the battayle, that they had stricken afore, and made them to be of a good corage.

So when their hartes were pricte vp, he shewed them also the deceatfulnesse of the heithen, and how they wolde kepe no cõue naunt no; ooth. Thus he weapened thẽ not with the armoure of shylde and speare, but with wholsome wo;des and exo;taciõs. He shewed them a dreame also, wherthoro;w he made them all glad, whych was thys: He thought that he saw Onias (which had ben hygh p;est, a vertuous & louynge man, sad, and of honest conuersacion, well spoken, & one that had bene exercised in godlynes frõ a childe) holdinge vp his hõdes toward hea uen, and p;ayenge fo; his people. After this there apeared vnto him another mã, which was aged, hono;able & glo;ious, And Onias saide: This is a louer of ỹ bretherẽ, and of the people of Israel. This is he ỹ p;ayeth much fo; the people, & fo; all the holy cyte: Jeremy the p;ophet of God. He thought al so ỹ Jeremy helde out his right hõde, & gaue him (namely vnto Judas) a swearde of golde, sayenge: Take this holy swearde, a gyfte frõ God, wherwith thou shalt smyte downe ỹ enemies of the people of Israel.

And so they were wel confo;ted tho;owe the wo;des of Judas, and toke co;age vnto thẽ, so ỹ the yonge men were determined in their myndes to fight & to byde stylly at it: In so much that in the thinges which they toke in honde; their boldnelle shewed ỹ same, because the holy cite and the temple were in parell: fo; the which they toke mo;e care, then fo; their wyues, childzen, bretheren, and kynfolkes. Agayne, they ỹ were in the cite, were mooste carefull fo; those which were to fight. Now when they were all in a hope ỹ the iugdment of the matter was at honde, and the enemies drew nye, the hooste beinge set in araye, the Elephantes and ho;semen euerypone stondynge in his place: Machabeus consydered the commynge of the mul titude, the o;dinaunce of dyuerse weapens, the crueltie of ỹ beastes, and helde vp his hondes towarde heauen, callinge vpõ the LORDE that doth wonders, * which ge- 2.Ma.14.c Judit.7.b ueth not the victo;y after the multitude of weapens & power of ỹ hooste (but to them ỹ please him) acco;ding to his owne wil. Ther fo;e in his p;ayer he sayde these wo;des.

4.Reg. 19.g Esa.37.f 1.Ma.7.c 2.Ma.8.b O LORDE, * thou ỹ dyddest sende thyne angel in the tyme of Ezechias kynge of Ju da & in the hooste of Sennacherib there were an hundzeth & fyue and foure scoze thousande: sende now also thy good angell befo;e vs (O LORDE of heauens) in the fearfulnesse & dzede of thy mightie arme, that they which come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme them, maye be afrayed. And so he made an ende of his wo;des. Then Nicano; & they that were wt hym, drewe nye with shawmes and songes: but Judas and his company with p;ayer and callinge vpon God,

With their hondes they smote, but with their hartes they p;ayed vnto the LORDE, and slew no lesse then xxxv. M. mẽ: Fo; thro;ow the p;esent helpe of God they were glo;iously comfo;ted.

Now wh̃ they left of, and were turnynge agayne with toye, they vnderstode that Nicano; himself was slayne with ỹ other. The they gaue a greate shoute and a crie, p;aysinge the almighty LORDE with a loude voyce. And Judas (which was euer ready to spende his body and life fo; his cities) commaunded to smyte of Nicano;s heade, with his arme and honde, and to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called all the people, and the p;estes at the aul ter with those that were in the castell, & shewed them Nicano;s heade, and his wicked honde, which he had p;esumptuously holde vp agaynst the temple of God. He caused the tunge also of that vngodly Nicano; to be cut in litle peces, and to be cast to ỹ fowles, and the cruel mans honde to be hanged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thankes vnto the LORDE, sayenge: blessed be he, that hath kepte his place vndefyled.

As for Nicano;s heade, * he hanged it vp vpon the hygh castell, fo; an euydent & playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye holy: namely the xiii. daye of the moneth Adar, which in the Syrians language is called ỹ nexte daye before Mardocheus daye.

Thus was Nicano; slayne, and from that tyme fo;th the Iewes had the cite in possession: And here wil I now make an ende.

All the generacions from Abraham to Dauid are fourtene generaciōs. Frō dauid vnto the captiuite of Babylon, are fourtene generacions. Frō the captiuite of Babylon vnto Christ are also fourtene generacions.

* * The byrth of Christe was on this wise C whē his mother Marye was maryed to Joseph & before they cam togither, she was Luc 1.b foūde wyth chylde by ỹ holy goost. But Joseph hyr husband was a perfecte man, and wold not bringe her to shame, but was mynded to put her awaye secretly. Neuertheles whyle he thus thought, & behold, the angel of the LORDE appeared vnto hym in a dreame, sayenge: Joseph * thou sonne of Luc, 2.a Dauid, feare not to take vnto ỹ Marye thy wyfe. For that which is conceaued in her, is of the holy goost. She shal bringe forth a Phi. 2.a sonne, * & thou shalt cal his name Jesus For Act. 4.a he shall saue his people frō their synnes.

Some rede & before they sat at home togither.

All this was done, that the thynge might be fulfylled, which was spoken of the LORD by the Prophet, sayenge: * Behold a mayde Esa. 7.c
shall be wyth chylde, and shal bringe forth a sonne, & they shal call his name Emanuel, which is by interpretacīō, God with vs.

Now whan Joseph awoke out of slepe he dyd as the angell of the LORDE bade hym and toke his wyfe vnto hym, & knewe her not tyll she hadde * brought forth hyr Luc. 2.a fyrst borne sonne, & called his name Jesus.

The.ii. Chapter.

WHen Jesus was borne at Bethleem in Jewry, in ỹ tyme of Herode the kyng, Behold there cā wyse men from the east to Jerusalem, sayenge: wher is the newborne kyng of the Jewes? we haue sene his starre i the east, & are come to worshyp hym

When Herode the kynge had herde thys he was troubled, and all Jerusalem wyth hym, and he gathered all the hygh Priestes & Scrybes of the people, and ared of them, where Chryst shuld be borne? And they sayd vnto hym: at Bethlee in Jeury. For thus it Mich.5.a. is written by ỳ prophet: * And thou Bethlee in the londe of Jeury, art not ỳ leest amõge the prynces of Juda: * For out of the shall Jhon.7.d. come vnto me the captayne, that shall gouerne my people Jsraell.

B Then Herode prcuely called the wyse men, and diligẽtly enquyred of them, what tyme ỳ starre appeared, & sent thẽ to Bethlem, sayenge: Go and searche dilygentlye for the chylde. And when ye haue founde hym, bryng me worde agayne, that J may come and worshyppe hym also.

When they had herde the kyng, they departed: and lo, the starre which they sawe in the east, went before thẽ, tyll it came & stode ouer the place where the chylde was. When they sawe ỳ starre, they were marueylously glad: and went into the house, and founde Psal.71.b the chylde with Mary his mother, * & kneled downe and worshypped hym, and opened theyr treasures, and offered vnto hym Esa.60.a. gyftes: golde, frankynsence and myrre. And after they were warned of god in a dreame, that they shulde not go agayne to Herode, they retourned into theyr owne countrey another waye. ✠

C ✠ Whan they were departed, beholde, the angell of the LORDE appeared to Joseph in a dreame, sayenge: Aryse, & take the Exo.4.d. chylde & his mother, and * flye in to Egypt and abyde there tyll J bryng ỳ worde. For Herode wyll seke the chyld, to destroy hym. Then he arose, and toke the chylde and his mother by nyght, & departed into Egypte, and was there vnto the death of Herode, ỳ the thynge myght be fulfylled whiche was spoken of the LORD, by the prophet, which Ose.11.a. sayeth * out of Egypte haue J called my Nu.24.c. sonne.

Then Herode perceauynge that he was deceaued of the wyse men, was exceadynge wroth, and sent forth, and slewe all the chyldren that were in Bethleem, and in all the coastes therof, as many as were two yeare olde and vnder, accordynge to the tyme whiche he had dilygently searched out of the wyse men.

Than was that fulfylled, whiche was spoken by the Prophet Jeremye sayenge:
Jere.31.c. * On the hylles was a voyce herde, greate mourninge, weppynge, and lamentacyon: Rachell weppynge for hyr chyldren & wolde not be cõforted, because they were not. ✠

D Whan Herode was dead: beholde, an angell of the LORDE appeared in a dreame to Joseph in Egypte, sayeng: Aryse & take the chylde & his mother, & go into the lande of Jsraell. For they are dead, which sought the chyldes lyfe. And he arose vp, and toke the chylde and his mother, & came into the londe of Jsraell. But whan he herde that Archelaus dyd raygne in Jeury, in ỳ rowm of his father Herode, he was afrayde to go thether. Notwithstandynge after he was warned of god in a dreame, he turned asyde into the partyes of Galile, and went and dwelt in a cytie called Nazareth, to fulfyll that whiche was spoken by the prophetes, * he shalbe called a Nazarite. ✠

IN those dayes came Jhon the * Baptist & preached in the wyldernis of Jeury, sayenge: & Amende your selues, the kyngdome of heauen is at hõde. * This * Jsa. is he, of whome it is spoken by the prophet * Esay, which sayeth: The voyce of a cryer in the wildernes, prepare the LORDES way, and make his pathes strayght.

* This Jhon had his garmẽt of camels heer, & a lethren gyrdell aboute his lopnes. & His meate was locustes and wylde hony. Then went out to hym Jerusalem, and all Jeury, & al the regyon rounde about Jordan and were baptysed of hym in Jordan, confessynge theyr synnes. ✠

✠✠ Nowe whã he sawe many of ỳ Pharises & of ỳ Saduces come to his baptyme, he sayd vnto thẽ, ye generacyon of vipers, who hath certifyed you, ỳ ye shall escape ỳ vengeaunce to come? Beware, bryng forth due frutes of penaũce. Thynke not now to say in youre selues, we haue Abrahã to our father. For J say vnto you, ỳ God is able of these stones to rayse vp chyldrẽ vnto Abraham. Euen nowe is the axe put vnto ỳ rote of the trees: therfore * euery tree which bryngeth not forthe good frute, shall be hewen downe, and cast into the fyre.

* J baptyse you w̃ water to repẽtaunce, but he ỳ cõmeth after me, is myghtyer than J, whose shues J am not worthy to bere. He shall baptyse you with the holy goost & w̃ fyre. * He hath also his fan in his hande, and wyll pourge his flore, and gather the wheate into his garner, & wyll burne the chaffe with vnquencheable fyre. ✠

✠✠ Then cã Jesus frõ Galile to Jordan vnto Jhõ, to be baptised of hym. But Jhon sayenge: * I haue nede to be and commest thou to me?

and sayde vnto hym: Let it becommeth vs to
. Then he suffred
Jesus alone as he was bapcame straight out of the water. And was open ouer hym: and Jhon
the spirite of God descende lyke a doue lyght vpon hym. And lo, there came a from heauen sayenge: * This is my

The. iiii. Chapter. ✣

Then * was Jesus led away of answered & sayd: it is wrytten: * Man

Agayne the deuyll toke hym vp and led him an exceadyng hye mountayne, and shewed hym all the kyngdomes of ỹ worlde, and all the glory of them, & sayd vnto hym:
all this will I gyue the yf thou wylte fall down & worshippe me. Then sayd Jesus vnto him: Auoyde Sathan. For it is wrytten: Thou shalt worshippe the LORDE thy God, him onely shalt thou serue.
Then the deuyll left hym, & beholde, * the angels came & ministred vnto hym. ✣ When Jesus had herde that Jhon was cast in, he departed into Galile, & and came downe, and went and dwelt in Capernaum which is a cytie vpō the see, in the coastes of Zabulon and Nephtalim, that the scripture might be fulfylled whiche was spoken by the prophete, sayenge: * The londe of Zabulon and Nephtalim, the waye of the see beyonde Jordan, and Galile of the gentyles, the people whiche sat in darke-nesse, saw a great lyght, and to them whiche sat in the regyon & shadowe of death, lyght is begonne to shyne. ✣

* From ỹ tyme forthe beganne Jesus to preache, and to say: & Amende your selues the kyngdome of heauen is at hande. C

✣ * As Jesus walked by the see of Ga-lile, he sawe two bretheren: Simon whiche was called Peter, & Andrewe his brother, castynge a net into the see (for they were fylshers), and he sayde vnto them: folowe me, and I wyll make you * fyllshers of me. And they streyght way lefte their nettes, and folowed hym.

And whan he went forth from thence,
he sawe other two bretheren, James the sonne of zebede, and Jhon his brother, in the shyppe with zebede their father, mendyng their nettes, and he called them * And they without tarryenge, lefte the shyppe and their father, and folowed hym. ✣

✣ * And Jesus went about all Galile, teachynge in their synagoges, and preachynge the gospell of the kyngdome, and healed all maner of sickenes, and all maner diseases amonge the people. And his fame spredde abrode through out all Syria. And they brought vnto hym all sycke people, ỹ were taken with dyuers diseases and gry-pynges, and them that were possessed with deuyls, and those which were lunatyke, and those that had the palsie: & he healed them.
* And there folowed hym a great nombre of people, from Galile ✣ & from the ten cityes, and from Jerusalem, and from the regyons that lye beyonde Jordan.

The names of the. xii. Apostles are these. The fyzst, Symon called Peter: & Andzewe his bzother. James the sonne of zebede, and Jhon his bzother. Philyppe & Bartelomew Thomas, and Mathewe the Publican. James the sone of Alphe, and Lebbeus otherwyse called Taddeus. Symon of Cana, & Judas Jscarioth, which also betrayed him.

tes: this is Jhon the baptyst.
He is rysen agayn from the dead and therfore are hys dedes so myghtie. * For Herode had taken Jhon, bounde hym, and put hym in prison for Herodias sake his brothers Philips wyfe. For Jhon sayde vnto hym: * It is not lawfull for the to haue her.
And fayne wolde he haue put hym to death, but he feared ỹ people * because they helde hym for a prophet.
But whan Herode helde his * byrth day
the daughter of Herodias daunced before them, and * that pleased Herode wel, wher fore he promysed her with an oth: that he wolde geue her, what so euer she wolde are.
And she (beyng instructe of hyr mother afor) sayde: geue me Jhon baptystes heade in a platter. And the kynge was sorry. Neuerthe les for the othes sake, and them that sat wt hym at the table, he commaunded it to be geuen her, and sent, and beheaded Jhon in the prison, And his head was brought in a platter, and geuen to the damsell, and she brought it vnto hyr mother. Then came his disciples, and toke hys body, and buryed
it, and wente and tolde Jesus.
* Whan Jesus herde that, he departed thence by shyppe in to a desert place alone.
* And whan the people herde therof, they fo lowed hym on fote out of the cyties. And Je sus went forth, and sawe much people, and had pitie vpon them, and healed theyr sycke.
But at euen came his disciples vnto hym, and sayde: This is a desert place, and the nyght falleth on: let the people depart from the, that they maye go in to the townes, and bye them vytayles. But Jesus sayde vnto them: They nede not go awaye, geue ye the to eate. Thē sayde they vnto him: We haue here but fyue loaues & two fyshes. And he sayde: bryng them hyther. And he comman ded the people to syt downe vpon the grasse, and toke the fyue loaues and two fyshes, & loked vp towarde heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake, and gaue the loues vnto the disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. And they all dyd eate, and were suffised. And they gathered vp of the broken meate ỹ remayned ouer twolue basketfes
ful. And they ỹ dyd eate, were about a fyue thousande men, beside wemen & chyldren.
* And strayght waye Jesus made his dis ciples to entre in to a shyppe, and to go ouer before hym, tyl he had sent the people away.
And whan he had sent ỹ people awaye, * he went vp in to a mountayne alone, to make hys prayer. And at euen was he there hymselfe alone. And the shyppe was already in the myddest of the see, & was tost wt waues, for the wynd was contrary. But in ỹ fourth watch of the nyght Jesus came vnto them, walkynge vpon the see. And whan his disci ples sawe hym goyng vpō the see, they were afrayed, sayenge: It is some spyrite, & cryed out for feare. But strayght way spake Jesus vnto them, and sayde: Be of good cheare, it is I, be not afrayed. Peter answered hym, and sayde: LORDE, yf it be thou, byd me come vnto the vpō the water. And he sayd: Come on thy way. And Peter stept out of ỹ shippe, and wente vpon the water, to come vnto Je sus. But whan he sawe a myghtie wynd, he was afrayed, and beganne to synke, & cried,

The.xv.Chapter. ✣

Mart.7.a THen came vnto him the scribes and pharises from Jerusalem, sayenge: Why do thy disciples transgresse the tradicions of ỳ elders? for they washe not theyr handes whan they eate bread. He answered and sayde vnto them: Why do ye transgresse the commaundement of God, because of youre owne tradicions? For God com-Exo.20.b maunded, sayenge: * Honoure father, and Deut. 5.c. and 27.c, mother. and he that curseth father and mo-& Pro.20.b ther, shall dye the death. But ye saye: & Eue ry man shall saye to father or mother. The thynge that I shulde helpe the withall, is geuen vnto God. By this is it come to passe that no mã honoureth his father or his mo ther ony more. And thus haue ye made the commaundement of God of none effecte, for youre owne tradicions. Ye ypocrytes, full well hath Esay prophecied of you, and Esay.29.c sayde: * This people draweth nye vnto me Ezech.33.f with theyr mouth, and honoureth me wyth theyr lyppes, how be it theyr hart is farre fro me. But in vayn do they serue me, whyle they teache such doctrines as are nothynge but the commaundementes of men.

And he called the people to hym, & sayde vnto them: Heare and vnderstonde. That which goeth in to the mouth defyleth not ỳ man: but that which commeth out of the mouth, defyleth the man.

B Then came hys disciples, and sayde vn C to hym: knowest thou ỳ the Pharises were offended, whan they herde thys sayeng? He Deut.5.c. answered, and sayde. * All plantes whiche my heauenly father hath not planted, shalbe plucked vp by the rotes. Let them go, they are the blynde leaders of the blynde. Whan one blynde leadeth another, they fall both in the dych.

Mart.7.b * Then answered Peter and sayde vnto hym: Declare vnto vs this parable. And Jesus sayde vnto them: Are ye yet then wy thout vnderstonding? Perceaue ye not, that what soeuer goeth in the mouth, descendeth downe in to the bely, and is cast out in to ỳ draught? But the thynge that proceedeth out of the mouth, commeth from the hart, and that defyleth the man. For out of the hart comme euell thoughtes: murther breakyng of wedlocke, whordome, theft, false wytnes, blasphemy. These are the thynges that defyle a man. But to eate with vnwashen han des, defyleth not a man. ✣

✣ ✣ And Jesus went out from thence, & C departed in to the coastes of Tyre and Sy- Mar.
don. And beholde, a woman of Canaan went out of the same coastes, and cried after hym, sayenge. O LORDE thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon me. My dough-ter is sore vexed with a deuell. And he answered her neuer a worde. Then came hys disciples vnto hym, and besought hym say enge. Sende her awaye, for she crieth after vs. But he answered, and sayde: * I am not Luc.
sent, but vnto the lost shepe of the houle of Jsraell. Not withstondynge she came, and fell downe before hym, and sayde, LORDE helpe me. He answered and sayde: It is not good, to take chyldrens bread, and to cast it vnto dogges. It is treuth LORDE, (sayde she) Neuertheles the whelpes eate of the crommes, that fall from theyr lordes table. Then answered IESVS, and sayde vnto her: O woman, greate is thy fayth, be it vnto the, euen as thou desyrest. And hyr doughter was made whole at the same houre. ✣

✣ And Jesus departed thence, and came nye vnto the see of Galile, and went vp in to a mountayne, and sat downe there. And there cam vnto hym much people hauynge with them, lame, blinde, domme, crepel, and other many, and cast them downe at IESVS fete. * And he healed the, in so muche that ỳ people wondred, to se the domme speake, ỳ crepell whole, the halte to go, and the blind to se. And they praysed the God of Jsraell.

* And IESVS called his disciples vnto hym, and sayde: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue continued with me now thre dayes, and haue nothinge to eate, and I wyll not let them departe fastynge, lest they perysshe in the waye. And hys disciples sayde vnto hym: Whence shulde we get so much bread in the wyldernesse, that we myght satisfie so much people? & IESVS sayde vnto the: How many loaues haue ye

They sayde: seuen loaues, and a few lytle fyshes. And he cõmaunded the people to syt downe vpon the grounde, and toke the seuen loaues, and the fyshes, and gaue thanks, and brake them, and gaue them to hys disciples, and hys disciples gaue them to ỹ people. And they all dyd eate, and were satisfyed. And they toke vp the broken meate that was lefte, seuen baskettes ful. And they that dyd eate, were foure thousand mẽ beyde wemen, and chyldren. ¶ And whã he had sent awaye the people, he went in to a shyp, & came in to ỹ parties of Magdala.

The.xvi.Chapter.

THen came the Pharises, and Saduces vnto hym, and tempted hym, requiring him to shew them a token from heauen.

* But he answered, and sayde: At euen ye saye it wyll be fayre wedder, for the skye is reed. And in the morynge, ye speake wyll be foule wedder to daye, for the skye is reed, and gloometh. O ye ypocrytes, ye can discerne the fashyon of ỹ skye: can ye not then discerne the tokens of these tymes also? * This euell and aduouterous generacyon seketh a token, and there shall no token be geuen them, but the token of the prophete * Jonas. So he lefte them, and departed.

¶ And when hys disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had forgotten to take bread wyth them: Jesus sayd vnto thẽ * Take hyde and beware of the leuen of the Pharises, and of the Saduces. Then thought they in thẽselues, sayenge: We haue take no bread wt vs. Whã Jesus perceaued ỹ: he sayde vnto thẽ: O ye of lytle fayth why are ye cõbred (in your myndes) because ye haue take no bread wt you? Do ye not yet perceaue? Remẽbre ye not those fiue loaues * when there were fyue thousande men, and how many baskettes toke ye vp? * No nor the seuen loaues when there were foure thousande men, and how many baskettes toke ye vp? Why perceaue ye not then, that I spake not to you of bread, when I sayde: beware of the leuen of the Pharises, and of the Saduces? Then vnderstode they, how that he bad not them beware of the leuen of bread, but of the doctryne of the Pharises, and of the Saduces.

¶ Then came Jesus in to the coastes of the cyte Cesarea Philippi, and axed hys disciples, & sayde: Whom do men saye that the sonne of man is? They sayde: Some saye that thou art Jhon the Baptist. Some, that thou art Elyas. Some, that thou art Jeremy, or one of the prophetes. He sayd to them But whom saye ye that I am? Then answered Symon Peter, and sayde: * Thou art Christ the sonne of the lyuynge God. And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto hym: Blessed art thou Symon the sonne of Jonas, for flesh and bloud hath not opened that vnto the, * but my father that is in heauen. And I saye to the: Thou art Peter, & vpon thys * rocke wyll I buylde my congregacion, and the gates of hell shall not preuayle agaynst it. And the keyes of heauen wyll I geue vnto the: * What soeuer thou shalt bynde vpon earth, shall be bounde also in heauen: And what soeuer thou shalt louse vpon earth, shalbe louse also in heauen. ¶ Then charged he hys disciples, that they shulde tell no man that he was IESVS CHRIST.

* From that tyme forth began Jesus to shewe vnto hys disciples, how that he must go vnto Jerusalem, and suffre many thynges of the elders, and of the hyghe prestes, and of the Scrybes, and be put to death, and ryse agayne the thyrd daye. But Peter toke hym aside, and began to rebuke hym, sayenge: LORDE, fauer thy self, let not thys happen vnto the. Neuertheles he turned hym aboute, and sayde vnto Peter: * Auoyd fro me Sathan, thou hyndrest me, for thou sauoureste not the thynges that be of God, but of men.

* Then sayde Jesus vnto hys disciples: yf ony man wyll folowe me: let him forsake hymselfe, and take vp hys crosse, and folow me. For who so will saue his lyfe, shall lose it, but who so loseth hys lyfe for my sake, shall fynde it. What helpeth it a mã though he wanne the whole worlde, and pet suffred harme in his soule? Or what cã a mã geue to redeme his soule withall? For it will come to passe, that the sonne of man shall come in the glory of his father with his angels, * & then shall he rewarde euery one accordinge to his dedes. Verely, I saye vnto you: * there stonde here some, which shall not tayst of death, till they se the sonne of man come in his kingdome.

The.xvii.Chapter. *

AND after sixe daies Jesus toke Peter, James, and Jhon his brother, and brought them vp, in to an highe mountaine out of the waye, and was transfigured before them: * and his face shone as the

AT the same tyme came ỹ disciples vnto IESVS, & sayd: who is ỹ greatest in ỹ kingdome of heauẽ? And IESVS called a child vnto him, & set him in ỹ middest among thẽ, and sayd: Verely I say vnto you: Except ye turne & become * as childrẽ, ye shall not entre in to ỹ kingdom of heauẽ: whosoeuer therfor hũbleth himself as this child, ỹ same is the greatest in the kingdom of heauẽ. Then came Peter vnto him, & sayd: LORD how oft shal I forgeue my brother, yͭ trespasseth against me? Seuē tymes? IESVS sayd vnto him: I say not vnto yͭ seuē tymes, but seuenty tymes seuē tymes. ✠. Therfor is yͭ kingdō of heauē lykened vnto a kyng, which wold reken with his seruaūtes. And whan he begā to reken there was brought vnto hi which ought hym tē thousand pound. AND it cam to passe, whē IESVS had ended these sayenges, he gat him frō Galile, & cā into the coastes of Iewry be yōd Iordan, & much people folowed hi & he healed thē ther. Then came vnto him yͭ Pharises & tempted him, & sayd vnto him: Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wyfe for ony maner of cause? He yͭ can cōprehende it, let him cōprehend it.

* Thē were brought vnto him yong chyldren, yͭ he shuld put his handes vpon them, & pray. And yͭ disciples rebuked thē. But IESVS sayd: Suffre the chyldren, & forbyd them not to come vnto me, for vnto such belōgeth yͭ kingdō of heauē. And whan he had layed his handes vpon them, he departed thence.

* And beholde, one came vnto him & sayd: Good master, what good shall I do, that I haue the euerlasting lyfe? He sayd vnto him Why callest thou me good? * there is none good, but God onely. about the eleuenth houre he went out, and founde other standynge ydle, and sayd vnto them. Why stonde ye here all the day ydle?
They sayd vnto hym: because no man hath hyred vs. He sayde vnto them: Go ye also in shall haue it. Now whan ỹ euen was come, the lorde of the vynyarde sayde vnto hys supposed that they shulde receaue more, and they also receaued euery man a peny. And whan they had receaued it, they murmured agaynst the housholder, and said: These last haue wrought but one houre and thou hast made the equall vnto vs, which haue borne

The.xxi.Chapter.

WHan they drewe nye vnto Jerusalem, & were come to Bethphage vnto mounte Oliuete, IESVS sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them. Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, and anone ye shall fynde an asse bounde and hyr foale with her: lowse them, and bryng them vnto me. And yf ony man saye ought vnto you, saye ye: the LORDE, hathe nede of them. And streyght waye he wyll let them go. But all this was done, that the thynge might be fulfylled whiche was spoken by the prophet, sayenge: * Tell the doughter of Syon: beholde, thy kynge commeth vnto the, meke, syttynge vpon an Asse and a foale of the Asse vsed to the yocke. The disciples wente, and dyd as IESVS commaunded them, and broughte the Asse and the foale, and layed theyr clothes vpon them, and set hym theron.

* But many of the people spred theyr garmentes in the waye: other cut downe braūches from the trees, and strowed them in the way. As for the people that went before and that came after, they cryed & sayde: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, * Blessed is he that commeth in the name of the LORDE. Osanna in the heyght.

* And whan he was come in to Jerusalem all the cyte was moued, and sayd: Who is this? And the people sayd: * This is IESVS the prophet of Nazareth out of Galile. And IESVS went in to the temple of God, and cast out all them that bought and solde in the temple, and ouerthrewe the tables of the money chaungers, & the seates of them that solde doues, and sayd vnto them: It is written: * My house shalbe called the house of prayer, but ye haue made it a denne of murtherers. The blynde also and the lame came vnto hym in the temple, and he healed them.

But whan the hye prestes and the scrybes sawe the wonders that he dyd, and the chyldren crienge in the temple and sayenge Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, they displeased, and sayde vnto hym: Hearest thou what these saye? IESVS sayd vnto them, yee, have ye neuer redde: * Out of the mouth of yonge babes and sucklynges thou hast ordeyned prayse? And he lefte them there, * and went out of the cyte vnto Bethania, and there abode ouer nyght.

* But in the morynge as he returned in to the cyte, he hungred. And in the waye he sawe * a fygge tre, and came vnto it, and founde nothynge theron, but leaues onely, and sayd vnto it: Neuer frute growe on the from hence forth. And immediatly ỹ fygge tre wythered awaye. And whan his disciples sawe that, they marueyled and sayde: How is ỹ fygge tre wythred away so soone? IESVS answered and sayd vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: * yf ye haue fayth and doute not, ye shal not onely do this with the fygge tre, but yf ye shall say vnto this mountayne: Auoyde, and caste thy selfe in to the see, it shall be done: * And what soeuer ye aske in prayer, yf ye beleue, ye shal receaue it.

✣ * And whan he was come in to the temple, the chefe prestes and the elders of the people came vnto hym (as he was teachynge) and sayde: * By what authorite doest thou these thynges? and who gaue the thys auctorite? IESVS answered and sayd vnto them: I wyll axe a worde of you also: whiche yf ye tell me, I in lykewyse wyll tell you, by what authorite I do these thynges: The baptyme of Jhon, whence was it? from heauen, or of men? Then thoughte they amonge them selues, and sayde: yf we saye it was from heauen, then shall he saye vnto vs: Why dyd ye not then beleue hym? But yf we saye it was of men, then feare we the people, * for euery man holde Jhon for a prophet. And they answered IESVS, and sayde: We can not tell. Then sayde he vnto them: Neyther tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thynges. ✣ But what thynke ye? ✣ A certayne man had two sonnes, and came to the fyrst, and sayde: Go thy waye my sonne, and worke to daye in my vynyarde. He answered and sayde: I wyll not, but afterwarde he repented, and wente. He came also vnto the seconde, and sayde lykewyse. And he answered and sayd: I wyll syr, And wente not. Whether of them twayne dyd the wyll of the father? They sayd vnto hym: the fyrste. IESVS sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you. The publicans and harlottes shall come in the kyngdome of God before you. * For Jhon came vnto you, and taught you the ryghte waye, and ye beleued hym not: but the publicans and harlottes beleued hym. As for you, though ye sawe it, yet were ye not moued with repentaunce, that ye myght afterwarde haue beleued hym.

brother. Lykewyse the seconde, and thyrde, vnto the seuenth. Last of all ꝑ woman dyed also. Nowe in the resurrecyon, whose wyfe shall she be of ꝑ seuen? For they all had her. IESVS answered and sayde vnto them: ye erre, and vnderstōde not the scryptures, nor the power of God. In the resurrecyō, they shall nother mary, nor be maryed, but are as the angels of God in heauen.

As touching the resurrecyon of ꝑ dead, haue ye not redde, what is spoken vnto you of God, whiche sayeth, * I am the god of Abraham, & the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob, yet is not God a God of ꝑ dead, but of the lyuyng. And whan ꝑ people herde ꝑ, they were astonyed at his doctryne.

 When the Pharises herde, that he had stopped ꝑ mouth of the Saduces, they gathered them selues together. And one of them (a Scrybe) tempted hym and sayde: Master, which is the chefest cōmaundemēt in the lawe? IESVS sayd vnto the: * Thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God with al thy hart, with all thy soule, & with al thy mynde: this is the pyncipall and greatest cōmaūdement. As for the seconde, it is lyke vnto it. * Thou shalte loue thy neyghboure as thy selfe. In these two cōmaundementes hange all the lawe and the Prophetes.

Nowe whyle the Pharises were gathered together, IESVS ared them, & sayd: What thynke ye of CHRIST? Whose sonne is he. They sayde Dauids. He sayde vnto them: howe then dothe Dauid in spyrite, call hym LORDE, sayeng: * The LORDE sayd vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my ryght hāde, vntil I make thyne enemyes thy fote stole. But the foolysh sayde vnto ỹ wyse: geue vs of youre oyle, for our lampes are gone out. The.xxvi.Chapter.

AND it came to passe whan IESVS had fynyshed all these wordes, he sayde vnto hys disciples: ✝ * ye knowe, that after two dayes shalbe Easter, and the sonne of man shalbe delyuered to be crucyfyed.

* Then assembled together the hyghe Prestes, and the Scrybes, and the elders of the people in to the palace of the hyghe Prest which was called Cayphas, & helde a councell, how they myght take IESVS by decease, and kyll hym. But they sayde: Not on the holy daye, lest there be an vproure in the people.

* Now when IESVS was at Bethany in ȳ house of Symō ȳ leper, ther cam vnto him a woman, which had a boxe of pretyous ointment, & poured it vpon his heade, as he sat at the table. Whā his disciples sawe it, they disdayned, & said: where to serueth this waste? This oyntment might haue ben wel solde, & geuen to the poore. Whan IESVS perceyued it, he sayd vnto thē: why trouble ye this woma? She hath wrought a good worke vpon me * for ye haue alwaye the poore wt

you, but me shall ye not haue alwayes.
Where as she hathe poured this oyntment vpon my body, she dyd it to bury me. Vere-ly I say vnto you: where soeuer this gospel shall be preached throwout all the world, there shall this also that she hathe done, be shewed for a memoryall of her.

Then one of the twolue (called Judas Iscariothe) * went vnto the hye prestes & sayd:
What will ye geue me, and I shall delyuer him vnto you? And they offred hym thirtye syluer pens. And from that tyme forth, he sought opportunyte to betraye hym.

* The fyrst day of swete breade came the disciples to IESVS, & sayd vnto hym: Where wilt thou yt we prepare for the, to eate the Easterlābe? He sayd: Go in to ye cyte to such a man, & say vnto hym: The mayster sendeth worde: My tyme is at hande, I will kepe my Easter by the with my disciples. And the disciples dyd as IESVS had appoynted them, and made ready the Easter lambe.

* And when euen he sat downe at the table with the twolue. And as they dyd eate, he sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: & One of you shall betraye me. And they were exceādyngly sorowfull, and beganne euery one of them to say vnto hym: Syr, is it I? & He answered & sayde: He that dyppeth his hande with me in the dysshe, the same shall betraye me. The sonne of man goeth forth, as it is written of hym. But wo vnto that man, by whome the sonne of man shalbe betrayed:
It had bene better for that man, yf he had neuer ben borne. Then Judas yt betrayed him, answered & sayde: Master is it I? & He sayd vnto hym: Thou hast sayd it.

* And as they dyd eate, IESVS toke the breade, gaue thankes, & brake it, & gaue it to his disciples, & sayd: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, & thanked, and gaue it them, & sayd: Drynke ye all therof, for this is my bloude of the newe testamente, yt is shedde for many for the remissyon of synnes. I say vnto you: I will not drynke henceforth of this frute of the vyne tre, vntyll that daye that I shall drynke it newe wt you in my fathers kyngdome.

* And whan they hadde sayde grace, they went forth vnto mount Olyuete. Then sayd IESVS vnto them: This nyght shall ye all be offended in me. For it is wrytten: * I will smyte the shepherde: & and the shepe of the flocke shal be scatred abrode. But after that I ryse agayne, * I will go before you in to Galile. Peter answered & sayde, vnto hym.
* Though all men shuld be offended in the,
yet will I not be offended. IESVS sayd vnto hym: Verely I saye vnto the. This same nyght before ye cocke crowe shalt thou denye me thryse. Peter sayd vnto hi: And though I shulde dye with the, yet will I not denye
the. Lykewyse also sayd all the disciples.

* Then came IESVS with them in to a felde which is called Gethsemane, & sayd vnto the disciples: Syt ye here, whyle I go ponder & praye. And he toke with hym Peter, & the two sonnes of zebede, & beganne to wexe sorowfull, & to be in an agonie. Then sayd IE-SVS vnto thē: * My soule is heuy euen vnto the death. Tary ye here, & watche with me.
* And he went forth a litle, & fell flat vpō his face & prayed sayenge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cup passe fro me: Neuerthelesse not as I wyl but as thou wylt. And he cam to his disciples, & found thē a slepe & said vnto Peter: What? coulde ye not watche with me one houre? watche and praye, that ye fall not in temptacyon. * The spryte is wyllynge, but the flesshe is weake.

* Agayne he wēt yt secōde tyme & prayed, sayeng: O my father, yf this cuppe can not passe awaye fro me (excepte I drynke of it)

them a slepe agayne, & theyr eyes were heuy.
And he left thē, & wēt forth agayne & prayed
the thyrde tyme, sayenge the same wordes.
Then came he to his disciples & sayd vnto them: Slepe on nowe: and take your reste.
Beholde, the houre is come, that the sonne of man shalbe delyuered in to the hondes of synners: Aryse, let vs be goyng. Beholde, he is at honde, that betrayeth me.

* Whyle he yet spake, lo, Judas one of the twolue came, & with hym a great mul-tytude with swerdes and staues, sent from the hye prestes & elders of the people. And he that betrayed hym, had geuen them a token sayenge: whome so euer I kysse, that same is he, lay handes vpon hym. And forth withall he came vnto IESVS, & sayd: Hayle Mayster, and kyssed hym. And IESVS sayde vnto hym: Frende, wherfore arte thou come: Then came they, and layed handes vpon IESVS, and toke hym. And

The.xxvij.Chapter.

VPon the morowe, all the hye prestes and elders of the people helde a cōsell agaynst IESVS, ỹ they myght put him to death, and bounde hym, and led hym forth, and * delyuered hym vnto Pontius Pylate the debyte.

When Judas which betrayed him, sawe this that he was condempned vnto deathe, it repented hym, and broughte agayne the thyrtye syluer pens to the hye prestes and the elders, and sayde: I haue done euell, in ỹ I haue betrayed innocente bloude. They sayd: What haue we to do wt that? See thou therto. And he dyd caste the syluer pens in the temple, and gat hym awaye, * and went and hanged hym selfe.

The hye prestes toke the syluer pens, and sayd: It is not lawfull to put them in-to ỹ gods chest, for it is bloude money. Neuertheles they helde a counsell, and bought with thē a potters felde, for to burye straū-gers in. Wherfore the same felde is called ỹ bloude feld vnto this day. Then was ỹ ful-fylled, which was spoken by Jeremi ỹ pro-phete, sayeng: * And they toke thyrtye syluer pens, the pryce of hym ỹ was solde, whome they bought of the chyldren of Israell: and these they gaue for a potters felde, as the LORDE commaunded me.

* As for IESVS, he stode before ỹ debyte & ỹ debite ared him, & said: Art thou ỹ kyng of ỹ Jewes? And IESVS sayd vnto him: Thou sayest it. And when he was accused of ỹ hye prestes & elders, he answered nothyng. Then said Pylat vnto him: Hearest thou not how sore they accuse the? And * he answered hym ant one worde: in so muche that the debyte marueyled exceedynglye.

¶ At that feast, ỹ debyte was wonte to delyuer a prysoner free vnto ỹ people, whom they wolde. And at ỹ same tyme he had a notable prysoner called Barrabas. And when they were gathered together, Pylate sayde vnto them: Whether wyll ye, that I geue lowse vnto you? Barrabas, or IESVS whiche is called CHRIST? For he knewe well, that they had delyuered hym of enuye. And whā he sate vpon the iudgement seate, his wyfe sent vnto hym, sayeng: Haue thou nothyng to do with that ryghteous man, for I haue suffred many thynges this day in a dreame because of hym.

* But the hye prestes and the elders persuaded ỹ people, that they shulde aske Barrabas, & destroy IESVS. * Then answered the debyte, & sayd vnto them. Whether of these two wyll ye that I geue louse vnto you? ¶ They sayd Barrabas. ¶ Pylate sayd vnto them: What shal I do than wt IESVS, which is called CHRIST? They sayde all: let hym be crucyfyed. The debyte sayd: What euell hath he done then. Neuertheles they cryed yet more, & sayde: let hym be crucifyed. So whā Pylate sawe, ỹ he coulde not helpe, but ỹ there was a greater vproure, he toke water, & washed his hādes before ỹ people, and sayde: I am vngylte of the bloude of this ryghteous mā, se ye therto. Then answered all ỹ people, & sayde: * His bloude come vpō vs, & vpon our childre. * Then gaue he Barrabas louse vnto thē, but caused IESVS be scourged, & delyuered him to be crucified

* Then the debytes souldyours toke IESVS in to ỹ comune hall, and gathered the whole multytude ouer hi, & stripped him out of his clothes, and put a purpell robe vpon hym, & plated a crowne of thorne, and set it vpon his heade, & a rede in his hande, & kneled before hym & mocked hym, and sayde: Hayle kynge of the Jewes. And spytted vpon hym, & toke the rede, & smote hym vpon the heade. And whan they had mocked hym they toke the robe of hym, and put his owne clothes vpon hym, and led hym forthe, that they myght crucyfye hym. * And as they were goynge out, they founde a man of Cyren called Symon: hym they compelled to beare his crosse.

* And whā they came vnto the place called Golgatha (ỹ is to say by interpretacyon, a place of dead mēs skulles) they gaue hym to drynke vyneger myxte wt gall. And when he had tasted therof, he wolde not drynke.

* So whan they had crucyfyed hym they parted his garmētes, & cast lottes therfore: ỹ the thynge myght be fulfylled, which was spoken by ỹ prophete: * They haue parted my garmētes amōge them, & cast lottes vpon my vesture. And there they sat, and watched hym. * And aboue ouer his heade, they put vp the cause of his death in wrytynge, namely: This is the kyng of the Jewes. Mar.15.c. Joh.19.c. Psa.22.b. Some rea de, * In whō I am pacified.

And there came a voyce from heuen: Thou art my dear sonne: ☞ in whom I delyte.

Mat.4.a. Luce.4.a.

* And immediatly the spyrete droue hym in to the wyldernes: and he was in the wyldernes foxty dayes, and was tempted of Sathan, and was with the wylde beastes. And the angels mynistred vnto hym.

Mat.4.b. Luce.4.b. Marc.6.b

* But after that Jhon was † taken IESVS came in to Galile, and preached the gospell of the kyngdome of God, and sayde. The tyme is fulfylled, and the kyngdome of God is at hande: Amende youre selues, and beleue the Gospell.

Math.4.c Luc.5.a.

* So as he walked by the see of Galyle, he sawe Symon and Andrew his brother, castynge theyr nettes in the see: for they were fyshers. And Jesus sayde vnto them, Followe me, and I wyll make you * fyshers of men. And immediatly they left theyr nettes, and folowed hym.

Jere.16.c. Ezec.47.b

And when he was gone a lytle further from thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and Jhon hys brother, as they were in the shyppe, mendynge theyr nettes. And anone he called them. And they lefte theyr father Zebede in the shyppe wyth the hyred seruauntes, and folowed hym.

Mat.4.b. Luce.4.b. Joha.2.b. Mat.7.c.

* And they wente in to Capernaum, and immediatly vpon the Sabbathes, he entred in to the synagoge, and taught. * And they were astonnied at his doctryn: for he taught them as one haupnge power, and not as the Scrybes.

Luce.4.b.

* And in theyr synagoge there was a mā possessed with a foule spyrete, whiche cried, & sayde: O what haue we to do with the, thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroye vs? I knowe that thou art that holy one of God. And Jesus reproued hym, and sayde: holde thy tunge & departe out of hym. And the foule spyrete tare hym, and cried wt a loude voyce, and departed out of hym. And they were all astonnyed, in so muche yᵗ they ared one another amonge them selues, and sayde: What is this? what new learnynge is this? For he commadūeth the foul spyretes with power, and they are obedyent vnto hym. And immediatly the fame of hym was noysed rounde aboute in the coastes, & borders of Galyle.

Mat.8.b. Luce.4.b.

* And forth wyth they wente out of the synagoge, and came in to the house of Symon and Andrew, wyth James, and Jhon And Symons mother in lawe laye and had the feuers, and anone they told hym of her. And he came to her, and set her vp, and toke her by the hande, and the feuer lefte her immediatly. And she mynistred vnto them.

Mark. Luce.

* At euen whan ỹ sonne was gone down they brought vnto hym all that were sycke, and possessed, and the whole cyte was gathered together at the doxe, and he healed many that were diseased wyth dyuerse sycknes and cast out many deuels, and suffred not ỹ deuels to speake, because they knewe hym.

And in the moxnynge before daye, he arose, and went out. And IESVS departed in to a desert place, and prayed there: Peter also, and they that were wyth hym folowed after hym. And whan they had founde hym, they sayde vnto hym: Euery man seketh the. And he sayde vnto them: Let vs go in to the nexte townes, that I maye preache there also, for therto am I come. And he preached in theyr synagoges, in all Galile, and droue out the deuels.

Mark. Luce.

* And ther came vnto him a leper, which besought hym, and kneled before hym, and sayde vnto hym: yf thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. And it pitied IESVS, and he stretched forth hys hande, and touched hym and sayde: I wyl, be thou cleane. And whan he had spoken, immediatly the lepxosy departed from hym, and he was clensed. * And IESVS forbad hym strately, and forth wyth sent hym awaye, and sayde vnto hym: Take hede, that thou saye nothynge to ony man, * but go thy waye, and shewe thy selfe vnto the preest, and offre for thy clensynge what Moses commaunded, for a wytnesse vnto them. But he whan he was departed, began to speake muche of it, and made the dede knowen: in so muche that IESVS coulde no moxe go in to the cyte openly, but was wythout in deserte places, and they came vnto hym from all quarters.

The.ii.Chapter.

Mat.

AND after certayne dayes * he went agayne vnto Capernaum and it was noysed that he was in the house. And immediatly there was gathered a great multytude, in so much that they had no rowme no not wythout the doxe. And he spake the woxde vnto them. And there came vnto him certaine, which broughte one sycke of the palsye boxne of foure. And when they could not come nye hym for the people, they vncouered the rofe of the house where he was. And whan they had made a hole, they let downe the bed (by coardes) wherin the sycke of ỹ palsy laye. But when IESVS sawe theyr fayth: he sayde vnto the sycke of ỹ pal-

fye. Thy sonne thy synnes are forgeuen the.
Neuertheles there were certayne scrybes which sat ther, and thought in theyr hartes how speaketh this man suche blasphemy-es? Who can forgeue synnes, but onely God?
And immedyatly IESVS knewe in hys spyrete that they thought so in them selues, & sayde vnto them: Why thynke ye such thynges in your hartes? Whether is easyer to saye to the sycke of the palsye: Thy synnes are forge uen the, or to saye: arise, take vp thy bed, and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue synnes vpon earth, he sayde vnto the sycke of ỹ pal sye: I saye vnto the. Aryse take vp thy bedde and go home. * And immediatly he arose, toke hys bedde, and wente forth before them
all: in so much that they all were astonnyed, & praysed God, and sayde: We neuer sawe lyke.

* And he wente forth agayne vnto the see, and all the people came vnto hym, and he taught them. And as IESVS passed by, he sawe Leui the sonne of Alpheus, syttynge at the receate of custome, and sayde vnto hym: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed hym. And it came to passe as he sat at the table in hys house, there sat many publicans and synners at the table wyth IESVS and his disciples: for ther were many that folowed
hym. And whan the scrybes, and Pharises sawe that he dyd eate wyth the publycans and synners, they sayd vnto hys disciples: Why doth he eate and drynke wyth the pub licans, and synners? Whã IESVS herde that he sayde vnto them: The whole nede not the physycyan, but they that are sycke. * I am not come to call the ryghteous, but the synners to repentaunce.

* And the disciples of Jhon, and of the Pharises fasted. And there came certayne which sayde vnto hym: why fast the disciples of Jhon, and of the Pharises, and thy disciples fast not? And IESVS sayde vnto them: How can the weddynge chyldren fast while the brydegrome is with them, so long as the brydegrome is wyth them, they can not fast. But the tyme wyll come that the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then shall they fast.

No man seweth a pece of new cloth vnto an olde garment, for els he taketh away the new pece from the olde, and so is the rent made. And no man putteth new wyne in to olde vessels, els the new wyne breaketh the vessels, and the wyne is spylt, and the vessels perysshe: but new wyne must be put in to newe vessels.

* And it chaunced that vpon the Sab- Mat.12.d

hys disciples beganne to make a waye tho-row, and to plucke the eares of the corne.
And the Pharises sayde vnto hym: Be-holde what thy disciples do, whiche is not lawfull vpon the Sabbath. And he sayde vnto them: haue ye neuer redde what Da-uid dyd, whan he had nede, and was anhon gered, both he, and they, that were wyth hym: * How he wente in to the house of 1.Re.21.b.
God in ỹ tyme of Abyathar the Prest, & dyd eate the shewbreades (which was lawfull for no man to eate but for the Prestes) and he gaue them vnto hym, and to them that were wyth hym. And he sayde vnto them:
The Sabbath was made for mans sake, and not man for the Sabbathes sake. Ther fore is the sonne of man LORDE euen ouer the Sabbath.

AND he wente agayne also * in to Mat.12.d
the synagoge, and there was a Luce.6.d man that had a wythered han-
de. And they marked hym whether he wolde heale hym on the Sabbath, that they myght accuse hym. And he sayde vnto the man wyth the wythered hande: Steppe forth here. And he sayde vnto them: is it lawfull to do good on the Sab bath? Or is it lawfull to do euell? to saue lyfe, or to kyll? But they helde their tunge.
And he loked rounde aboute vpon them wyth wrath, and was sory for the harde hartes of them, and sayde vnto the man: Stretch out thyne hande, and he stretched it out, and * hys hande was made whole Mat.12.b

* And the Pharises wente out, and Mat.12.b

rodes officers, agaynst hym, how they myght destroye hym. But IESVS departed awaye wyth hys disciples vnto the
see. * And there folowed hym muche peo- Luce.6.d ple out of Galyle, and from Jewry, and from Jerusalem, and out of Idumea, and from beyonde Jordane, and they that dwell aboute Tyre and Sydon, a greate multytu de which had herde of hys noble actes, and came vnto hym.

And he spake vnto hys disciples, that they shuld kepe a shyppe for hym, because of the people, lest they shulde thrunge him, for he healed many of them, in so much, that all they wyth were plaged, preassed vpon hym, Luce.4.c. that they myght touch hym. * And whā the foule spyrites sawe hym, they fell downe before hym, & cryed, & sayd: Thou art ỹ sonne of God And he charged them strately, that they shulde not make hym knowen.

Mat.10.a Luce.6.b. and.9.a. Actu.1.a. * And he wente vp in to a mountayne, & called vnto hym whom he wolde, and they came vnto him. And he ordeined the twolue that they shulde be wyth hym, and that he myght sende them out to preache, and that they myght haue power to heale sycknesses, and to cast out deuels. And vnto Symon he gaue the name Peter, and James the sonne of zebede, and Jhon the brother of James and gaue them the name Bonarges that is to saye, the chyldrē of thonder: and Andrew and Philippe, and Bartholomew, and Mathew, and Thomas, and James, the sonne of Alpheus, and Taddeus, and Symon of Cana, and Judas Iscarioth, which betrayed hym.

And they came to the house. Then assembled the people together agayne, in so much that they had no leasure to eate. And whan they that were aboute hym herd of it, they wente out and helde hym. For they sayde: Some dea le: he wyl go out of hys wytte. & he taketh to much vpon hym. But ỹ scrybes that were come downe from Jerusalem sayde: & He hath Belzebub, and thorow the chefe deuell casteth he out deuyls, and he called them together, and spake vnto them in symplytudes.

Mat.12.a Luce.11.b

How, can one Sathan dryue out another? And yf a realme be deuyded in it selfe, how can it endure? And yf a house be deuyded agaynst it selfe, it can not contynue. & Sathan now ryse agaynst hymselfe, and be at variaunce wyth hymselfe, he can not endure, but is at an ende. Noman can entre in to a stronge mans house, and take away his goodes, excepte he fyrst bynde the stronge man, and then spoyle his house.

Mat.12.a Luce.12.a Joh.5.d

Verely I say vnto you: All synne shalbe forgeuen the chyldren of mē, and the blasphemy also wherwith they blaspheme. * But who so blasphemeth the holy goost, hath neuer forgeuenes, but is gylty of the euerlastynge iudgement. For they sayde: He hath an vncleane spyrete.

Mat.12.c Luce.8.c. * And there came hys mother, and his brethren, and stode wythout, and sent vnto hym, and called hym. And the people sat aboute hym, and sayde vnto him: Behold, thy mother, and thy brethren are after the wythout. And he answered, and sayde: Who is my mother, and my brethren? And he loked rounde aboute hym vpon hys disciples, whiche sat rounde in compasse aboute hym, and sayde: Beholde, my mother and my brethren. For who so euer doth the will of God the same is my brother, and my syster, and my mother.

The.iiij. Chapter.

AND * he beganne agayne to teach by the see syde: & there gathered much people vnto hym, so that he wente in to a shyppe, and sat vpon the water. And all the people stode vpon the londe by the see syde. And he preached longe vnto them by parables, and sayde vnto them in hys doctryne: Herken to, beholde, there wente out a sower to sowe: & it happened whyle he was sowyng, that some fell by the way syde. The came the foules vnder the heauen, and dyd eate it vp. Some fell vpon the stonye ground where it had not much earth: and anone it cam vp, because it had not depe earth. Now whan the sonne arose, it caught heate: and in so much as it had no rote, it wythered awaye. And some fell among the thornes and the thornes grewe vp, and choked it, and it gaue no frute. And some fell vpon a good grounde, which gaue frute, that came vp, & grewe, And some bare thyrty folde, and some syxtie folde, and some an hundreth fold, and he sayde vnto them: Who so euer hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

* And whā he was alone, they that were aboute hym wyth the twelf, axed hym concernynge this parable. And he sayde vnto them: Vnto you it is geuē, to knowe the mystery of the kyngdome of God: but vnto thē that are wythout, all thynges happen by parables, * that wyth seynge eyes they maye se, and not dyscerne: and that wyth hearinge eares they maye heare, and not vnderstonde lest at ony tyme they turne, and their synnes be forgeuen them. And he sayde vnto them: Vnderstonde ye not this parable? How wyl ye then vnderstonde all other parables?

* The sower soweth the worde. These be they that are by the waye syde where ỹ word is sowē, and as soone as they haue herde it, immediatly commeth Sathan, and taketh awaye the worde that was sowen in their hartes. And lykewyse are they that are sowē on the stony grounde: whiche whan they haue herde the worde, receaue it wyth ioye, and haue no rote in them: but endure for a tyme. Whan trouble and persecucyon aryseth for the wordes sake, immediatly they are offended. And these are they ỳ are sowen amonge the thornes: whiche heare the worde and the carefulnes of this worlde, and the deceitfulnes of ryches, and many other lustes entre in, and choke the worde, and so is it made vnfrutefull. And these are they that are sowen vpon a good grounde: Which heare the worde, and receaue it, and bringe forth frute: some thyrty folde, and some syxty folde, and some and hundreth folde.

* And he sayde vnto them: Is a candell lighted to be put vnder a bushell, or vnder a table? Is it not lighted, to be set vpon a candelsticke? * For there is nothynge hyd, but shall not be openly shewed: and ther is nothynge secrete, that shall not be knowen. Who so hath eares to heare, let hym heare. And he sayd vnto them: Take hede what ye heare, * wyth what measure ye mete, wyth the same shall it be measured vnto you again. And vnto you that heare thys, shall more be geuen. * For who so hath, vnto hym shalbe geuen: and who so hath not, frō hym shalbe taken awaye, euen that he hath.

And he sayde: The kyngdome of God is after thys maner, as whan a man casteth seed vpon the londe, and slepeth, and ryseth vp nyght, and daye, * and the sede springeth vp, and groweth, he not knowing of it. (For the earth bringeth forth frute of herself: fyrst the grasse, afterwarde the eare then the full wheate in the eare.) But whan she hath brought forth the frute, he putteth to the sickell, because the haruest is come.

And he sayde: where vnto wyll we lyken the kyngdome of God? Or by what symilitude wyll we compare it? * It is lyke a grayne of mustarde seed, whiche whan it is sowen vpon the londe, is the least among all seedes of the earth. And whan it is sowen it groweth vp, and is greater then all herbes, and getteth greate braunches, so that the foules vnder the heauen maye dwel vnder the shadowe therof.

* And by many suche parables he spake the worde vnto them, there after as they myght heare it, and wythout parables spake he nothynge vnto them: but vnto his disciples he expounded all thynges priuately. * And the same daye at euen he sayde vnto them: let vs passe ouer. And they lete the people go, and toke hym as he was in the shyppe. and there were moe shyppes with hym. And there arose a greate storme of wynde, and dashed the wawes in to the shyppe, so that the shyppe was full. And he was behynde in the shyppe, and slepte vpon a pelowe. And they awoke hym, and sayde vnto hym: Master, carest thou not, that we perysshe? And he arose, and rebuked the wynde, and sayde vnto the see: Peace, and be styll. And the wynde was layed, and ther folowed a greate calme. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye so fearfull? How is it, that ye haue no fayth? And they feared exceadyngly, and sayde one to another: What is he thys? For wynde and see are obedyent vnto hym.

The.v.Chapter.

AND * they came ouer vnto the other syde of the see in to the countre of the Gadarenytes. And whan he went out of the shyppe, there met hym a man possessed of an vncleane spyrete, whiche had hys dwellynge in the graues. And no mā coulde bynd hym, no not wyth cheynes: for he was ofte bounde wyth fetters, and chaynes: and pluct the chaynes in sunder, and brake the fetters in peces, and noman could tame hym. And he was alwaye both daye, and nyght vpon the mountaynes, and in graues crienge, and beatyng hymselfe with stones. But whan he sawe IESVS a farre of, he ranne, and fell downe before hym, and cryed loude, and sayd: * What haue I to do wyth the O IESVS thou sonne of the hyghest God? I charge the by God, that thou torment me not. Neuertheles he said vnto him Go out of the man thou foule spyrete. And he axed hym: What is thy name? And he answered and sayde: My name is Legion, for there be many of vs. And he prayed hym instantly, that he wolde not sende them awaye out of that countre.

* And euen there in the mountaynes there was a greate heard of swyne feedynge, and all the deuels prayed hym, and sayde: Let vs departe in to the swyne. And anone IESVS gaue them leaue. Then the foule spyretes went out, and entred in to the swyne And the heard of swyne ranne headlynges in to the see, wyth a storme. They were aboute a two thousand swyne, and were drowned in the see.

And the swyne heardes fled, and tolde it in the cyte, & in the countre. And they wente out for to se what had happened, and came to IESVS, and sawe hym which was possessed and had had the legion, that he sat, and was clothed, and in hys ryght mynd, & they were afrayed. And they that had sene it, told them what had happened to the possessed, and of the swyne.

And they beganne to prye hym, that he wolde departe out of their coastes. And whā he cam in to the shyppe, the possessed prayed hym, that he myght be wyth hym.

Neuertheles IESVS wolde not suffre hym, but sayde vnto hym: Go in to thy house and to thyne owne, and tell them how great benefytes the LORDE hath done for the, & how he hath had mercy vpō the. And he wēt hys waye, and beganne to publish in the ten cyties, how greate benefytes IESVS had done for hym. And euery mā maruayled.

C * And whan IESVS passed ouer agayn by Mat.9 c. Luce. 8.e shyppe, there gathered muche people vnto hym, and was by the see syde. And beholde, there came one of the rulers of the synagoge, whose name was Jayrus. And whan he sawe him, he fel down at hys fete: & besought hym greatly, and sayde: My doughter is at the poynte (of death) let it be thy pleasure to come and laye thyne honde vpon her, that she maye be whole and lyue. And he wente wyth hym, and muche people folowed him, and thronged hym.

Math.9.c. Luce.8.f. * And there was a woman, whiche had had the bloudy yssue twelfe yeares, and had suffred much of many physycians, and spent all that she had, and was not helped, but rather in worse case. Whan she herde of IESVS, she came behynde amonge the people, & touched hys garment. For she sayd: yf I maye but touche his clothes, I shall be whole.

And immediatly the fountayne of hyr bloude was dryed vp, and she felte in hyr bodye, that she was healed of the plage.

D And forthwith IESVS felt in hym selfe the power that was gone out of hym, & turned hym aboute amonge the people, and sayde. Who hath touched my clothes? And hys disciples sayde vnto hym: Thou seyst that þ people thrusteth the, and sayest: who hath touched me? And he loked aboute to se her, that had done it.

As for the woman, she feared, and trembled (for she knewe what was done in her,) and came and fell downe before hym, and tolde hym the whole treuth. And he sayde Luce. 7.e. vnto her: * Doughter thy fayth hath made thy whole: go thy waye in peace, and be whole of thy plage.

Math.9.c Luce.8.f. * And whyle he yet spake, there came certaine from the ruler of the synagoges house and sayde: Thy doughter is dead why troublest thou the master ony more? But IESVS herde ryght soone the worde that was spoken, and sayde vnto the ruler of the synagoge: Be not thou afrayed, beleue onely.

And he suffred no man to folowe him, but Peter, and Jāmes, and Jhon hys brother. C And he came in to the ruler of the synagoges house, and sawe the busynes, and them that wept and wayled greatly, and he wente in, & sayd vnto thē: Why make ye this ado, & wepe? The mayde is not dead, but * sleepeth. Jo.

And they laughed hym to scorne. * And he droue them all out, and toke the father, & mother of the mayde, and them that were wt hym, and wente in where the mayden laye. And he toke the mayden by the hande, and sayde vnto her: Thabita cumi (whiche is by interpretacion) Mayden, I saye vnto the: Aryse. * And immediatly the mayden arose and walked. She was twelfe yere olde, and they were astonnied out of measure. And he charged them strately, that no man shulde knowe of it, and sayde vnto them, that they shulde geue her to eate.

AND * he departed thence, and came in to hys owne countre, & hys disciples folowed him. And whan the Sabbath came, he beganne to teach in theyr synagoge. And many that herde it, maruayled at hys learnynge, and sayde: Frō whence hath he these thynges? And what wysdom is this that is geuē him, and such actes as are done by hys handes? Is not this the Carpenter the sonne of Mary, and the brother of James, and Joses, and of Jude and Symon? Are not hys systers here wyth vs also? And they were offended at hym. But IESVS sayde vnto thē *: A prophet is no where lesse set by then in hys owne countre, and at home amonge hys owne. And he coulde not there one mpracle there, but layed hys hādes vpō a few sycke, and healed them. And he maruayled at theyr vnbeleefe.

* And he wente aboute in the townes on euery syde, and taught them. And * called þ twolue, & began to send thē two & two, and gaue them power oure the vncleane spretes And commaunded them, that they shulde take nothynge wyth them towarde theyr journey, saue onely a rodde: no scrippe, no bread, no money in the gyrdell, but shulde be shod wyth sandales, and that they shulde not put on two cotes. And he sayde vnto thē B Where so euer ye shall entre in to an house, there abyde, tyll ye go thence. And * who so euer wyll not receaue you, nor heare you, departe out from thence, and shake of the dust from youre fete, for a wytnesse vnto them. * I saye vnto you, verely: It shall be easyer for Sodome & Gomorra in ỳ day of iudgment, then for that cyte.

* And they wente forth, and preached that men shulde amende them selues, and they cast out many deuyls: and many that were sycke anoynted they wyth oyle, and healed them.

* And it came to kynge Herodes eares (for his name was now knowne, and he sayde. Jhon the baptist is rysen agayn frō sayde: It is a prophet, or one of the prophetes. But when Herode herde it, he sayde: It is Jhon, whom I beheaded, he is rysen a-gayne from death. + This Herode had sent forth, and taken Jhon, and put hym in pre son, because of Herodias hys brother Phylippes wyfe, for he maryed her. Neuertheles Jhon sayde vnto Herode: * It is not lawfull for the to haue thy brothers wyfe.

But Herodias layed wayte for hym, and wolde haue slayne hym, and coulde not.
For wythstondinge Herode feared Jhon, for he knew that he was a iust and holy mā

And immediatly he sent the hangman, and commaunded his heade to be brought in. So he went, and beheaded hym in the prison, and brought hys heade in a platter and gaue it vnto the damsell, and the dam-sell gaue it vnto hyr mother. And whan his disciples herde that, they came and toke his body, and layed it in a graue. ✠

* And the Apostles came together vnto Mat.14.b Luce.9.b.
IESVS and tolde hym all, and what they had done and taught. And he sayde vnto them: Let vs go out of the waye in to the wyldernes, and reste a lytle. For ther were many commers, and goers, and they had not tyme ynough to eate. And then he passed by shyppe out of the waye in to a desert place. And the people sawe them departynge awaye, and many knewe of it, and ranne thyther together on fote out of all cy-ties, and came before them, and came vnto
hym. * And IESVS wente out, and saw Math.9.d muche people, and had compassyon vpon them: for they were, * as the shepe, ỳ haue Ezec.34.a

Now whan the daye was farre paste, hys disciples came vnto hym, and sayde:
This is a deserte place, * let them depart Mat.14.b that they maye go in to the villagies, and townes round aboute, and bye them selues bread, for they haue nothynge to eate. But IESVS answered, and sayde vnto them:
geue ye them to eate.

And they sayde vnto hym: Shall we go then, and bye two hundreth peny worth of bread, and geue them to eate? He sayde vnto them: * How many loaues haue ye? Go Mat.8.a. and se. And when they had searched, they sayde: Fyue, and two fyshes. And he commaunded them all to syt downe by tables fulle vpon the grene grasse. And they sat down here a rowe, and there a rowe by hun dredes, and by fyftyes. And he toke the fyue loaues and two fyshes, and loked vp vnto heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake the loaues, and gaue to the disciples, to set before them. And the two fyshes parted he amonge them all. And they all dyd eate, and were satysfyed. And they toke vp twolue baskettes full of the broke peces and of the fyshes. And they that dyd eate, were aboute fyue thousande men. * And anone he cau Mat.14.c Joha.6.b. sed hys disciples to go in to the shippe, and to passe ouer before hym vnto Bethsayda, whyle he sent awaye the people. And whan he had sent them awaye, he went vp in to a mountayne to make hys prayer. + And at euen was the shippe in the myddest of the sawe that they were in parell with rowyng for the wynde was agaynst them.

And aboute ỳ fourth watch of the night
he came vnto them, & walked vpon the see, & wold haue gone ouer by them. And whan they sawe hym walkinge vpon the see, they thought it had bene a spyrte, and cried out, for they sawe him al, & were afraied. But im-

they were passed ouer, they came in to ỹ lõde

whã they were come out of ỹ shippe, imme-diatly they knewe him, & ranne thorowe out all ỹ regyon about, & began on euery syde to bring vnto him in beddes such as were sick, where they herde ỹ he was. And whyther soeuer he entred in to townes, cyties or vyllages, there layed they the sycke in ỹ market place, and prayed him, that they myght but

Mat.15.a. AND there came vnto hym * the Pharises & certayne of ỹ scrybes, ỹ were come frõ Ierusalẽ.
And whan they sawe certayne of his disciples eate bread wt comune (ỹ is, wt vnwasshen) hãdes, they cõ-playned. For ỹ Pharises & all ỹ Iewes eate not, except they wash their hãdes oftetimes: obseruyng so ỹ traditions of ỹ elders. And whan they come from the market, they eate not, except they wash. And many other thin-ges there be, whiche they haue taken vpon
the to obserue, as the washyng of cuppes, and cruses, and brasen vessels, and tables.

Then the Pharises & scrybes axed hym:
Why walke not thy disciples after ỹ traditions of ỹ elders, but eate bread wt vnwas-shen hãdes? But he ãswered & said vnto the:
Full well hath Esay prophecied of you ypo-crytes, as it is wrytte: This people honoureth me with their lyppes, but their hart is farre frõ me. But in vayn do they serue me, whyle they teach such doctrynes as are nothing but ỹ cõmaũdemẽtes of men. ye leaue the cõmaundement of God, & kepe ỹ traditions of men, as ỹ washyng of cruses, and cuppes, and many suche thynges do ye.

B And he sayd vnto the: How goodly haue ye cast asyde the cõmaundement of God, to mantayne your owne traditions? For Mo-Exo.20.b. ses sayd: * Honour father & mother, & Who Deut.5.c. so curseth father & mother, shall dye ỹ death.
& Exo.21.b But ye say: A man shall say to father or mother: Corban, that is: The thynge that I shulde helpe the withall, is geuen to God.
And thus ye suffre him no more to do ought for his father or mother, and make Gods worde of none effecte, thorowe youre owne traditions that ye haue sette vp, and many suche thynges do ye.

* And he called vnto hym all the people, & sayd vnto them: Herken vnto me ye all, and vnderstande me. There is nothynge without a man, ỹ can defyle hym, whã it entreth in to him. But ỹ that goeth out of hym, that is it that maketh the man vncleane. ỹ If ony man haue eares to heare, let him heare. And whan he came from ỹ people into the house,
his disciples axed hym of this symylytude.
And he sayd vnto them: are ye so then without vnderstandynge? Perceaue ye not yet, that euery thynge whiche is without, and goeth in to the mã, can not defyle hym? For it entreth not in to his harte, but into the bely, and goeth out in to the draught, that pourgeth all meates.

And he sayd: The thynge that goeth out C of the man, that defyleth the man. For from within out of the harte of man procede euell thoughtes, aduoutry, whordome, murther, theft, couetousnes, wyckednes, deceate, vn-clennes, a wycked eye, blasphemye, pryde, foolysshnes. All these euell thynges go frõ within, and defyle the man.

* And he arose, & wente from thence in to the borders of Tyre & Sydon, and entred in to an house, & wold let no man knowe of it, & yet coulde he not be hyd: For a certayne woman (whose doughter had a foule spryte) herde of hym, and came, & fell downe at his fete (and it was an Heythen womã of Sy-rophenices) and she besought hym, that he wolde dryue out the deuell from hyr dough-
ter. But IESVS sayd vnto her: Let ỹ chyldren be fed fyrst: It is not mete to take the childrens bread, & to caste it vnto dogges.
She answered & sayd vnto hym: ye LOR-DE, neuertheles the whelpes also eate vnder the table of the childrens crommes.

And he sayde vnto her: Because of this D sayeng, go thy waye, the deuell is departed out of thy doughter. And she went vnto hyr house, founde that the deuell was departed, and hyr doughter lyenge on the bed.

✣ And whan he went out agayne frõ the coastes of Tyre & Sydon, he came vnto the see of Galile, thorow ỹ myddes of ỹ coastes of the ten cyties. * And they brought vnto hym one that was deaf, & had impedyment in his speache. And they prayed hym, that he wolde laye his hande vpon hym.

And he toke him asyde frõ the people, and put his fyngers in his eares, & dyd spyt, and touched his tung, & loked vp vnto heauen, syghed, & said vnto hym: Ephata, that is, be opened. And immediatly his eares were opened, & the bonde of his tunge was lowsed and he spake ryght. * And he charged them, that they shulde tell no man.

But the more he forbad them, the more they publyshed it, & maruayled out of measure, and sayde: * He hathe done all thynges well. The deaf hath he made to heare, and the domme to speake. ✠

The.viii. Chapter. ✠

IN the same tyme * whan there was muche people there & had nothynge to eate, IESVS called his disciples to hym, & sayd vnto them: I haue cõpassyon vpon the people, for they haue taryed with me now thre dayes, & haue nothyng to eate. And yf I let thẽ go home fro me fastynge, they shulde faynte by ỹ waye. * For some of them were come from farre. And his disciples answered hym: Where shulde we get bread here in ỹ wyldernesse to satisfye thẽ? And he ared thẽ: * Howe many loaues haue ye? They sayd: Seuen. And he cõmaũded ỹ people to syt downe vpon ỹ groũde. And he toke ỹ seuen loaues & gaue thankes, & brake them, & gaue them vnto his disciples to set them before ỹ people. And they had a fewe small fyshes, & whã he had geuen thãkes, he bad set ỹ same before the people. They dyd eat, & were satisfied & toke vp seuẽ baskettes full of the broken meate ỹ was left. And they that dyd eate, were vpõ a foure thousande. And he sent them awaye. ✠

And forthwith he went in to a shyp with his disciples, & came in to ỹ coastes of Dalmanutha. * And the Pharises went out, & beganne to dispute with hym, and tempted hym, and desyred a token of hym from heauen. And he syghed in his spryte, and sayde: * Why doth this generacyon seke a token? Verely I saye vnto you: There shall no token be geuen vnto this generacyon. And he lefte them, & went agayne in to the shyppe, and passed ouer.

* And they forgat to take bread with them, & had no more with thẽ in the shyppe but one loafe. And he cõmaunded them and sayd: Take hede and beware of the leuen of the Pharises, & of the leuen of Herode. And they myndes wauered here & there, & sayde amonge thẽselues. This is it, that we haue no bread, & IESVS vnderstode that, & sayd vnto them: Why trouble ye your selues, ỹ ye haue no bread: Are ye yet without knowlege & vnderstandynge? Haue ye yet a blynded hart in you? Haue ye eyes, & se not? and haue ye eares, & hear not? and remembre ye not, * that I brake fyue loaues amõge fyue thousãde, howe many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde, twolue. And * whã I brake ỹ seuen amõge ỹ foure thousãde, howe many baskettes full of brokẽ meate toke ye then vp? They sayd: seuen. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye then without vnderstandynge? C Mar.6.f. Joha.6.a.

✠ And he came to Bethsayda, and they brought one blynd vnto hym & prayed hym to touche hym. And he toke the blynde by ỹ hande, & led him out of the towne, & dyd spyt in his eyes, & layed his handes vpon hym, and ared hym whether he sawe ought? And he loked vp, and sayde: I se men goynge as yf I sawe trees. After this he layed his handes vpõ his eyes agayne, and made hym to se. And he was brought to ryght agayne, & sawe all clearly. And he sent hym home, and sayde: Go not into the towne, and tell it also vnto no man therin. ✠ D

* And IESVS went out & his disciples in to ỹ townes of ỹ cyte of Cesarea Philippi. And in the waye he ared his disciples & said vnto them: what do men say, ỹ I am? They answered: They say, thou art Jhon ỹ Baptyst; Some saye thou arte Elias, some, that thou art one of ỹ prophetes. And he sayd vnto them: But whome saye ye ỹ I am? Then answered Peter & said vnto hym: * Thou art very Christ. And he charged thẽ strately, that they shulde tell no man of hym. * And he beganne to teache thẽ. The sonne of man must suffre many thynges, & be caste out of the elders & hye prestes and scrybes, & be put to death, and after thre dayes ryse agayne. And that worde spake he fre openly. And Peter toke hym vnto hym, and beganne to rebuke hym. But he turned hym about, and loked vpon his disciples, and rebuked Peter, & sayde: Go after me thou Sathan, for thou sauourest not the thynges that be of God, but of men. Mat.16.b Luce.9.c Joh.6.g. The.ix.Chapter.

Mat.17.a Luce.9.b. AND after sire dayes, * IESVS toke vnto hym Peter, James, & Jhon, and brought them vp in to a moūtayne out of ꝑ waye alone and was trāsfygured before them, and his clothes were bright and very whyt as the snowe, so whyte as no fuller can make vpon earth. And there appeared vnto them Elias with Moses, and they talked with IESVS. And Peter answered, and sayd vnto IESVS: Rabbi, here is good beynge for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias. For he knewe not what he sayd, and they were very fearefull. And there was a cloude, which ouer shadowed them. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, and sayde: Mat.3.b. Marc.1.a Luce.3.c. & deu.18.c. * This is me deare sonne, *heare hym. And immediatly they loked aboute them, & sawe no man more then IESVS onely with them.

Mat.17.b & mar.1.b * But whan they wente downe from the moūtayne, IESVS * charged thē, ꝑ they should tell no mā what they had sene, tyll the sonne of man were rysen agayne from the dead.

B And they kept ꝑ sayenge by them, & axed
one another: What is that rysynge agayne Mala.3.b from the dead? And they axed hym, & sayde: Why say the scrybes then, that * Elias must fyrst come? He answered & sayd vnto them: Elyas shall fyrst come in dede, and bringe all thynges to ryght agayne. The sonne of Esa 53.a. man also shall suffre many thynges, and be Psal.21.a despysed, * as it is wrytten. But I say vnto you: Elias is come, and they haue done vnto hym what they wolde, accordyng as it is wrytten of hym.

Mat.17.b Luce.9.b. * And he came to his disciples, and sawe muche people about them, and the scrybes disputynge with them. And as soone as the people sawe hym, they were astonnyed, and ranne vnto hym, & saluted him. And he axed ꝑ scrybes: What dispute ye with them? And one of ꝑ people answered, & said: Maister, I haue brought vnto thy my sōne, which hath a domme spyrite: and whan soeuer he taketh hym, he teareth hym, & he fometh, and gnalsheth with the teth, & pyneth awaye, and I haue spoken to thy disciples that they shuld cast hym out, and they coulde not.

He answered hym, and sayd: O thou vn- C kaythfull generacyon, howe longe shal I be with you? Howe longe shall I suffre you?
Bryng hym hether to me. And they brought him vnto hym. And as sone as ꝑ spyrite sawe hym, he tare hym and fell vpon the earth, & weltred and fomed. And he axed his father: Howe longe is it, sence this happened vnto hym? He sayde: Of a chylde, & oftymes hath he cast hym in to the fyre & water, to destroy hym: but yf thou canst do ony thynge, haue mercye vpon vs, and helpe vs. IESVS sayd Luce.1. and.10. vnto hym: ꝑf thou coudest beleue. * All thynges are possible vnto hym ꝑ beleueth.
And immediatlye the father of the chylde cryed with teares, & sayd: LORDE, I beleue:
O helpe thou myne vnbeleue.

Nowe whan IESVS sawe that ꝑ people ranne to, he rebuked ꝑ foule spyrite, & sayde vnto hym: Thou domme & deafe spyrite, I charge ꝑ, depart out of hym & entre no more in to hym from henseforth. And he cryed, and rent hym sore, and departed. And he was as though he had ben dead, in so much ꝑ many sayd: he is dead. But IESVS toke hym by the hāde, & set hym vp. And he arose. * And whā Mat.
he came home, his disciples axed hym secretly: Why coulde not we caste hym out?
And he sayd: This kynde can go out by no meanes, but by prayer and fastynge.

D ++ And they departed thence, & toke their Mat.
tourney thorowe Galile, & he wolde not that ony man shulde knowe of it. But he taught his disciples, & sayd vnto them: The sonne of man shalbe delyuered in to the handes of men, & they shall put hym to deathe: & whan he is put to deathe, he shall ryse agayne the thirde day. But they vnderstode not ꝑ word and were afrayed to aske hym.

* And he came to Capernaum. And whan he was at home, he axed thē: What disputed ye amōg your selues by ꝑ way? But they helde their tunges: * For they had disputed by the way among them selues: who shulde be the greatest. And he sat downe and called the twelue, and sayde vnto them: * ꝑf ony man wyll be fyrste, the same shall be the last of all, and the seruaunt of all. And he toke a chylde, and set hym in the myddest of them, and toke hym in his armes, & sayd vnto thē:
* Who soeuer receaueth suche a chylde in Luce. and.
my name receaueth me, and who soeuer re- Joh.
ceaueth me, receaueth not me, but hym that hath sent me.

Jhon answered hym, & sayd: ✣ Maister, we sawe one dryue out deuels in thy name, but he foloweth not vs, & we forbadde hym because he foloweth not vs. But IESVS said: forbyd hym not, for * there is no man that doth a myracle in my name and can soone speake euell of me. For who soeuer is not against vs, the same is for vs. * And who someeuer geueth you a cuppe of water to drynke in my name, because ye belõg vnto CHRIST, verily I say vnto you: he shal not lowse his rewarde. * And who so offendeth one of these lyttell ones þ beleue in me, it were better for hym, þ a mylstone were hanged aboute his necke, and he cast in to the see. * If thy hãde offende the, cut hym of. Better it is for the to entre in to the lyfe lame, then haupnge two hãdes to go in to hell into þ euerlasting fyre * where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out.

If thy fote offende þ, cut hym of. Better it is for the to entre into the lyfe crepell, then hauing two fete to be cast in to hell in þ fyre euerlastyng, where their worme dyeth not, & their fyre goeth not out. If thyne eye offẽde þ cast hym frõ the. Better it is for þ to entre into þ kyngdome of God with one eye, then hauyng two eyes to be caste in to the fyre of hell: where their worme dyeth not, & their fyre goeth not out. For euery man muste be salted wt fyre, & * euery offeryng shalbe seasoned with salte. The salte is good: but yf the salte be vnsauery, where withall shall it be salted? Haue salte in you, & peace amonge your selues one with another.

The.x. Chapter.

AND he rose vp, and came from thence in to þ places of Jewry beyonde Jordane. And the people went agayne vnto hym by heapes, & (as his maner was) he taught thẽ agayne. And þ Pharises came vnto hym, and axed hym, yf it were lawfull for a man to put away his wyfe, & tempted hym withall. But he answered and sayde: What hath Moses cõmaunded you? They sayd: ✣ Moses suffred to wryte a testimony all of deuorcement, & to put her away. IESVS answered, & sayd vnto them: Because of the hardnesse of youre harte dyd Moses wryte you this cõmaundement. But from the fyrste creacyon, God made them man & woman. * For this cause shall a man leaue his father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe, and they two shall be one flesh. Nowe are they not twayne then, but one flesshe. Let no man therfore put asunder that, whiche God hath coupled together.

And at home his disciples axed hym agayne of the same. And he sayde vnto them: * Who soeuer putteth away his wyfe, and maryeth another, breaketh wedlocke to her warde. And yf a woman forsake hyr husbande, and be maryed to another, she commytteth aduoutrye. Mat.5.b and.19.c. Luc.16.b

* And they brought chyldren vnto hym, that he myght touche them. But the disciples rebuked those that brought them. Verely I saye vnto you: Who soeuer receaueth not the kyngdome of God as a chylde, he shall not entre therin. And he toke them vp in his armes, and layed his hondes vpon them, and blessed them. B Mat.19.b Luc.18.b

✣ ✣ And whan he was gone forth vpon the waye, there came one runnyng and kneled vnto hym, & axed hym: Good Mayster, what shall I do, that I maye inheret euerlastynge lyfe? But IESVS sayd vnto hym: why callest thou me good? * There is no man good, but God onely. Thou knowest the commaundementes: * Thou shalte not breake wedlock: thou shalte not kyll: thou shalte not steale, thou shalte beare no false wytnes, thou shalt begyle no man: Honour thy father & mother. But he answered, & sayd vnto hym: Mayster, all these haue I kept fro my youth vp. And IESVS beheld hym, and loued hym, and sayde vnto hym: Thou wantest one thynge: Go thy waye, & * sell all that thou haste, & geue it vnto the poore: so shalt thou haue a treasure in heauen, and come and folowe me, and take the crosse vpon the. And he was discomforted at that sayenge and went away sory, for he had great possessyons. Mat.19.c Luc.18.c Deut.24.f Exo.20.d. e.f. Iere.2.b. and.4.d.

* And IESVS loked about hym, & sayde vnto his disciples: O how hardly shall they ryche come in to þ kyngdome of God? And the disciples were astonyed at his wordes. But IESVS answered agayne, & sayd vnto them: Deare chyldren, how harde is it for them that truste in ryches to come in to the kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a camell to go thorowe þ eye of a nedle, thã for a rych man to entre in to þ kyngdome of God. Yet were they astonyed the more, & sayd amõge them selues: who can then be saued? But IESVS beheld them, and sayde: With men it is impossyble, but not with God: for * with God all thynges are possyble. Mat.19.c. Luc.18.c Zacha.8.a.

Mat.19.d Luce.18.c. * Then sayd Peter vnto hym: Behold, we haue forsaken all, & folowed the. IESVS answered & said: Uerely I say vnto you: There is no mã that forsaketh house, or brethren, or systers, or father, or mother, or wyfe, or childzen, or lõdes for my sake & the Gospels, ỹ shall not receaue an hundzeth folde nowe in this tyme, houses, & brethzen and systers, & mothers and chyldzen and londes with persecucyon, & in the worlde to come euerLuce. 13.c. lastyng lyfe. * But many that are fyrst, shall be the last: and the laste, the fyrst.

D * They were in ỹ waye goynge vp to IeMat.20.b Luce.18.d rusalem, & IESVS wente before them. And they were astonyed, & folowed hym, & were afrayed. And IESVS toke ỹ twolue agayne. & tolde them what shulde happẽ vnto hym. Behold, we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shall be delyuered vnto ỹ hye prestes & scrybes, & they shall cõdemne hym to death, & delyuer hym vnto the Heythen: And they shall mocke hym, & scourge hym, & spyt vpon hym: & put hym to death, & on the thyrde day shall he ryse agayne.

Mat.20.c. * Then went vnto hym James & Jhon ỹ sonnes of zebede, & sayde: Mayster, We desyre, ỹ what soeuer we are of ỹ, thou wylte do it for vs. He sayd vnto thẽ: What desyre ye that I shall do to you? They sayde vnto hym Graunte vs ỹ we maye syt one at thy ryght hande, & one at thy lyfte hande in thy glorye. But IESVS sayd vnto thẽ. ye wote not what ye are. May ye drynke the cuppe, that I shall drynke? & be baptysed with the baptyme that I shall be baptysed with all? They sayd vnto hym: ye that we may. IESVS sayd vnto thẽ: The cuppe ỹ I drynke shall ye drynke, in dede: & be baptysed with the baptyme that I shall be baptysed with all. Neuertheles to syt at my ryght hande and at my left, is not myne to geue you, but vnto them for whom it is prepared.

E And whan the ten herde that, they disdayned at James and Jhon. But IESVS called Mat.20.d Mar.9.d. them, & sayde vnto them: * ye knowe ỹ the Luce.9.c. and.22.b. princes of the worlde haue dominacyon of the people, and the myghtye exercyse auctoryte amonge thẽ. So shall it not be amonge you: but who soeuer wyll be great amonge you shall be youre minyster. And whose wyll be chefeste amonge you, shall be seruaunt of all. For the sonne of mã also came Joh.10.f. not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and * to geue his lyfe to a redempcyon for many.

Mat.20.b * And they came to Jericho. And whan Luce.18.d. he went out of Jericho, & his disciples, and mucke people, there sat one blynde Bartimeus the sonne of Thimeus by the waye, and begged. And whan he herd that it was IESVS of Nazareth he beganne to crye and saye: IESV thou sonne of Dauid haue mercye vpon me. And many reproued hym, that he shulde holde his tunge. But he cryed mucke more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercye vpon me. And Jesus stode styll, and badde call hym. And they called the blynde, and sayd vnto hym: Be of good comforte, aryse, he calleth the. And he caste awaye his garment from hym, stode vp, and came to IESVS. And IESVS answered, and sayde vnto hym: What wylte thou that I do vnto the? The blynde sayd vnto him: Mayster, that I myghte se, IESVS sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye, thy fayth hathe helped the. And immediatly he had his syghte and folowed hym in the waye.

The. xi. Chapter.

AND * whan they came nye Jeru Mat.21.a salem to Bethphage and Bethany vnto mount Olyuete, he Luce.19.a sent two of his disciples, & sayd vnto hym: Go into ỹ towne that lyeth before you, & as sone as ye come in, ye shall fynde a foale bounde, where vpon no man hath syttẽ: lowse it, & brynge it hyther. And yf ony mã say vnto you: Wherfore do ye that? Then say ye: The LORD hath nede therof, & forthwith he shall sende it hether. They wente theyr waye, & founde the foale tyed by the dore without at the partynge of the waye, & lowsed it. And certayne of those that stode there, axed them: What do ye, ỹ ye lowse the foale? But they sayde vnto thẽ, lyke as IESVS had cõmaunded them. And so they let them alone. And they brought the foale vnto IESVS and layed theyr clothes Joh. theron, and he sat theron. * But many spred theyr garmentes in ỹ waye, some cut downe braunches from the trees, & strowed them in the waye. And they that wente before, and that folowed after, cryed & sayd: Holyanna. Psal. * Blessed be he, that cõmeth in the name of the LORD: blessed be the kyngdome of our father Dauid, whiche cõmeth in the name of the LORDE, Holaynna in the heyght.

B And the LORDE entred in to Jerusalem, and went into the temple, & loked vpõ all. And at euen he went out vnto Bethany Mat. with the twolue: and on the morowe whan Luce. they departed frõ Bethanye, * he hongred, and sawe a fygge tre afarre of which had leaues. Then came he nye, (to se) yf he could fynde ony thynge theron. And whã he came in it, he founde nothynge but leaues (for the tyme of fygges was not yet.) And IESVS answered, and sayd vnto it: Neuer mã eate frute of the for euer more. And his disciples herde it.

And they came to Jerusalem. And IESVS went in to ỹ temple, & begãne to dryue out the sellers & byers in the temple, & ouerthrewe the tables of the money chaũgers, & the stoles of the doue sellers, and suffred not any man to cary a vessell thorowe ỹ temple. And he taught: & sayd vnto them: Is it not wrytten. My house shall be called a house of prayer for all people. But ye haue made it a denne of murtherers.

And the scribes & hye prestes herde of it. And they sought how they myght destroy hym, but they were afrayed of hym, for all ỹ people maruayled at his doctryne. And at euen he went out of the cyte. And on the morowe they passed by, & sawe the fygge tre, that it was wythered vnto ỹ rote. And Peter thought therõ, & said vnto him Maister, beholde, the fygge tre that thou cursedest, is wythered away. IESVS answered, & sayd vnto thẽ: Haue fayth in god. Verely I saye vnto you: Who soeuer sayeth vnto this mountayne: Auoyde, & caste thy selfe in to ỹ see, and douteth not in his hart: but beleueth ỹ thinges shal come to passe, which he sayeth, then loke what he sayeth, it shall come to passe. Therfore I saye vnto you: What soeuer ye desyre in your prayer, beleue that ye shall receaue it, & ye shall haue it. And whan ye stonde and praye, forgeue if ye haue ought agaynst ony man, ỹ youre father also in heauen, may forgeue you your trespasses.

And they came agayne vnto Jerusalẽ, and whan he went in the temple, there came vnto him ỹ hye prestes, & scribes, & the elders, & sayde vnto hym: By what auctorite doest thou these thinges? & who gaue ỹ this auctorite to do suche? But IESVS answerd & sayd vnto thẽ: I wyll are you a worde also: answere me, & I wyll tell you by what auctorite I do these. The baptim of Jhon, was it from heauen or of men? answere me.

And they thought in them selues: yf we saye, it was from heauen, then shall he saye: why dyd ye not then beleue hym? But yf we say: it was of men, then feare we the people, for they all helde that Jhon was a true prophet. And they answered & sayd vnto hym: We can not tell. And IESVS answered, & said vnto them: Nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thynges.

And he beganne to speake vnto them by parables: A certayne man, * planted a vynyarde, & made a hedge aboute it, & dygged a wyne presse, & buylded a tower, & let it out vnto the husbandmen, & went in to a straunge countre. And whan ỹ tyme was come, he sent a seruaunt to ỹ husbandmen, that he myght receaue of the husbandmen, of the frute of the vynyarde. But they toke hym, & bette hym and sent hym awaye emptye. Agayne, he sent vnto them another seruaunt: whom they stoned, & brake his heade, & sent him away shamefully dealt withall. Agayne he sent another whom they slewe, & many other: some they bette, & some they put death. Mat.21.d. Luce.20.a

Then had he yet one sõne onely, whome he loued, hym he sent also vnto them at the laste, & sayde: they wyll stonde in awe of my sonne. But the same husbandmen sayde amonge thẽ selues: This is ỹ heyre, * Come, let vs kyll hym, so shall the inherytaunce be oures. And they toke hym, & slewe hym, & cast hym out of ỹ vynyarde. What shal now the LORDE of ỹ vyneyarde do? He shal come & destroye ỹ husbãdmen, & geue ỹ vynyarde vnto other: Haue ye not red this scrypture: * The same stone which ỹ buylders refused, is become ỹ head stone in the corner? This was ỹ LORDES doyng, & it is maruaylous in our eyes. * And they went aboute to take him (but they feared ỹ people) for they perceaued, ỹ he had spoken this parable agaynste them. And they left hym, & went theyr waye. Gen.37.b Psa.117.d Mat.22.b Luce.20.b

And they sent vnto hym certayne of the Pharises & Herodes officers, to take hym in his wordes. And they came & sayde vnto him: Maister we knowe ỹ thou arte true & carest for no man. For thou regardest not ỹ outwarde appearaunce of men, but teachest the way of God truly. Is it lawfull to geue trybute vnto ỹ Emperoure or not? Ought we to geue it, or ought we not to geue it? But he perceaued theyr ypocrysye, & sayd vnto thẽ: Why tẽpte ye me? Bryng me a peny, ỹ I may se it. And they brought it him. Thẽ sayd he: Whose ymage & superscripcyon is this? They said vnto him: The Emperours. Then answered IESVS & sayde vnto them: * Geue therfore vnto ỹ Emperour ỹ which is ỹ Emperours, & vnto God that which is Gods. And they maruayled at hym. Luc.20.c

Then came vnto hym the Saduces (which holde ỹ there is no resurrecyõ) these Mat.22.c. Luce.20.d. Act.23.a.

Deu.25.a. ared hym, and sayde: Master Moses wrote vnto vs: yf ony mans brother dye, and leaue a wyfe & leaue no chyldren, hys brother shall take hys wyfe, and rayse vp sede vnto his brother. Now were there seuen brethren, the fyrst toke a wyfe, and dyed & left no sede and the seconde toke her, and dyed, and left no sede: the thyrde in lyke maner. And they all seuen toke her, & lefte no sede. At the laste after them all, ỹ wyfe dyed also. Nowe in the resurrecyon whan they shall ryse agayne, whose wyfe shal she be of them? For seuen hadde her to wyfe.

Then answered IESVS, and sayde vnto them: Do not ye erre & because ye knowe not the scryptures nor the power of God? Whan they shal ryse agayne from the dead they shall nother marye nor be maryed, but they are as the angels in heauen. As touchynge the dead, that they shall ryse agayne haue ye not red in the boke of Moses, how God spake to hym in the bushe, and sayde:

Exod.3.a. Deu.7.d. * I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob & yet is not God a God of the dead, but of the lyuynge. Therfore ye erre greatly.

Mat.22.d. * And there came vnto hym one of the scrybes, that had herkened vnto them howe they disputed together, and sawe that he had answered them well, and ared hym: Which is the chefest commaundemẽt of al? Jesus answered hym: the chefest commaundement of all commaundementes is thys:

D Deu.6.b. and.30.b. * Heare O Israell, the LORDE oure God is one God, and thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God wyth all thy harte, wyth al thy soul wyth all thy mynde, and wythall thy strẽgth Thys is the chefest commaundement, and Leui.19. Rom.13.b the second is lyke vnto it: * Thou shalt loue thy neghboure as thy selfe. There is none other greater commaundement then these.

And the scrybe sayde vnto hym: Master verely thou hast sayde rycht, for there is but one God, and there is none other wythout hym, and to loue hym wythal the hart, with all the mynde, wyth all the soule, an with all the strength, and to loue a mans neghbour as hym selfe, is more then brentsacrifyces and all offerynges. But whan IESVS sawe that he answered discretlye, he sayde vnto hym: Thou arte not farre from the kyngdome of God. And after thys durst no man are hym ony mo questyons.

C Mat.20.b Luce.20.g * And IESVS answered and sayde: whan he taught in the temple: How saye the scrybes, that Chryste is the sonne of Dauid? But Dauid hymselfe sayeth thorow the holy goost, * The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE. Syt thou on my ryght hãde, tyll I make thyne enemyes thy fotestole. There Dauid calleth hym hys LORDE. How is he then hys sonne? And many people herde hym gladly. Psa.110

And he taught them, and sayde vnto the: * Beware of the scrybes, that loue to go in longe garmentes, and loue to be saluted in the market, and syt gladly aboue in the synagoges and at the table: they deuoure wedowes houses, and vnder a coloure they make longe prayers. These shall receaue the more dampnacyon. Mat. Luc.

✣ * And IESVS sat ouer agaynst the & Gods chest, and beheilde how the people put money in to the Gods chest. And many ỹ were ryche, put in much. And there came a poore wydowe, and put in two mytes, which make a farthynge. And he called vnto hym hys dyscyples, and sayde vnto them: Verely I say vnto you thys poore wydowe hath put more in to the Gods chest, then all they that haue put in: For they all haue put in of theyr superfluyte, but she of hyr pouerte hath put in all that she hadde, euen hyr whole lyuynge. Luc. 21.a.

The.xiij. Chapter.

AND * when he wente out of the temple, one of his disciples sayd vnto hym: Master, se, what stones, and what a buyldynge is thys? And IESVS answered, and sayde vnto hym: Seyst thou all thys greate buyldynge? There shall not one stone be left vpon another that shall not be broken downe. Mat. Luc.

And whan he sat vpon mount Olyuete ouer agaynst the temple, Peter and James and Jhon, and Andrew ared hym pryuatly: Tell vs, Whan shal all these come to passe? And what shalbe the token, whan all these shalbe fulfylled? Jesus answered them, and beganne to saye: Take hede, that no man deceaue you, for there shall many come vnder my name, and saye: I am Chryst, and shall deceaue many. But whan ye shall heare of the noyse of warres, be not afrayed: for so must it be, but the ende is ont yet. * One people shall ryse agaynst another, and one realme agaynst another, and there shalbe earthquakes here and there, and derth shall there be and troubles. Mat.

* But take ye hede to youre selues. For B they shall delyuer you vp to the counceils, and synagoges, and ye shall be beaten, and Mat. Luc.

and shalbe brought before princes, and kyn ges for my names sake, for a wytnesse vnto them. And the Gospel must fyrst be preached amonge all people.

* Now whan they shall lede you and de-liuer you vp, take ye no thought afore what ye shall saye: and ymagyne ye nothynge afore hande, but what so euer shalbe geuen you at the same houre, that speake: for it is not ye that speake but the holy goost. * One brother shall delyuer another vnto death, and the father the sonne, and the chyldren shall ryse against their fathers and mothers, and shall putte them to death, and ye shalbe hated of all men for my names sake. But who so endureth to the ende, shalbe saued.

* Whan ye shall se the abhominacyon of desolacyon (wherof it is spoken by * Daniel the prophete) stonde where it ought not (who so readeth it, let hym marke it well) then let them which be in Jewry: flye vnto the moun taynes: and let hym that is on the house top, not descende in to the house, nor come therin to fetch ony thynge out of the house. And let hym that is in the felde, not turne backe to fetche hys clothes.

But wo vnto them that are with chylde
and to them that geue sucke in those dayes.
Neuertheles praye ye, that youre flyght be not in the wynter. For in those dayes there shalbe such trouble as was not from the begynnynge of the creatures which God created vnto thys tyme, nother shalbe. And yf the LORDE had not shortened those dayes, there shulde no man be saued. But for the ele ctes sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened those dayes.

* Now yf ony man shall saye vnto you at that tyme: Lo, here is Christ: lo, he is there, beleue it not. For there shall aryse false Christes, and false prophetes which shall do tokens and wounders, to deceaue euen the very chosen, yf it were possyble. But take ye hede. Beholde, I haue tolde you all before.

* But at the same tyme after this trouble, the Sonne and Mone shall lose theyr lyght, and the starres shall fall from heauen and the powers of the heauens shall moue:
* and then shall they se the sonne of man co-mynge in the cloudes wyth greate power, & glory. And then shall he sende hys angels, & shall gather together hys chosen from the foure wyndes, from one ende of the earth to the other.

* Learne a symylitude of the fygge tre:
When hys braunche is yet tender, and hath brought forth leaues, ye knowe that the som mer is nye. So lykewyse whan ye se all these thynges come to passe, be ye sure, that it is nye euen at the dores. Verely I saye vnto you, thys generacion shall not passe, tyll all these be fulfylled. Heauen and earth shall pe ryshe, but my wordes shall not peryshe.

* But of the daye, and houre knoweth Acto. 1.a no man, nother the angels in heauen, no not the sonne hym selfe, but the father onely.

* Take hede, watch, and praye, for ye Mat.24.d knowe not whan the tyme is. Lyke as a mā and. 25. a.
that wente to a straunge countre, and lefte Luce.12.d. hys house, and gaue hys seruauntes auctō- and.19.a. ryte, vnto euery one hys worke, and commaunded the porter, that he shulde watch.
Watch ye therfore, for ye knowe not whan ꝑ master of the house commeth whether he commeth in the euenynge, or at mydnyght, or aboute the cocke crowynge or in the mor-nynge, that he come not sodenly and fynde you sleppynge. Loke what I saye vnto you, that saye I vnto all: Watch.

AND * after two dayes was A Easter, and the dayes of swete Mat.26.a breade, and the hyghe prestes, Luce. 22.a and scribes sought howe they Joh.11.c. myght take hym wyth deceate, and put hym to death. But they sayde: Not

* And whan he was at Bethanye in the Mat.26.a house of Simon the leper, and sat at the ta- Luce.7.d. ble, there came a woman, whiche had a bore Joh.12.a.
of pure and costly Nardus oyntement. And she brake the bore, and poured it vpon hys heade. Then were there some, that disdaynned and saide: where to serueth this wayste?
This oyntement might haue bene solde for more then thre hundreth pens, and bene geuen to the poore. And they grudged a-gaynst her.

But IESVS sayde: let her be in rest:
why trouble ye her? She hath done a good worke vpon me. Ye haue alwaye the poore with you, and whan soeuer ye will, ye maye do them good: but me haue ye not alwaye.
She hath done what she coulde, she is come before, to anoynte my body for my buryal.
Verely I saye vnto you: where so euer thys gospell shall be preached in all the worlde, there shall this also that she hath now done,
be tolde for a remembraunce of her.

Mat.26.b Luce.22.a. Joh.13.a. * And Judas Iscariot one of the twolue wente vnto the prestes, to betraye hym vnto them. When they herde that, they were glad and prompsed that they wolde geue hym money. And he sought how he myght conuenyently betraye hym.

Exo.12.c. Mat.26.b * And vpon the fyrst daye of swete breed whan the Easter lambe was offred, hys disciples sayde vnto hym: Where wylt thou that we go prepare, that thou mayest eate the easter lambe? And he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: go youre waye in to the cyte, and there shall mete you a mã bearynge a pitcher wyth water, folow hym, and where soeuer he goeth in, there saye ye to the good man of the house: The master sendeth the worde: Where is the gest house, wherin I maye eate the Easter lambe, wyth my disciples? And he shal shewe you a great parlour, which is paued and prepared, there make redye for vs. And the disciples wente forth, and came in to the cyte, and founde it as he had sayde vnto them. And they prepared the Easter lambe.

C * It euen he came wyth the twolue. And Mat.26.b Luce.22.b Joha.13.c as they sat at the table and dyd eate IESVS sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you that eateth wyth me, shall betraye me. And they were sory, and sayde vnto hym one after another: Is it I? and another (sayde:) Is it I? He answered and sayd vnto them: One of the twolue euen the same that dyppeth wt me in the platter. The sonne of man truely goeth forth, as it is wrytten of hym. But wo vnto that man, by whome the sonne of man, is betrayed. It were better for the same man that he had neuer ben borne.

Mat.26.c Luce.22.b 1.Cor.11.c * And as they dyd eate, Jesus toke the breade gaue thankes, and brake it, and gaue it them, and sayde: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, thanked, and gaue it them, and they dyd all dryncke therof. And he sayde vnto them: This is my bloud of the new testament whiche shalbe shed for many. Verely I saye vnto you, that from hence forth I wyll not drynke of the frute of the vyne, tyll the daye that I drynke it newe in ỹ kyngdõ of God. And whã they had sayd grace they wẽt forth vnto mounte Oliuete

D * And IESVS sayde vnto them: Thys Mat.26.c nyght shall ye all be offended in me, for it is wrytten: * I wyll smyte the shepherde, and Zacha.13.b the shepe shalbe scatred abrode. Neuertheles after that I am ryse agayne, * I wyll Actu.1.a. go before you in to Galile. But Peter sayde vnto hym: And though all men shulde be offended, yet wolde not I be offended.

And IESVS sayde vnto hym: Verely I saye vnto the: To daye in thys same nyght before the cock crowe two tymes, shalt thou denye me thryse. But he sayde yet more: yee though I shulde dye wyth the, yet wyll I not denye ỹ. So sayde they al in like maner.

* And they came in to the felde called Mat. Mar. Luce. Joh. Gethsemane, and he sayde vnto hys disciples: Syt ye here, tyll I go ponder, & praye. And he toke wyth hym Peter, and James, and Jhon, and beganne to wexe fearful, and to be in an agonye, and sayde vnto them: * My soule is heuy euen vnto the death: tary ye here and watch. And he wente forth a lytle, fell vpon the groũde, and prayed, that (if it were possyble) the houre myght passe from hym, and sayde: Abba, my father, all thynges are possyble vnto the, take this cup fro me: Neuertheles not what I wyll, but what thou wylt.

And he came vnto them, and found them C sleppynge, and sayde vnto Peter: Symon, slepest thou? Couldest thou not watch wyth me one houre? Watch and praye, that ye fal not into temptacion. The spyrite is wyllyng, but the flesh is weake. * And he wente forth a- Mat. gayne, and prayed, and spake the same wordes, and returned, and founde them sleppyng agayne: for theyr eyes were heuy, and they knewe not what they shulde answere hym. And he came the thyrde tyme, and sayde vnto them: Slepe on now and take youre rest. It is ynough, the houre is come: behold, the sonne of man shalbe delyuered in to the handes of synners: aryse, let vs be goynge. Behold, he is at hande, that betrayeth me.

* And immediatly whyle he yet spake, Mat. came Judas one of the twolue, and with him Luce. Joh. a greate multytude, wyth swordes and staues from the hyghe prestes and scribes, and elders. And the traytour had geuen them a token, and sayde: Whom soeuer I kysse, that same is he, laye handes vpõ hym, & lede him awaye warely. And whan he was come, he wente strayght waye vnto hym, and sayde vnto hym: O master, master, and kyssed him Then layed they theyr handes vpon hym, and toke hym. But one of them that stode by drew out hys swearde, and smote the hyghe prestes seruaunt, and cut of hys eare.

* And IESVS answered, and sayde vnto f them: ye are come forth as it were to a murtherer wyth swordes, and wyth staues to take me. I was daylye wyth you in the temple, and taught, and ye toke me not. * But ea. Mat. this is done, that the scrypture maye be fulfylled. And all the disciples forsoke him, and fled. And there folowed hym a ponge man, which was clothed in lynen vpon the heery skynne, and the yong men toke hold of him But he let the lynnen go, and fled naked from them.

* And they led IESVS vnto the hyghe preest, where al the hyghe prestes, and elders and scrybes were come together. As for Peter, he folowed hym a farre of in to ỹ hyghe prestes palace. And he was there, and sat w the seruauntes, and warmed hym.

* But the hyghe prestes and the whole counsell sought wytnesse agaynst IESVS mathia, a worshypfull Senatoure (whiche loked also for thy kyngdome of God) and wente in boldely vnto Pylate and ared the body of IESVS: But Pylate maruayled that he was dead alreadу, and called the captayne, and ared hym, whether he had longe bene dead. And whan he had gotten knowlege of the captayne, he gaue Joseph the body. And he bought a lynen cloth, toke him down, & wrapped him in ꝑ lynen cloth, and layed him in the sepulchre, which was

they came to the sepulcre vpon a daye of ꝑ Sabbathes very early whan the Sonne arose, and sayde one to another: Who shall rolle vs to stone from the dore of the sepulchre? And whan they loked, they sawe, that the stone was rolled awaye: for it was a ve ry greate one. And they wente in to the se-pulcre, and on the ryght hande they sawe a yonge man sytteynge, whiche had a longe whyte garment vpon hym, and they were abashed. * But he sayde vnto them: Be not ye afrayed, ye seke IESVS of Nazareth which was crucifyed: he is rysen, he is not here.
Beholde the place, where they layed hym.
But go ye youre waye, and tell hys disciples and Peter, that he wyll go before you into Galile, * there shall ye se hym: as he sayde vnto you. And they wente forth in all the hayst, and fled from the se-pulcre: for there was a tremblynge, and feare come vpon them, nother sayde they ony thyng to ony mā, for they were afrayed

 But IESVS, whan he was rysen vp early vpon the fyrst daye of the Sabbathes, * he appeared fyrste vnto Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seue deuels. And she wente and tolde them that were wyth him, as they mourned and wept And whan they herde that he lyued, and had appeared vnto her, they beleued it not.

Afterwarde as two of the were walkyng, he shewed hym selfe vnder another fygure, when they were goyng vpon the felde. And they went, and tolde the other: these they beleued not also. ℞

¶ At the last, as the eleuen sat at the table, he shewed hym selfe vnto them, & rebuked their vnbelefe, & the hardnesse of their harte, because they beleued not them which had seene hym ryssen. And he sayd vnto them: Goe your waye in to all the worlde, and preache the Gospell vnto all creatures. Who so beleueth & is baptysed, shalbe saued: But who so beleueth not, shalbe damned.

For the tokens, which shall folowe them that beleue, these are they: In my name shall they caste out deuels: & speake with newe tunges: & dryue a waye serpentes: And if they drynke ony deadly thynge, it shal not hurt them: They shall laye their handes vpon the sycke, and they shall recouer.

And the LORDE, after that he had spoken vnto them, was taken vp in to heauen, and sytteth at the ryghte hande of God. And they wente out, and preached euery where. And the LORDE wrought with them, and confyrmed the worde with tokens folowynge. ℞

¶ The Prologe of

Saynt Luke.

FOr so muche as many haue taken in hãde, to set forth the wordes of the actes that are come to passe amonge vs, lyke as they delyuered them vnto vs, whiche from the begynnynge sawe them theyr selues, & were ministers of ỹ worde. I thought it good (after that I hadde dilygently serched out all from the begynnynge) to wryte the same orderly vnto the (good Theophilus) that thou myghtest knowe ỹ certente of the wordes, wherof thou art informed.

The i. Chap. ¶ The Gospell of Saynt Luke.

The. fyrst. Chapter.

IN the tyme of Herode kig of Jewry ther was a prest named Zacharie of ỹ * courte of Abia & his wyfe of the doughters of Aaron, and hyr name Elizabeth. They were both ryghteous before God, and walked in all the commaundementes and statutes of the LORDE, vnrepr̃oueably. And they had no childe, for Elyzabeth was baren, & they were both well stryken in age. Luc.

And it came to passe as he exercted the prestes office before God, whan his course came (accordynge to the costume of ỹ presthode) it fel to his lotte to burn incense. And * he wente in to the temple, of the LORDE, and the whole multitude of the people was wythout in prayer, whyle the incense was aburnynge. And the angell of the LORDE appeared vnto hym, and stode on the ryght syde of the altare of incense. And whan zacharie sawe hym, he was abashed, and ther came a feare vpon hym. Exo. xxx.

But the angell sayde vnto hym: Feare not zacharye: for thy prayer is herde. And thy wyfe Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, whose name thou shalt call Jhon and thou shalt haue ioye and gladnes: and many shall reioyce at hys byrthe, for he shalbe greate before the LORDE. Wine and strong drynke shal he not drynke. And he shalbe fylled w the holy goost euen in his mothers wombe. And many of the childzen of Israel shal he turne vnto the LORDE theyr God. And he shall go before hym in the spyrite and power of * Elias, to turne the hartes of the fathers vnto the childzen, and ỹ vnfaythfull vnto the wysdome of the ryghteous, to make the people ready for the LORDE.

And zachary sayd vnto ỹ angell: Wherby shall I know this? * For I am olde, and my wyfe well stryken in age. The angell answered and sayde vnto hym: I am Gabriell that stonde before God, and am sente to speake vnto the, & to shewe the these glad tydynges. And beholde, thou shalt be dõme, and not able to speake, vntyll the day that this come to passe, because thou haste * not beleued my wordes, whiche shalbe fulfylled in theyr season.

And the people wayted for zachary, & marueyled, that he tarryed so longe in ỹ temple. And whã he went out, he coulde not speake vnto them. And they perceaued, that he had seen a vysyon in the tẽple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned specheles.

And it fortuned whan the tyme of his office was out, he went home in to his house. And after those dayes Elyzabeth his wyfe conceaued, & hyd her self .v. monethes, & sayd: Thus hath the LORDE done vnto me in the dayes wherin he hath loked vpõ me, to take away fro me my rebuke amonge men.

¶ And in the sixte moneth was the angell Gabryell sent from God, into a cyte of Galile, called Nazareth, vnto a virgyn that was spoused vnto a man, whose name was Joseph of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And ỹ angell came in vnto her, & sayd: Hayle thou full of grace, the LORDE is with the: blessed arte thou amonge wemen.

Whan she sawe hym, she was abasshed at his sayenge, & thought: What maner of salutacyon is this? & the angell said vnto her: Feare not Mary, for thou hast foũde grace with God. * Beholde, thou shalt cõceaue in thy wombe & beare a sonne * & shalt call his name IESVS. he shalbe greate, & shalbe called sonne of the hyghest. And the LORDE God shall geue hym the seate of Dauid his father, * & he shalbe kyng ouer the house of Jacob for euer, and * there shalbe no ende of his kyngdome. Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: Howe shall this be, seynge I knowe not a man? The angell answered, & said vnto her: The holy goost shall come vpon the, and the power of the hyghest shall ouershadowe the. Therfore the holy also, whiche shalbe borne (of the) shalbe called the sõne of God. And beholde, thy cosen Elyzabeth she hath cõceaued a sonne in hyr olde age, and this is the sixte moneth of her, whiche is reported to be barren * for with God is nothynge vnpossible. And Mary sayde: Beholde, here am I the hande mayden of the LORDE, be it vnto me as thou haste sayd. And the angell departed from her.

¶ And Mary arose in those dayes, and D went into the mountaynes with hayst, in to the cyte of Jewry, and came in to the house of zachary, and saluted Elyzabeth. And it fortuned as Elyzabeth herde the salutacyon of Mary, the babe sprange in hir wombe. And Elyzabeth was fylled with the holy goost, and cryed loude, and sayde: Blessed art thou amonge wemen, and blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And howe happeneth this to me that the mother of my LORDE commeth vnto me? Beholde, whan I herde the voyce of thy salutacyon, the babe sprãge in my wombe with ioye. And blessed arte thou that hast beleued, for the thynges shall be perfourmed, whiche were tolde the from the LORDE. And Mary sayd.

* My soule magnifyeth the LORDE. And Esa.61.b my spryte reioyceth in God my saueour.

For he hath loked vpon the lowe degre of his hande mayden.

Beholde, from hence forth shal all generacyons cal me blessed.

For he that is myghtie, hathe done great thynges vnto me, and holy is his name.

And his mercye endureth thorowe out all generacyons, vpon them that feare hym.

He sheweth strength with his arme and scattereth them that are proude in the ymaginacyon of theyr harte.

* He putteth downe the myghtie from the 1.Reg.2.d. Eccle.10.c seate, and exalteth them of lowe degre.

He fylleth the hongry with good thinges, and letteth the ryche go emptye.

He remembreth mercye, and helpeth vp his seruaunt Jsraell.

Euen as he promysed vnto oure fathers, * Abraham and to his sede for euer. Gene.22.c

And Mary abode with hyr aboute thre monethes, & then returned home agayne.

¶ And Elyzabethes tyme was come that E she shulde be delyuered, & she brought forth a sonne. And hir neyghbours and kynsfolkes herde, ỹ the LORDE had shewed great mercy vpon her, and they reioyced with her. And it fortuned vpon the eyght daye, * they Gen.17.d. Leui.12.a. came to circũcise the chylde, and called hym zachary after his father. And his mother answered, and sayd: No, but he shall be called Jhon. And they sayd vnto her: There is none in thy kinne, that is so called. And they made sygnes vnto his father, how he wolde haue hym called. And he axed for wrytynge nables, diuers and sondrie. His name is Iesus and they marueyled all. And immediatly was his mouth and his tunge loosed, and he spake, and praysed God. And feare came vpon all them that dwelt rounde about them: and all these sayings were noysed abroade throughout all the hyll country of Iewry. And all they that heard them, layed them vp in their hartes, saying: What maner a man shall this childe be? For the hande of the LORDE was with him.

And his father Zacharias was filled with the holy ghost, and prophecyed, and sayd.

Blessed be the LORDE God of Israel: for he hath visited and redemed his people.

And hath set vp a horne of saluacion vnto vs in the house of his seruaunt Dauid.

Euen as he promised by the mouth of his holy prophetes.

That we should be saued from our enemyes, and from the hande of all that hate vs.

And that he would deale mercifully with our fathers, and thynke vpon his holy couenaunt.

Euen the othe which he sware vnto our father Abraham, that he would geue vs,

That we being deliuered out of the hande of our enemyes, might serue him without feare, all the dayes of our life, in holynes and righteousnes before him.

And thou childe shalt be called the prophete of the hyest: for thou shalt go before the LORDE, to prepare his wayes.

And to geue knowledge of saluacion vnto his people, for remyssion of their synnes.

Through the tender mercy of our God, whereby the day spring from an hye hath vysited vs.

That he might geue light vnto them, that syt in darknesse and shadow of death, and dyrect our fete in the way of peace.

And the childe grewe, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the wyldernesse, tyll the tyme that he should be shewed vnto Israell.

The. ii. Chapter.

AND it came to passe in those dayes, that there went out a commaundement from Augustus the Emperour, that the hole world should be taxed. And this taxyng was fyrst made when Cyrenius was gouernour in Syria. And all went to be taxed, euery one into his owne cyte. Then Ioseph also went vp from Galile, out of the cyte of Nazareth, into Iewry, vnto the cyte of Dauid, which is called Bethlem, because he was of the house and lynage of Dauid that he might be taxed with Mary his spouse wyfe, which was with childe.

And it came to passe whyle they were there, the tyme was come that she should be delyuered. And she brought forth her fyrst begotten sonne, and wrapped him in swadlyng clothes, and layed him in a manger: because there was no roume for them within.

And there were in the same regyon shepherdes abyding in the fyeldes, and watching ouer their flocke by nyght. And lo, the angell of the LORDE stode by them, and the glorye of the LORDE shone rounde about them, and they were sore afrayed. And the angell sayd vnto them: Feare not. Beholde, I bryng you tydynges of great ioye, which shall be vnto all people. For vnto you is borne this day a Sauyour, which is Christ the LORDE, in the cyte of Dauid. And take this for a token: Ye shall fynde the babe wrapped in swadlyng clothes, and layed in a manger. And streight way there was by the angell a multitude of the heauenly hoste, which prayed God, and sayde: Glory be vnto God on hye, and peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good will.

And it came to passe, as the angels were gone from them into heauen, the shepherdes sayd one to another: Let vs now go euen vnto Bethlem, and se this thyng that is happened, which the LORDE hath shewed vnto vs. And they came hastely, and founde Mary, and Ioseph, and the babe lyenge in the manger. And when they had seene it, they published abroade the sayeng, that was told them of this childe. And all they that harkened vnto it, wondred at those thynges which the shepherdes reported vnto them. But Mary kept all these sayenges, and pondered them in her hert. And the shepherdes returned, prayenge and lauding God, for all that they had hard and seene, as vnto them was told.

And when eyght dayes were ended, that he should circumcised be, the name was called IESVS, which was named of the angell, before he was conceaued in the mother wombe.

And when the dayes of their purifyenge after the lawe of Moyses were come, they brought him to Hierusalem, to present him vnto the LORDE, (as it is written in the lawe of the LORDE: Euery man childe that openeth the matrice, shall be called holy vnto the LORDE) and that they might geue the offeryng, as it is spoken in the lawe of the LORDE, namely a payre of turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons.

And beholde, at Jerusalem there was a mā, whose name was Symeon, and the same man was iust, and feared God, and longed for the consolacyon of Israell, and the holy goost was in hym. And an answere was geuen hym of the holy goost, that he shulde not se death, before he had sene the LORDES CHRIST. And he came by inspiracyon into the temple.

And whan the elders brought the chylde IESVS in to the temple, to do for hym after the custome of the * lawe, then toke he hym vp in his armes, & praysed God and sayde. LORDE, nowe lettest thou thy seruaunte depart in peace, accordyng to thy promyse. For myne eyes have sene thy sauyoure, whome thou hast prepared for all people. * Lyght for the lightnyng of ỹ heythen, & for the prayse of ỹ people of Israell.

* And his father & mother maruayled at the thynges that were spoken of hym. And Symeon blessed them, & sayde vnto Mary his mother: Beholde, this (chylde) shall be set to a fall, and to an vprysynge agayne of many in Israell, & for a token, which shalbe spoken agaynst. And ỹ swearde shall pearse thy soule, that the thoughtes of many harts may be opened.

And there was a Prophetisse, one Anna, the doughter of Phanuell of the trybe of Aser, which was of a great age, & had lyued seuen yeares with her husbande frō hir virgynite, and had nowe ben a wedowe aboute fowre score & foure yeares, whiche came neuer from ỹ tēple, seruyng God with fastyng & prayenge, daye and nyght: the same came forth also the same houre, and praysed the LORDE, & spake of hym vnto all ỹ loked for the redempcyon at Jerusalem.

And whan they had performed al accordynge to the lawe of the LORDE, they returned into Galile, to theyr owne cyte Nazareth. And the chylde grewe, and wared stronge in spyrite, full of wysdome, and the grace of God was with hym.

And his elders wente to Jerusalem euery yeare at ỹ feast of Easter. And whāne he was twelue yeare olde, they went vp to Jerusalē, after ỹ custome of ỹ feast. And whan they had fulfylled the dayes, & were gone home agayne, the chylde IESVS abode styll at Jerusalem. And his elders knewe it not, but thought he had bene in ỹ company, & they came a dayes iourney, & sought hym amōge theyr kynsfolkes & acquaintaūce. And whā they founde hym not they wente agayne to Jerusalem, and sought hym.

And it fortuned after thre dayes, that they founde hym in the temple, syttynge amonge the teachers, hearynge them, and oppolynge them. * And all they that herde hym, wondred at his vnderstandynge and answeres. And whan they sawe hym, they were astonyed. And his mother sayde vnto hym: Why sonne, why hast thou done thus vnto vs? Beholde, thy father and I haue sought ỹ sorowynge. And he sayd vnto thē: * What is it, that ye haue sought me? Wyst ye not, ỹ I must go about my fathers busynes? And they * vnderstode not the sayenge that he spake vnto thē. And he went downe with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient vnto them. * And his mother kept all these wordes in her herte. And * IESVS increased in wysdome, age and fauour with God and men.

The. iii. Chapter.

In the fyftenth yeare of the raygne of Tyberius the Emperoure, whan Pontius Pylate was lyftenaunt in Jewry * and Herode one of the foure prynces in Galile, and his brother Philippe one of the foure prynces in Iturea, and in the coastes of Traconites, and Lysanias one of the foure prynces of Abilene, whan Hannas and Cayphas were hye prestes, then came ỹ worde of God vnto Jhon ỹ sonne of Zacharye in the wyldernesse. * And he came in to all the coastes aboute Jordane, and preached the baptyme of repentaunce for the remyssyon of synnes. As it is wrytten in the sayenges of Esaye the prophete, which sayeth. * The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes: prepare the waye of the LORDE, and make his pathes straught. Euery valley shalbe fylled, and euery moūtayne and hyll shalbe brought lowe, and what so is croked, shalbe made strayght, and what roughe is, shalbe made smooth, and all flesh shall se the saluacyon of God.

* Then sayde he vnto the people, that went out to be baptysed of hym: ye generacyon of vypers, who hath certifyed you, that ye shal escape the wrath to come? Take hede, and bryng forth due frutes of repentaūce, & begynne not to say: We haue Abraham to our father. For I say vnto you: God is able of these stones to rayse vp chyldren vnto Abraham. The. ii. Chapter. ✠

¶ IT fortuned at ỹ same tyme, that there wente out a cōmaūdement from Augustus the Emperour, that the whole worlde shulde be taxed. And this taxynge was the fyrst that was executed, whā Cyrenius was lyfetenaunt in Syria. And they wēt all, euery one to his owne cyte to be taxed. Then Joseph gat hym vp also frō Galile, out of the cyte of Nazareth, in to Jewry, to the cyte of

1.Mc.16.a and.20.d. Dauid * whiche is called Bethlee, (because he was of the house & lynage of Dauid) that he myght be taxed with Mary his spoused wyfe, whiche was with chylde.

* And it fortuned whyle they were there, the tyme was come, that she shulde be delyuered. And she brought forth hir fyrst begotten sonne, & wrapped hym in swadlyng clothes, and layed hym in a maunger: for they had els no rowme in the innes.

¶ And there were in the same regyon shepherdes in the feld by the foldes, & watchyng theyr flocke by nyght. * And beholde, ỹ angell of the LORDE stode by thē, & the brightnes of the LORDE shone rounde about thē, & they were sore afrayed. And ỹ angell sayd vnto them, be not afrayed. Behold, I bryng you tydynges of great ioye, which shal happen vnto all people: for vnto you this daye is borne the sauioure, euen CHRIST the LORDE, in ỹ cyte of Dauid. And take this for a token: ye shall fynde ỹ babe swadled, & layed in a maunger. And straight waye there was by the angell, a multitude of heauenly hoostes, which praysed God, & sayde: Glory be vnto God on hye, and peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good wyll. ✠

¶ And it fortuned whā the angels were gone from them in to heauen, ✠ the shepherdes sayd one to another: let vs go now euen vnto Bethleem, & se this thyng ỹ is happened, which the LORDE hath shewed vnto vs. And they cam ẏ hayst, & foūde both Mary, & Joseph, & the babe layed in the maunger. And whan they had sene it, they publisshed abrode the sayeng, that was tolde them of this chylde. And all they that herde it wondred at the wordes, whiche the shepherdes had tolde them. But Mary kepte all these sayenges, & pondred them in hyr harte. And the shepherdes returned, prayesynge & laudynge God, for all that they had herde and sene euen as it was tolde them. ✠

✠ * And when eyght dayes were ended, that ỹ chylde shulde be circūcysed, his name was called IESVS, * whiche was named of the angell, before he was conceaued in his mothers wombe. ✠

✠ And whan ỹ dayes of their purification * after the lawe of Moses, were come, they * brought hym to Jerusalem, ỹ they myght presēt hym vnto ỹ LORDE, (as it is wrytten in ỹ lawe of the LORDE: * Euery man chyld that fyrst openeth the matrix, shall be called holy vnto the LORDE) and that they myght geue the offeryng, as it is wrytten in ỹ lawe of the LORDE (namely) a payre of turtle doues, or two yonge pigeons.

And beholde, at Jerusalem there was a mā, whose name was Symeon, and the same man was iust, and feared God, and longed for the consolacyon of Israell, and the holy goost was in hym. And an answere was geuen hym of the holy goost, that he shulde not se death, before he had sene the LORDS CHRIST. And he came by inspiracyon into the temple.

And whan the elders brought the childe IESVS in to the temple, to do for hym after the custome of the * lawe, then toke he hym vp in his armes, & praysed God and sayde. LORDE, nowe lettest thou thy seruaunte depart in peace, accordyng to thy promyse. For myne eyes have sene thy sauyoure, whome thou hast prepared for all people. * Yght for the lightenyng of ỹ Heythen, & for the prayse of ỹ people of Israell.

And his father & mother maruayled at the thynges that were spoken of hym. And Symeon blessed them, & sayde vnto Mary his mother: Beholde, this (childe) shall be set to a fall, and to an vprysynge agayne of many in Israell, & for a token, which shalbe spoken agaynst. And ỹ swearde shall pearse thy soule, that the thoughtes of many harts may be opened.

And there was a Prophetisse, one Anna, the doughter of Phanuell of the trybe of Aser, which was of a great age, & had lyued seuen yeares with her husbande frō hir virginite, and had nowe ben a wedowe aboute fowre score & foure yeares, whiche came neuer from ỹ tēple, seruyng God with fastyng & prayenge, daye and nyght: the same came vnto also the same houre, and praysed the LORDE, & spake of hym vnto all ỹ loked for the redempcyon at Jerusalem.

And whan they had perfourmed al accordynge to the lawe of the LORDE, they returned into Galile, to theyr owne cyte Nazareth. And the childe grewe, and wared stronge in spyrite, full of wysdome, and the grace of God was with hym.

And his elders wente to Jerusalem euery yeare at ỹ feast of Easter. And whāne he was twelue yeare olde, they went vp to Jerusalē, after ỹ custome of ỹ feast. And whan they had fulfylled the dayes, & were gone home agayne, the childe IESVS abode styll at Jerusalem. And his elders knewe it not, but thought he had bene in ỹ company, & they came a dayes iourney, & sought hym amōge theyr kynsfolkes & acquaintaūce. And whā they founde hym not they wente agayne to Jerusalem, and sought hym.

And it fortuned after thre dayes, that they founde hym in the temple, sittynge amonge the teachers, hearynge them, and oppoynge them. * And all they that herde hym, wondred at his vnderstandynge and answeres. And whan they sawe hym, they were astonyed. And his mother sayde vnto hym: Wy sonne, why hast thou done thus vnto vs? Beholde, thy father and I haue sought ỹ sorowynge. And he sayd vnto thē: * What is it, that ye haue sought me? Wyst ye not, ỹ I must go about my fathers busynes? And they * vnderstode not the sayenge that he spake vnto thē. And he went downe with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient vnto them. * And his mother kept all these wordes in her herte. And * IESVS increased in wysdome, age and fauour with God and men.

IEsus ful of the holy goost, cam agayne from Jordane, and was led of the spyrete in to wyldernesse, and forty dayes longe was he tempted of the deuell.
* And in those dayes dyd he eate nothyng. And whan they were ended, he hongred afterwarde. And the deuell sayde vnto hym: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde this stone, that it be breade. And IESVS answered and sayde vnto hym: It is wrytten, * Man shall not lyue by bread onely, but by euery worde of God, and the deuell toke hym vp in to an hyghe mountayne, & shewed vnto hym all the kyngdomes of the whole worlde in the twynckelynge of an eye, and sayde vnto hym: All thys power wyll I gene vnto the, and the glory therof, for it is geuen ouer vnto me, and I geue it to whom I wil. yf thou now wilt worshippe me, they shal all be thyn. IESVS answered him, & said: Auoyde fro me thou Sathan. It is wrytte * Thou shalt worshyppe the LORDE thy God, and hym onely shalt thou serue.
And he caryed hym to Jerusalem, & set hym vpon a pynacle of the temple, & sayde vnto him: yf thou be the sonne of God, cast thy selfe downe from hence. For it is wrytte * he shall geue hys angels charge ouer ỹ, to kepe the, and with their handes they shal bere the vp, that thou dashe not thy fote agaynst a stone. And IESVS answered, and sayd vnto hym It is sayd: * Thou shalt not tempte the LORDE thy God. And whan the deuell had ended al the temptacions, he departed from hym for a season.
 And IESVS cam agayn in the power of the spyrete in to Galile. And the fame of hym was noysed thorow out all the region rounde aboute. And he taught in their synagoges, & was commended of euery man.
* And he came vnto Nazareth wher he was nourysed, & as his costume was, he wet in to the synagoge vpon the Sabbath, and stode vp for to rede. Then was there delyuered hym the * boke of the prophete Esay And whan he had turned ouer the boke, he found the place where it is wrytte: * The spyrete of the LORDE is vpon me, because he hath anoynted me: to preache the Gospell vnto the poore hath he sent me: to heale the broken harted: to preach delyueraunce to ỹ captyue, and sight to the blynde: and frely to set at lyberty them that are brused: and to preach the acceptable yeare of the LORD,
And whan he had closed the boke, he gaue it agayne to the mynyster, and sat hym downe. And the eyes of all that were in the Synagoge, were fastened on hym. And he beganne to saye vnto them: Thys daye is thys scrypture fulfylled in youre eares.

A Mat.4.c Marc.1.b IT came to passe that the people prealled vpon hym to heat the worde of God, and he stode by the lake of Genazareth, and sawe two shyppes stonde by the lake syde: but the fyshers were gone out of them and had washed theyr nettes. Then wente he in to one of the shyppes, which was Symons, and prayed hym, that he wold thrust out a lytle from the londe. And he sat hym downe, and taught the people out of the shyppe.

And whan he had lefte of talkynge, he sayde vnto Symon: Launch out in to the depe, and let shyppe youre nettes to make a draught. And Symon answered, & sayde vnto hym: Master we haue laboured al the nyght, and taken nothynge. But vpon thy worde, I wyll lowse the net. And whã they had so done, they toke a greate multytude of fyshes: and theyr nette brake. And they made sygnes to theyr felowes which were in the other shyppe, that they shulde come and helpe them. And they came and fylled both the shyppes full, so that they sonke.

B Whan Symon Peter sawe that, he fell downe at IESVS knees, and sayde: LORDE, go fro me, for I am a synful man: For he was astonnyed, and all that were with hym, at this draught of fyshes which they toke, and so were Iames and Jhon also the sonnes of Zebede, which were Symons cõpanyons. And IESVS sayde vnto Symon: Feare not, for from hence forth thou shalt take men. And they brought the shyppes to londe * and lefte all, and folowed hym. ✠ Mat.4.c

* And it fortuned as he was in a cyte, beholde there was a man ful of leprosy. Whã he sawe IESVS, he fell vpon hys face, & desought hym, and sayde: LORDE, yf thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. And he stretched out hys hond, and touched hym, and sayde: I wyl, be thou cleane. And immediatly the leprosy departed from hym. And he charged hym, that he shulde tell no man but go thy waye (sayde he) and shewe thy selfe vnto the preste, and offre for thy clensynge, as * Moses commaunded, for a wytnes vnto them. But the fame of hym wente out farther abrode, and there came much people together, to heare him, and to be healed by him from theyr sycknesses. But rather loue ye youre enemyes, do good, and lende, lokynge for nothynge therof agayn: so shall youre rewarde be great, and ye shal be the chyldren of the Hyghest, for he is kynde, euen to the vnthankfull & to ꝑ euell.

soeuer commeth vnto me, and heareth my wordes, and doth them, I wyl shewe you to whome he is lyke: He is lyke vnto a man, whiche buylded a house, and dygged depe, and layed the foundacion vpon a rocke. When the waters came, the flondes beate vpon that house, and could not move it: for it was grounded vpon the rocke. But he that heareth, and doth not, is lyke vnto a man that buylded hys house vpon ꝑ earth wythout foundacyon, and the streames beat vpon it, and it fell immediatly, and greate was the fall of that house.

The. vii. Chapter.

When he had ended his talking I vnto the people he wente in to Joh. 4. d Capernaum, and a captaynes seruaunt laye deade sycke, whō he loued. When he herde of IESVS, he sente the elders of the Jewes vnto hym, and prayed hym, that he wolde come, and make hys seruaunt whole. But when they came to IESVS, they besought hym, instantly, and sayd: He is worthy that thou shuldest shewe this for hym, for he loueth oure people, and hath buylded vs the synnoge. And IESVS wente wyth them.

Now when they were not farre from the house, the captayne sent frendes vnto hym, sayenge vnto hym: Oh LORDE trouble not thy selfe, I am not worthy, that thou shuldest enter vnder my rofe. And therfore I thought not my selfe worthy to come to the but speake the worde, and my seruaunt shal be whole. For I my selfe am a man, subiect to the higher auctorite, and haue souldiers vnder me. And I saye vnto one: Go, and he goeth. And to another: come, and he commeth. And to my seruaunt do thys, and he doeth it. When IESVS herde that, he marueyled at hym, and turned hym about, and sayde vnto the people that folowed hym, I saye vnto you. So greate fayth haue I not found, no not in Israel. And when they ꝑ were sent came home agayne, they found the seruaunt that was sycke whole.

And it fortuned afterwarde, that he went in to a cyte called Naim. And many of hys disciples went with hym, and much people. Whan he came nye to the gate of the cyte, beholde, there was caryed out one dead, whiche was the onely sonne of hys mother, and she was a wedowe, and muche people of the cyte, went with her. And whan the LORDE sawe her, he hadde compassy-
on her, and sayde vnto her: Wepe not.
And he came nye, and touched the coffyn.
And they that dyd beare hym stode styll,
And he sayde: yonge man, I saye vnto the, Aryse. And * the deade sat vp, and be-ganne to speake. And he delyuered hym vnto hys mother. And there came a feare on them all, and they praysed God, & sayde:
A great Prophete is rysen vp amonge vs,
and God hath visyted his people.

And this fame of hym was noysed in all Jewrye, and in all the regyons that laye rounde aboute.

And the disciples of Jhon shewed hym of all these thynges. * And Jhon called vn-
to hym two of hys disciples, and sent them vnto IESVS sayenge: Arte thou he that shall come, or shall we loke for anothes?
Whan the men came to hym, they sayde: Jhon the baptyst hathe sente vs vnto the,
sayeng: Arte thou he that shall come, or shal
we loke for another?

In the same houre healed he manye
from sycknesses and plages, and from euell spretes, and vnto many that were blynde, he gaue syght. And IESVS answered, and sayd vnto them: Go youre waye: shewe Jhon, what ye haue sene and herde. * The blynde se, the halteynge go, the lepers are clensed, the deafe heare, the deade aryse.
And the Gospel is preached vnto ꝑ poore,
and blessed is he, that is not offended at me.

Whan the messaungers of Jhon were departed, IESVS beganne to speake vnto the people concernynge Jhon: What are ye gone out for to se in the wyldernesse?
Wolde ye se a rede, that is shaken with the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to se?
Wolde ye se a man clothed in soft rayment?
Beholde they that are gorgeously araied,
and lyue delycately, are in kynges courtes.
Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a Prophet? yee I saye vnto you: one that is more then a Prophet. This is he of whome it is wrytten: * Beholde I sende my messaunger before thy face, whiche shall prepare thy waye before the. For I saye vnto you: Amonge them that are borne of wemen, there is no greatter prophete then Jhon the baptyst. Notwithstandynge he that is lesse in the kyngdome of God, is greater than he.

And all the people that herde hym, and D
the publicans iustifyed God, and were baptysed, with the baptyme of Jhon. But the Pharyses and scrybes despysed the counsell of God agaynste them selues, and were not baptysed of hym. * But the LORDE Mat.11.a. sayde: Where vnto shall I lyken the men of this generacyon? And whome are they lyke? They are lyke vnto chyldren whiche sytte in the markette: and crye one to another, and saye: We haue pyped vnto you, and ye haue not daunced, we haue mourned vnto you, and ye haue not wepte.
For Jhon the Baptyste came, and * dyd Mat.3.a. eate no bread, and dranke no wyne, and ye saye: he hathe the deuell. The sonne of man is come, eateth and drynketh, and ye saye: This man is a glutton and a wyne bybber, a frende of publicans, and synners. And wysdome is iustifyed of hyr chyldren.

 And one of the Pharyses desy- Mat.26.a red hym, that he wolde eate with hym. Mar.14.a And he wente in to the house, and sat hym downe at the table. * And beholde, there Joh.12.a.
was in the cyte a woman whiche was a synner. When she knewe that IESVS sat at the table in the Pharyses house, she brought a bore with oyntemente, and stode behynde at hys fete, and wepte, and be-ganne to water his fete with teares, and to drye them with the heares of hyr head, & kissed his fete, & anoynted them w̄ oyntmet.

But whan ꝑ Pharyse whiche had called E hym, sawe ꝑ, he spake wtin him selfe, & sayd: Luce.5.a.
If this mā were a prophete, he wold knowe who, & what maner of woman this is that toucheth hym, for she is a synner. And IE-SVS answered, & sayd vnto hym: Symon.
I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. He sayde: Master say on. A certayne lender had two detters, the one ought fyue hundreth pens, the other fyftye: but when they had nothing to paye, he forgaue thē both. Tell me, which of them wyll loue hym moost? Symon answered, & sayd: He, (I suppose) to whome he forgaue moost. Then sayde he vnto hym:
Thou hast iudged ryght.

And he turned hym to the woman and sayde vnto Symon: Seyst thou this woman? I am come in to thyne house, thou hast geuen me no water vnto my fete, but she hath watred my fete w̄ teares, & dryed

the with the heeres of hir head: Thou hast geuen me no kysse but she(sens the tyme she came in)hath not ceassed to kysse me fete. Thou hastenot anoynted my head w oyle, but she hath anoynted me head with oyntment. Therfore I saye vnto the: Many synnes are forgeue her, for she hath loued much But vnto whom lesse is forgeuen the same loueth the lesse.

And he sayde vnto her: Thy synnes are forgeuen the. Then they that sat at the table wyth him, beganne to saie within them selues: What is he this, that forgeueth synnes also? But he sayde vnto the woman: Thy fayth hath saued the. Go thy waye in peace. ✠

The.viii. Chapter.

AND it fortuned afterward that he wente thorow the cities and townes, and preached, & shewed the Gospell of the kyngdom of God, and the twelfe w hym

Luc.25.b. * And certayne wemen also whom he healed from euell spretes and infyrmities: Namely, Mary * which is called Magdalene Luc.24.a. out of whome wente seuen deuels, and Joanna the wyfe of Chusa Herodes stewarde and Susanna, and many other, that mynystred vnto them of theyr substaunce.

Mat.13.a. Mark.4.a ✠✠ Now whan much people was gathered together, and hasted vnto hym out of the cyties, he spake by a symilitude. There wente out a sower to sowe his sede, & whyle he was sowynge, some fell by the waye syde and was troden vnder fote, and the foules of the ayre dyd eate it vp. And some fell on the stone, and whan it was spronge vp, it wythred awaye, because it had no moystenes. And some fell among thornes, and the thornes sprange vp with it, and choked it. And some fell vpon a good grounde, and sprange and bare frute an hundreth folde. Whan he sayde this, he cried: Who so hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

B * And hys disciples axed hym, and said Mat.13.b. Mark.4.a What similitude is this? And he sayde: Vnto you it is geuen to knowe the misteries of the kyngdome of God, but vnto other in Esa.6.b. parables, * that though they se it, they should not se it, & though they heare it, they should not vnderstonde.

This is the parable: the sede is ꝑ worde of God: Is for those that are by the waye syde, they are they that heare it, afterwarde commeth the deuell, and taketh awaye the worde out of theyr hartes, that they shulde not beleue, and be saued. But they on the stone, are suche as whan they heare it, receaue the worde with ioye: and these haue no rote: they beleue for a whyle, and in the tyme of temptacion they fal awaye. Is for it that fell amonge the thornes are suche as heare it, and go forth amonge the cares ryches, & voluptuousnesses of this lyfe, & are choked and bryngе forth no frute. But that on the good grounde, are they ꝑ heare the worde, and kepe it in a pure good hart, and bryngе forth frute in patience. ✠

* No man lyghteth a candell, and co- Mat. Mar. Luc. uereth it with a vessell, or putteth it vnder a table, but setteth it vpon a candelstycke, that such as go in, may se lyght. * For ther Mat. is nothynge hyd, that shall not be openly Mar. shewed: and there is nothinge secrete, that shall not be knowen and come to lyghte. Take hede therfore how ye heare.

* For who so hath vnto hym shalbe geuen Mat. Mar. Luc. but who so hath not, from hym shalbe taken awaye, euen the same that he thynketh to haue.

There wente vnto hym his mother and C his brethren, and coulde not come at hym for the people. And it was tolde hym.

* Thy mother & thy brethren stonde wyth Mat. Mar. out, and wolde se the. But he answered and sayde vnto them. My mother and my brethren are those, which heare the word of God, and do it.

✠✠ And it fortuned vpon a certayn day Mat. that he wente in to a shyppe, and his disci- Mar. ples with hym, and he sayde vnto them: Let vs passe ouer to the other side of ꝑ lake And they thrust of from the londe. And as they sayled, he slepte. And there came a storme of wynd vpon the lake, and the wawes fell vpon them, and they stode in greate ieopardy. Then went they vnto hym, and waked hym vp, and sayde: Master, master, we perysshe. Then he arose, and rebuked the wynde, and the tempest of water, and they ceassed, and it wared calme. But he sayde vnto them: where is youre fayth? Neuertheles they were afrayed, and wondred, and sayde one to another: what is he thys? For he commaundeth the wyndes and the water, and they are obedient vnto hym. ✠

* And they sayled forth into the countre of Mat. Mar. the Gadarenytes, whiche is ouer agaynst Galyle.

And when he wente out to londe, there D met hym out of the cyte a man, whiche had a deuell longe tyme, & dyd weare no clothes and tarved in no house, but in the graues.

Nevertheles whan he sawe IESVS, he cryed and fell downe before hym, and cryed loude and sayde: What have I to do with the IESVS, the sonne of the hyest God? I beseke the, that thou wylt not tormente me. For he commaunded the vnclene spyrite, that he shulde departe out of the man, for he hadde plaged hym a longe season. And he was bounde with chaynes, and kepte with fetters, and he brake the bondes in sonder and was draven of the deuell in to the wyldernesse.

And IESVS ared hym and sayde: What is thy name? He sayde: Legion. for there were many deuels entred in to hym. And they besought hym, that he wolde not commaunde them to go into the depe. * But ther was there a greate heerde of swyne fedynge vpon the mountayne, and they besoughte hym, that he wolde geue them leaue, to entre in to the same. And he gaue them leaue. Then departed the deuels out of the man, and entred in to the swyne. And the heerde rushed headlynges with a storme in to the lake, and were drowned. But whan the heerdemen sawe what hadde chaunced, they fledde, and tolde it in the cyte and in the villages.

Then wente they out, for to se what was done, and came to IESVS, and founde the man (out of whome the deuils were departed) syttynge at IESVS fete, clothed, and in hys ryghte mynde, and they were afrayed. And they that hadde sene it, tolde them howe he possessed was healed. And the whole multytude of the countrey of the Gadarenes besoughte hym, that he wolde departe from them, for there was a greate feare come vpon them. * And he gatte hym in to the shyppe, and turned agayne. And the man out of whome the deuels were departed, besoughte hym, that he myght be with hym. But IESVS sente hym awaye, and sayde: Go home agayne, and shewe how great thynges God hathe done for the. And he wente hys waye and preached throughe out all the cytie, howe great thynges IESVS had done for hym.

* And it fortuned whan IESVS came agayne, the people receaued hym, for they wayted for hym. And beholde, there came a man named Jairus, (and he was a ruler of the synagoge) and fell at IESVS fete, and besoughte hym, that he wolde come in to his house. For he had but one doughter (vpon a twelfe yeare of age) and she laye at the poynte of deathe. And as he wente, the people thronged hym. * And a woman Mat. 9. c. Mar. 5. c. hauynge the bloudye yssue twelfe yeares, (whyche hadde spente all hyr substaunce vpon Phisicyans, and coulde be healed of none) came behynde, and touched the hemme of hys garmente, and immediatly hyr yssue of bloude was staunched.

And IESVS sayde: Who hathe touched me? But whan they all denyed, Peter sayde: and they that were with hym: Mayster, the people thronge the, and thruste the, and thou sayest: Who hathe touched me? IESVS sayd: Some bodye hathe touched me, for I fele, that there is vertue gone out fro me. But whan the woman sawe that she was not hydde, she came trembelyng, and fell downe before hym, and tolde hym before all the people, for what cause she hadde touched hym, and howe she was healed immedyatly. And he sayd vnto her: Doughter, be of good comforte, thy fayth hath made the whole, go thy waye in peace.

* Whyle he yet spake, there came Mat. 9. c. Mar. 5. b. one from the ruler of the Synagoges house, and sayd vnto hym: Thy doughter is deade, dysease not the mayster. Whan IESVS herde that, he answerd hym, and sayde: Feare not, beleue onely, and she shall be made whole. But whan he came in to the house, he suffred no man to go in saue Peter, and James, and Jhon, and the father and mother of the mayden. They wepte all, and sorowed for her. But he sayde: Wepe not, for she is not deade, but * sleepeth. And they laughed hym to scorne, knowynge well that she was deade. But he thruste them all out, and toke her by the hande, and cryed, and sayde: Mayden aryse. And hyr spyrite came agayne, and she arose strayghte waye. And he commaũded to gyue her meate.

Joh. 11. b.

And hyr elders were astonnyed. But he charged them, that they shulde tell no man, what was done.

The.ix.Chapter.

Mat.10.a Marc.3.b and.6.a. Luce.6.b.

AND he called the twelfe together, and gaue them power and auctorite ouer all deuels, and that they might heale diseases. And he sent them oute to preache the kyngdome of God, & to heale the sycke, and sayde vnto them: * Ye shall take Mat.6.a. Luce.10.a. nothynge with you by the waye, neither staffe, scrippe, nor breade, nor money, nor haue two coates. And in to what house so euer ye entre, there abyde, tyll ye go thence. * And who Mat.10.b Mar.6.b. Actu.13.c. soeuer receaueth you not, depart out of the same cytie, and shake of the duste from your fete for a wytnesse ouer them. And they departed, and wente thorowe the townes, preachynge the Gospell, and healynge euery where.

* Herode the Tetrarcha herde of Mat.14.a Mar.6.b. all that was done by hym. And he toke care, for so muche as it was sayde of some: Jhon is risen agayne frome the deade. Of some: Elias hathe appeared. Of some: One of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. And Herode sayde: Jhon haue I beheaded, who is thys then, of whome I heare suche thynges? And he desyred to se hym.

* And the Apostles came agayne, and tolde hym howe greate thynges Mat.14.b Mar.6.b. Joh.6.a. they hadde done. And he toke them to hym, and wente asyde in to a solitarye place by the cytie called Bethsaida. Whan the people knewe of it, they folowed hym. And he receaued them, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God, and healed suche as hadde nede therof. But the day beganne to go downe.

Then came the twelfe to hym, and sayde vnto hym: Lette the people departe from the, that they may go in to the townes rounde aboute, and in to the villages, where they maye fynde lodgynge and meate, for we are here in the wyldernesse. But he sayde vnto them: Geue ye them to eate. They sayde: We haue no more but fyue loaues and two fysshes. Excepte we shulde go and bye meate for so muche people (for there were vpon a fyue thousande men.) But he sayde vnto hys disciples: Cause them to sytte downe by fyftyes in a companye. And they dyd so, and made them all to syt downe. Then toke he the fyue loaues and two fysshes, and loked vp towarde heauen, and sayd grace ouer them, and gaue them to the disciples to set them before the people. * And they dyd eate, and were all satisfyed. And there were taken vp of that remayned to them twelfe basketes full of broken meate.

* And it fortuned whan he was alone at hys prayer, and hys disciples with hym, he axed them, and sayde: Whome saye the people that I am? They answered, and sayde: They saye, Thou arte Jhon the Baptyste. Some that thou arte Elias. Some: that one of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. But he sayde vnto them: Whome saye ye that I am? Then answered Symon Peter and sayde: * Thou arte that CHRIST of God. And he charged them straytely, and commaunded them, that they shulde tell this vnto no man, and sayde: * For the sonne of man must suffre many thynges, and be caste out of the Elders and of the hye prestes, and scribes, and be put to deathe and rise agayne the thyrde day.

* Then sayde he vnto them all: If ony man wyll folowe me, lette hym denye hym selfe, and take vp his crosse daply, and folowe me.

* For who soeuer wyll saue his lyfe, shall loose it. But who so loseth his lyfe for my sake, shall saue it. For what auauntage hathe a man, though he wane the whole worlde, and loseth hym selfe, or runneth in dammage of hym selfe? * Who so is ashamed of me and of my sayenges, of hym shall the sonne of man also be ashamed, whan he cōmeth in his glory, and in the glory of his father, and of the holy angels. * I saye vnto you of a trueth, there be some of them þ stonde hym, which shal not tayst of death, tyll they se the kyngdome of God.

And it foꝛtuned, that about an eyght dayes after these woꝛdes, he toke vnto him Peter, Jhon, and James, and wente vp into a mounte foꝛ to pꝛaye. And as he prayed, the shape of his countenaunce was chaiged of another fashion, & his garmẽt was whyte, & shyned: & beholde, two men talked with hym. Whiche were Moses & Elyas, that appeared gloꝛyously, & spake of his departynge, which he shulde fulfyll at Jerusalem. As foꝛ Peter and them that were with him, they were full of slepe. But whan they awoke, they sawe his gloꝛy, &
the two men stondynge with hym.

And it chaunsed, whan they departed from hym, Peter sayd vnto IESVS: Master, here is good beynge foꝛ vs. Let vs make thꝛe tabernacles: one foꝛ the, one foꝛ Moses, and one foꝛ Elyas, and wyste not what he sayde. But whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, and ouershā-dowed them. And they were afrayed when the cloude couered them. And out of the cloude there came a voyce, whiche sayde:
This is my deare sonne, *heare him. And whyle this voyce came to passe they foũde IESVS alone. And they kepte it close, and told no man in those dayes ony of y thyn-ges whiche they had sene.

And it chaũsed on y next day after, whã
they came downe from y mount, much peo ple met him: & beholde a man amonge the people cryed out, & said: Maister, I beseke the, loke vpon my sõne, foꝛ he is myne onely sone: beholde, the spꝛete taketh hym, & so-denly he cryeth, & he teareth hym, that he foameth, and with payne departeth he from hym, whan he hathe rente hym. And I besought thy disciples to caste hym out, and they coulde not. Then answered IESVS and sayd: O thou vnfaythfull and croked generacyon, howe longe shall I be with you, and suffre you? Bꝛynge hether thy sonne. And whan he came to hym, the de-uell rent hym and tare hym. But IESVS rebuked the foule spꝛete, and healed the childe, and delyuered hym to his father a-gayne. *And they were all amased at the myghtye powꝛer of God.

And whyle they wondꝛed euery one at al thinges which he dyd, he said vnto his disciples: Cõpꝛehende these sayenges in your eares. *Foꝛ the sonne of man must be de-liuered in to y hãdes of me. But they wyst not what that woꝛde meaned, & it was hyd frõ them, that they vnderstode it not. And they were afrayed to aꝛe hym of y woꝛde,
*There came a thought also amõge them, which of them shulde be the greatest. But whan IESVS sawe the thoughtes of theyꝛ hart, he toke a chylde, and set him harde by him, & sayde vnto them: *Who soeuer receaueth this chylde in my name, receaueth me: & who soeuer receaueth me, receaueth hym that sent me. *But who so is the least amonge you all, the same shalde great.

Then answered Jhon, and sayde: Master, we sawe one dꝛyue out deuels in thy name, and we foꝛbadde hym, foꝛ he fo-loweth the not with vs. And IESVS sayd vnto hym: foꝛbydde hym not: foꝛ he that is not agaynste vs, is foꝛ vs.

And it foꝛtuned whan the tyme was ful-fylled that he shulde be receaued vp from hence, he turned his face to go strayght to Jerusalem, & befoꝛe hym he sent messaun-gers, whiche went theyꝛ waye, & came in to a towne of y Samaritans to pꝛepare lodgyng foꝛ him. And they wolde not receaue hym, because he had turned his face to go to Jerusalem. But whã his disciples James & Jhon sawe that, they sayd: LORDE, wylt thou, that we cõmaunde, that fyꝛe fall downe from heauen, & consume them * as Elyas dyd? Neuertheles IESVS turned hym about, and rebuked them, and sayde: Knowe ye not of what maner of spꝛete ye are? The sonne of man is not come to de-stroye mens soules, but to saue them. And they went in to another towne.

 And it foꝛtuned as they went by the waye, one sayde vnto hym: I wyll folowe the, whether soeuer thou goest. And IESVS sayde vnto hym: The foxes haue holes, & the byꝛdes vnder the hauen haue nestes:
but the sonne of man hathe not wheron to laye his hea de.

*And he sayd vnto another: Folowe me.
He sayd: Syꝛ, geue me leaue fyꝛste to go, & bury my father. But IESVS said vnto hym:
*Let y dead bury their dead. But go thou hy waye & pꝛeache the kyngdome of God.

And another sayde: Syꝛ, I wyll fo-lowe the, * but gyue me leaue fyꝛst, to go bydde them fare well, whiche are at home

The seuentye came agayne with ioye, and sayde: LORDE, the deuels also are subdued vnto vs in thy name. But he sayde Esa.14.b. vnto them: * I sawe Sathan fall downe

* At the same houre reioyced IESVS in Mat. 11. spyrite, & sayde: I prayse the (O father, LORDE of heauen & earth) that thou haste hyd these thynges from the wyse and prudent, and haste opened them vnto babes. Euen so father, for so it pleased the. * All Mat. Joh. 3. thynges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: * and no man knoweth who the sonne is, but onely the father: nether who the father is, saue onely the sonne, & he to whom the sonne wyll open it. Mat. Joh. 1.3.10.

* And he turned him vnto his disciples, Mat. and sayd in especyall: Blessed are the eyes which se that ye se. For I saye vnto you: Many Prophetes & kynges, wolde haue sene the thynges that ye se, & haue not sene them: & to haue herde the thynges that ye heare, and haue not herde them.

* And beholde, there stode vp a scribe, & Mat. mar. tempted hym, & sayd: Mayster, what must I do, to enherete euerlastynge lyfe? He sayd vnto hym: What is wrytten in the lawe? Howe readeste thou? He answered & sayde: * Thou shalte loue thy LORDE God with Deu. all thy hart, with all thy soule, with all thy strength, & with all thy mynde, and * thy Leui. 19. c neyghbour as thy selfe: He said vnto hym: Thou hast answered ryght: this do, & thou shalt lyue. But he wolde haue iustyfyed hym selfe, and sayd vnto IESVS: Who is then my neyghboure?

The answered IESVS, & said: * A certayne D man went downe frō Jerusalem vnto Jericho, & fell amōge murtherers, which stryped hym out of his clothes, & wouded him, & went theyr waye, & lefte hym halfe dead. And by chaūce there came downe a preste the same way: & whan he sawe him, he passed by. And lyke wyse a Leuite, whā he came nye vnto ꝑ same place, & sawe hym, he passed by. But a Samaritan was goyng his iourney: & came that way, & whan he sawe him, he had compassyon vpon hym, wente vnto hym, bounde vp his woundes, and poured oyle and wyne therin, & lift him vp vpon his beast, and broughte hym in to the ynne, and made prouysion for hym. Upon the nexte daye whan he departed, he toke out two pens, and gaue them to ꝑ oost, and sayde vnto hym: Take cure of hym, and what soeuer thou spendest more, I will paye it the, whan I come agayne. Whiche of these thre nowe (thynkest thou) was neyghbour vnto hym, that fell amõge the murtherers? He sayde: He that shewed mercy vpon hym. Then sayd IESVS vnto hym: Go thy way the, & do thou lykewyse. ¶

* It foztuned as they wente, that he entred in to a towne, where there was a woman named Martha, which receaued hym into hyz house. And she had a syster, called Mary, which *sat her downe at IESVS fete, & herkened vnto his wozde. But Martha made hyz selfe much to do, foz to serue hym, And she stepte vnto hym, & sayd: LORDE, carest thou not, þ my syster letteth me serue alone? Byd her therfoze, that she helpe me. But IESVS answered, and sayde vnto her: Martha Martha, thou takest thoughte, & combrest thy selfe aboute many thynges: * there is but one thynge nedefull, Mary hath chosen a good parte, whiche shall not be taken awaye from her. ¶

The. xi. Chapter.

AND it foztuned that he was in a place, and prayed. And whan he had ceassed, one of his disciples sayd vnto hym: LORDE, teache vs to praye, as Jhon also taught his disciples. He sayd vnto them: * Whan ye prayе, say: O our father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy will be fulfylled vpon earth, as it is in heauen. Geue vs this day our dayly bread. And forgeue vs oure synnes, foz we also forgyue al them that are debters vnto vs. And lede vs not in to temptacyon, but delyuer vs from euell.

And he sayd vnto them: which of you is it that hath a frende, & shulde go to hym at mydnyght, & saye vnto hym: frende, lende me thre loaues, foz a frende of myne is come to me out of þ way, & I haue nothyng to set before hym: & he within shulde answere and say: Disquyete me not, þ doze is shut already, & my children are wt me in the chamber, I can not ryse, & geue the. I saye vnto you: though he wold not aryse & geue hym, because he is his frende, yet because of his vnshamefast beggynge he wolde aryse, & geue hym as many as he neded.

* And I saye vnto you also: Aske, and it shalbe geuen you: Seke, and ye shal fynde: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. Foz who soeuer axeth, he receaueth: and he that seketh, fyndeth: and to hym that knocketh, shall it be opened. ¶ If the sonne axe bread of any of you þ is a father, will he gyue hym a stone therfoze? Oz yf he axe a fysh, will he foz the fysshe, offre hym a serpente? Oz yf he axe an egge, will he proffer hym a scozpion? ¶ If ye then whiche are euell, can geue youre chyldren good gyftes, howe muche more shal the father of heauen geue þ holy spyrite vnto them that axe hym.

✣ * And he dzoue out a deuell that was domme: & it came to passe whan the deuell was departed out, the domme spake, & the people wondred. Mat.9.d. and.12.c.

* But some of them sayde, He dzyueth out the deuels, thozowe Belzebub the chefe of þ deuels. The other tempted hym, and desyred a token of hym from heauen. But he knewe they? thoughtes, & sayd vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuyded within it selfe, shalbe desolate, & one house shall fall vpon another. ¶ If Sathan then be at varyaunce within hym selfe, howe shall his kyngdome endure? Because ye say that I dzyue out deuels thozowe Belzebub. Mar.3.b.

And yf I dzyue out deuels thozowe Belzebub, by whome then do youre children dzyue them out? Therfoze shall they be your iudges. But yf I cast out the deuels by the fynger of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you.

* Whan a stronge harnessed man kepeth his house, þ he possesseth is in peace: Mat.12.f.
* but whan a stronger then he cõmeth vpon hym, and ouercõmeth hym, he taketh from hym all his weapens, wherin he trusted, & deuydeth þ spoyle. He that is not with me, is agaynst me: & he that gathereth not with me, scatereth abzode. Colo.2.b.

* Whan the vncleane spyrite is gone out of a man, he walketh thozowe dzye places, seekynge reste, and fyndeth none. Then sayeth he: I will turne agayne in to my house from whence I went out. And whan he commeth, he fyndeth it swepte, and garnyshed. Then goeth he, and taketh vnto hym seuen other spyrites, wozse then hymselfe. And when they are entred, they dwell there. And the ende of that man is wozse then the begynnynge. Mat.12.d ¶

✣ And it foztuned whã he spake suche, a certayne woman amonge the people, lyfte vp her voyce, and sayde vnto hym: Blessed is the wombe that bare the, and the pappes that thou haste sucked. But he sayde: yee, blessed are they that heare þ wozde of God, and kepe it. ¶

D But whyle he yet spake, a certayne Pha-ryse prayed hym, that he wolde dyne with
hym. And he wente in, and sat hym downe at the table. Whan the Pharyse sawe that, he maruayled, that he washed not fyrst be-

Mat.23.f. * But wo vnto you Pharises, ye that tyth

Mat.23.a Mar.12.b Luce.10.c. * Wo vnto you Pharyses, for ye loue to be saluted in the market. Wo vnto you scrybes and Pharyses, ye ypocrytes, for ye are lyke couered sepulcres, wherouer men walke, and are not a ware of them.

Then answered one of the scrybes, and sayde vnto hym: Mayster, with these wor-des, thou puttest vs to rebuke also. But Mat.23.e. he sayd: * And wo vnto you also ye scrybes, for ye lade men with vntollerable burthens, and ye youre selues touche them not with one of your fyngers.

* Wo vnto you, for ye buylde the se- C pulcres of the prophetes, but youre fathers Mat.
putte them to deathe. Doutlesse ye beare wytnesse, and consente vnto the dedes of youre fathers: for they slewe them, and ye buylde theyr sepulcres.

* Therfore sayde the wysdome of God: I Mat. wyll sende prophetes & Apostles vnto the:
and some of them shal they put to death and persecute, that the bloude of all the prophetes whiche hath ben shedde sence the foun-dacyon of the worlde was layed, may be requyred of this generacyon: from * ỹ bloude Gen.4.

quyred of this generacyon.

* Wo vnto you scrybes, for ye haue re- Mat. ceaued ỹ keye of knowlege: ye are not come in your selues, & haue forbydden them that wolde haue ben in.

Whan he spake thus vnto the, the scrybes and Pharyses beganne to preasse sore vpon hym, and to stoppe his mouthe with many questyons, and layed wayte for hym, and sought to hunte out some thynge out of his mouthe, that they myght accuse hym.

The.xii. Chapter.

THere gathered together an in- I numerable multytude of people, in so muche that they trode one another: Then begãne he, & sayd fyrst vnto his disciples: Mat.
* Beware of the leuen of ỹ Pharises, which Mar.

* But I say vnto you my frendes: be not Mat.
afrayed of them that kyll the body, & after ỹ 1.Pet.3. haue no more that they can do. But I wyll shewe you whom ye shall feare. Feare hym, whiche after he hath kylled, hath power also to caste in to hell: yee I saye vnto you: Feare hym. Are not fyue sparowes bought for two farthynges? yet is not one of them forgotten before god. The verye heres of youre heade also, are nombred euery one.
Feare not therfore, for ye are better then many sparowes.

I saye vnto you: *Who soeuer knowlegeth me before men, hym shal the sonne of man knowlege also before ỳ angels of God: But he that denyeth me before men, shalbe denyed before ỳ angels of God. *And who soeuer speaketh a worde agaynste the sonne of man it shalbe forgyuen hym: But who so blaspheme th the holy goost, it shal not be forgeuen hym.

*Whan they bringe you in to they^r synagoges, and to the rulers & offycers, take no thoughte howe, or what ye shall answere, or what ye shall speake: for the holy goost shall teache you in ỳ same houre what ought to saye.

But one of the people sayde vnto hym Master: bydde my brother deuyde the enheritaunce with me. Neuertheles he sayd vnto hym: Man, who hath sette me to be a iudge or herytage parter ouer you? And he sayd vnto them: Take hede, and beware of couetousnes, for no man lyueth therof, that he hath abundaūce of goodes. And he tolde them a similytude and sayde: There was a ryche man whose feldes had brought forth fruyte plentcously, & thought in hym selfe, and sayd: What shal I do? I haue nothyng wherin to gather my frutes, and he sayde: this wyll I do, I wyll breake downe my barnes, and buylde greater, and therin wyll I gather all myne increace, & my goodes, and wyll say vnto my soule. *Soule, thou haste muche goodes layed vp in stoare for many yeares, take nowe thyne ease, eate, drynke, & be merry. But God sayd vnto hym: *Thou foole, this nyght shall they requyre thy soule from the, * and whose shall it be ỳ thou haste prepared? Thus goeth it with hym that gathereth treasure for hymselfe, and is not ryche in God.

But he sayd vnto his disciples: *Therfore I saye vnto you: Take ye no thought for youre lyfe, what ye shall eate: nother for your body, what ye shall put on. The lyfe is more then meate, & the body more then rayment. Consyder ỳ rauens, they nether sowe nor reape, they haue also nether stoarehouse nor barne, & yet God fedeth them. But howe muche better are ye then the fowles?

*Whiche of you (thoughe he toke thought therfore) couide put one cubyte vnto his stature? Seynge then ye be not able to do ỳ which is least, why take ye thought for the other? Consyder the lylies vpon the felde, howe they growe: they laboure not, they spynne not. But I saye vnto you: that euen Salomon in all his royalte was not clothed lyke one of these. Wherfore yf god so clothe the gras that is to day in the felde, & to morowe shalbe cast in the fornace: howe muche more shall he clothe you, o ye of lytle faythe? Axe not therfore what ye shall eate, or what ye shall drynke, and clymme not vp on hye: The Heythen in the worlde seke after all such thinges. *But seke ye the kyngdome of God, and all these shalbe mynistred vnto you. 3.Re.3.b.

*Feare not thou lytle flocke, for it is pour fathers pleasure to gyue you ỳ kyngdome. Sell that ye haue, and geue almesse. *Make you bagges, which ware not olde, euen a treasure that neuer fayleth in heaue, where no theefe commeth, and no moth corruppeth: for where youre treasure is, there wyll youre harte be also. D Deut.7.c. and.10.a. Mat.6.c. and.19.c.

*Let youre loynes be gerded about, and youre lyghtes burnynge, & be ye lyke vnto men, ỳ wayte for they^r lorde, agaynst he returne from ỳ mariage, that whā he cōmeth & knocketh, they may straycht way open vnto hym. Blessed are those seruaūtes, whome the lorde (whan he commeth) shall fynde wakyng. Verely I say vnto you: *He shall gyrde vp hym selfe, & make thē syt downe at ỳ table, & shall go by them, & mynyster vnto them. And yf he come in the seconde watche, & in the thyrde watche, and fynde them so, blessed are those seruauntes. * But be sure of this, that yf the good man of the house knewe, what houre the theefe wolde come, he wolde surely watche, & not suffre his house to be broken vp. *Therfore be ye ready also, for at an houre whan ye thynke not, shal the sonne of man come. But Peter sayde vnto hym: LORDE, tellest thou this symilytude vnto vs, or to all me^n also? The LORDE sayd: Howe great a thynge is a sayethfull and wyse stewarde, whom his lorde setteth ouer his housholde, to geue them they^r duetye in due season? * Blessed is that seruaunte, whome his lorde (whā he cōmeth) shall fynde so doyng. Verely I say vnto you: he shal set hym ouer all his goodes. *But yf ỳ same seruaūt shal say in his hart: Tusshe, it wyll be longe or my lorde come, & shall begynne to smyte ỳ seruaūtes & maydens, yee & eate and drynke, & to be dronken: the same seruaūtes lorde shal come in a day whan he loketh not for hym, & in an houre that he is not aware of, & shall hewe hym in peces, & geue him his rewarde with the vnbeleuers. The.xiii. Chapter.

Acts.5.c. THere were pꝛesent at the same season certayne, that shewed hym of the * Galileans, whose bloude Pylate had mengled ẅ theyꝛ own sacrifyce. And IESVS answered, and sayde vnto them: Suppose ye, that these Galileãs were greater synners then all other Galileans, because they suf-fred suche punyshment? I tell you naye, but except ye amende youre selues, ye shall al pe-ryshe lykewyse. Oꝛ thynke ye that the eyght-tene (vpon whom the towꝛ in Syloe fell & slewe thẽ) were gyltie aboue al men ỹ dwel at Ierusalẽ? I tel you nay: but except ye a-mend your selues, ye shal al perysh lykewise

✝ And he tolde them thys symylitude:
* A certayne man had a fygge tre, whiche was planted in his vynyard, and he came & sought frute therom, and founde none. Thẽ sayde he vnto the wynegardener: Beholde, This thꝛe yeare longe haue I come euery yeare, and sought frute vpon this figge tre, and fynde none: cut it downe, why hyndꝛeth it the grounde? But he answered, and sayde: Syꝛ, let it alone yet this yeare, tyll I dygge rounde aboute it, and donge it, yf it wyll bꝛynge foꝛth frute: yf no, then cut it downe afterwarde.

And he taught in a synagoge vpon the Sabbath: and beholde, there was a woman whiche had a spꝛyte of infyrmyte eyghtene yeares, and was croked, and coulde not wel loke vp. Whan IESVS sawe her, he cal-led her to hym, and sayde vnto her. Womã be delyuered from thy disease: & he layed his handes vpon her, and immediatly she was made strayght and pꝛaysed God.

Then answered the ruler of the synago-ge, and toke indignacion (because IESVS hea-led vpon the Sabbath) and sayde vnto the people: There are syx dayes, wherin men ought to woꝛke, in them come, and be hea-led, and not on the Sabbath.

Then the LORDE answered hym, and sayde. Thou ypocryte * doth not euery one of you lowse hys oxe oꝛ asse from the crybbe vpon the Sabbath, and leade hym to ỹ wa-ter? But shulde not thys (which is Abꝛahãs doughter) whom Sathan hath bound now eyghtene yeares, be lowsed from this bonde vpon the Sabbath? And whan he thus said all hys aduersaries were ashamed. And all the people reioyced ouer all the excellent de-des, that were done by hym.

* And he sayde: what is the kyngdome of God lyke? Oꝛ wherunto shall I compare it? It is like a grayn of mustard sede, which a man toke, and cast in hys garden: and it grewe, and wared a greate tre, and the fow-les of the ayꝛe dwelt amonge the bꝛaun-ches of it.

* And agayne he sayde: where vnto shal I lyken the kyngdome of God? It is lyke vnto leuen, * which a woman toke, and myxte it amonge thꝛe peckes of meele, tyll it was all leuended.

* And he wente thoꝛow cities and tow-nes, and taught and toke hys iourney to-warde Ierusalem.

And one sayde vnto hym: LORDE, are there few (thynkest thou) that shalbe saued? But he sayde vnto them: * Stryue ye to ynto you) shal seke to come in, and shal not be able. From that tyme forth, whan the good man of the house is rysen vp, & hath shut the doze, then shal ye begynne to stond wythout, and to knocke at the doze, and saye: * LORDE LORDE, open vnto vs. And he shall answere, and say vnto you: I wote you not whence ye are.

Then shall ye begynne to saye: we haue eaten and dronke before the, and thou hast taught vs vpō the stretes. And he shal say: I tell you, I knowe you not whence ye are. Departe fro me all ye workers of iniquite. There shalbe wepynge and gnashyng of teth, when ye shall se Abraham, & Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophetes in the kyngdome of God, and youre selues cast out, * And whan they shall come from the easte and from the weste, from the north and from the south, which shall sit at the table in the kyngdome of God. And beholde, there are last, which shall be first.

Upon the same daye ther came certayn of the Pharises, and sayde vnto hym: Get the out of the waye, and departe hence, for Herode wyll kyll the. And he sayde vnto them. Go ye and tel the foxe: behold, I cast out deuels, and heale the people to daye, & to morowe, and vpon the thyrde daye shall I make an ende: for it can not be, that a prophet perysh wythout Jerusalem.

* O Jerusalem Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophetes, and stonest them that are sent vnto the, how oft wolde I haue gathered thy children together, euen as the henne gathereth hyr nest vnder hyr wynges and ye wolde not? Beholde, youre habytacion shall be left vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: ye shall not se me tyl the tyme come that ye shall saye: * Blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the LORDE.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

And it fortuned that he came in the house of one of the chefe Pharisees vpon a Sabbath, to eat bread, and they watched hym. And beholde, there was a man before hym: which had the dropsye. And IESVS answered and spake vnto the lawyers and Pharises, and sayde: * Is it lawfull to heale on the Sabbath? But they helde their tunge. And he toke hym, & healed hym, and let hym go, and answered and sayde vnto them: Whiche of you shall haue an ore or an asse fallen in to a pytte, and wyll not straycht waye pull hym out * on the Sabbath daye? And they coulde not answere hym agayne to that. Exo. 23.a. Deu. 22.a.

And he told a symylitude vnto the gestes whan he marked howe they chose the hyghest seates, & sayd vnto them: Whan thou art bydden of ony man to a weddyng syt not downe in the hyghest rowme, lest a more honorable man then thou be bydden of hym, and he that bad bothe the and hym come and saye vnto the: geue thys man rowm, and thou then beginne wyth shame to take the lowest rowme. But rather whā thou arte bydden, go and syt in the lowest rowme, that whan he that bad the, commeth, he maye saye vnto the: * Frende, syt vp hyer. Then shalt thou haue worshyppe in the presence of them that sytte at the table. * For whosoeuer exalteth hym selfe, shalbe brought low: and he that humbleth hymselfe, shalbe exalted. B Pro. 25.a. Mat. 23.b Luce. 18.b.

He sayde also vnto hym that hadde bydden hym: Whan thou makest a dyner or a supper, cal not thy frēdes, nor thy brethren nor thy kynsfolkes, nor thy ryche neghbours, lest they call the agayne, and recompence be made the. * But whan thou makest a feaste, call the poore, the crepell, the lame, then art thou blessed, for they can not recompēce the. But it shalbe recompensed the in the resurrection of the righteous. Tob. 4.a.

Whan one of them that sat vp at the table herde this, he sayde vnto hym: Blessed is he, that eateth breade in the kyngdome of God. But he sayde vnto hym: * A certaynne man made a greate supper, and called many therto. And in the houre of the supper he sent hys seruaunt to saye vnto them that were bidden: Come, for now are all thynges ready. And they beganne altogether to excuse thē selues one after another: The fyrst sayde vnto hym: I haue bought a ferme, and I must nedes go forth and se it, I praye the haue me excused. And the secōde sayde: I haue bought fyue yoke of oxen, & now I go to proue them, I praye the haue me excused. And the thyrde sayde: I haue maryed a wyfe, therfore cā I not com. And the seruaunt came, and brought hys Lorde worde agayne therof. Mat. 22.a Apo. 19.b.

Then was the good man of the house displeased, and sayde vnto hys seruaunt: Go out quycly in to the stretes and quarters of the cyte, and bryng in hether the poore, and crepell, and lame, and blynde. And the seruaunt sayd: Lorde, it is done as thou hast

And he deuyded the good vnto them. And not longe therafter, gathered the ponger sonne altogether, and toke hys iourney in to a farre countre, and there wasted he his

Then went his father out, and prayed hym. But he answered and sayde vnto his father: Lo, thus many yeares haue I done the seruyce, neither haue I yet broken thy commaundement, and thou gauest me neuer one kydde, that I myght make mery wyth my frendes. But now that thys thy sonne is come, whiche hath deuoured hys goodes wyth harlottes, thou hast slayne a fed calfe. But he sayde vnto hym. The.xvi.Chapter.

HE sayde also vnto his disciples There was a certayne ryche man, whiche had a stewarde, that was accused vnto hym, y he had wasted hys goodes. And he called hym, and sayde vnto hym: How is it, that I heare thys of the? geue accomptes of thy stewardshyppe, for thou mayest be no longer steward. The steward sayde within hymselfe. What shall I do? My Lorde wyll take awaye the stewardeshyppe fro me. I can not dygge, and to beg I am ashamed. I wote what I wyll do, that whan I am put out of the stewardshyp they maye receaue me in to theyr houses. And he called vnto hym all hys lordes debters, and said vnto the fyrst: How much owest thou vnto my lorde? He sayd: an hundreth tonnes of oyle. And he sayde: Take thy bill, syt downe quyckly, and wryte fyftie. Then sayde he vnto another: How muche owest thou? He sayd an hundreth quarters of wheat. And he sayd vnto hym: Take thy bill, and wryte fourescore. And the Lorde commended the vnrighteous stewarde, because he had done wysely. For the chyldren of thys worlde are in theyr kynde wyser, then the chyldren of lyght. And I saye vnto you: Make you frendes with the vnrighteous Mammon, that whan ye shall haue nede, they maye receaue you in to euerlastynge tabernacles.

He that is faythfull in the least, is fayth full also in muche: and he that is vnrighteous in the least, is vnrighteous also in muche. yf ye then haue not bene faythfull in the vnrighteous Mammon, who wil beleue you in y which is treu? And yf ye haue not bene faythful in another mâs busynes who wyll geue you y which is your owne.

* No seruaunt can serue two masters: for eyther he shal hate the one, and loue the other, or els he shall leane to the one, and despyse the other. ye can not serue God, and Mammon. Mat. 6.c.

All these thynges herde the Pharisees, whiche were couetous, and they mocked hym. And he sayde vnto them: ye are they that iustyfye youre selues before men, but God knoweth your hartes. For y which is hyghe amonge men, is an abhominacyon before God.

+ There was a certayne ryche man, whiche clothed hym selfe wyth purple, and costly lynnen, and fared delycyously euery daye. And there was a poore man named Lazarus, whiche laye at hys gate ful of sores, and desyred to be fylled wyth the crommes, that fell from the ryche mans table. yet came to dogges, and lycked hys sores. But it fortuned, that the poore man dyed, and was carryed of the Angels in to Abrahams bosome. The ryche man dyed also, and was buryed.

Now whan he was in the hell, he lyft vp hys eyes in the payne, and sawe Abraham afarre of, and Lazarus in his bosome and he cried and sayd: father Abrahã, haue mercy vpon me, and send Lazarus, that he maye dyppe the typpe of his fynger in water and coole my tunge, for I am tormẽted in this flamme. Then sayde he: I praye the then father that thou wylt sende hym vnto my fathers house, for I haue yet fyue brethren that he maye warne them, lest they also come into thys place of torment. Abraham sayde vnto hym: They haue Moses and the Prophetes let them heare them. But he sayde: Nay father Abraham, but yf one wente vnto them from the deade, they wolde do penaunce. And the Apostles sayde vnto the LORDE: Increase oure fayth. The LORDE sayde: * yf ye haue fayth as a grayne of mustarde seede, and saye vnto thys Mulberye tree: Plucke thy selue vp by the rotes, and plante thy selfe in the see, it shall be obedient vnto you. Which of you is it, that hath a seruaunt (which ploweth or fedeth the cat tell) whan he commeth home from the feld, that he wyll saye vnto hym: Go quyck, and syt downe to meate, Is it not thus? that he sayeth vnto hym: Make ready that I may suppe: gyrde vp thy selfe, and serue me, tyll I haue eate and dronken, afterwarde shalt thou eate and drynke also. Thanketh he the same seruaunt also, because he dyd that was commaunded hym? I trow not. So lykewyse ye, whan ye haue done all þ I commaunde you, saye: We are vnprofytable seruauntes, we haue done that we were bounde to do.

+ And it fortuned, whan he toke hys iourney toward Jerusalem, he wente thorowe the myddest of Samaria, and Galile. And as he came in to a towne, ther met hym ten leperous men, which stode afarreoff and lyft vp their voyce, and sayde: IESV master, haue mercy vpon vs. And whan he sawe them, he sayde vnto them. * Go and Leui. shewe youre selues vnto the priestes. And it came to passe, as they went, they were clensed, and one of them whan he sawe that he was clensed he turned backe agayne, and prayed God wyth loude voyce, and fell down on hys face at his fete, and gaue thankes. And the same was a Samaritane. IESVS answered and sayde: Are there not ten clensed? But where are those nyne? There were els none founde, that turned agayne, and gaue God the prayse, saue onely thys straunger. And he sayde vnto hym: Aryse go thy way, thy faith hath made þ whole.

But whan he was demaunded of the Pharisees: whan commeth the kyngdome of God? He answered them, and sayd: The kyngdome of God commeth not with outwarde appearaunce, nether shal it be sayd Lo, here or there is it. For beholde, þ kyngdome of God is inwarde in you.

And he sayde to the disciples: The tyme shall come, whan ye shall desyre to se one daye of the sonne of man, and shal not se it. * And they shall saye vnto you. Se here, Se there. Go not ye, nother folowe, for as the lyghtenynge shyneth aboue from the heauen, and lyghteth ouer all that is vnder the heauen, so shal the sonne of man be in hys daye. * But fyrst must he suffre many thynges, and be refused of this generatiõ.

And as it came to passe in the tyme of Noe, so shal it come also in þ dayes of the sonne of man. They ate, they dranke they maryed, and were maryed, * euen vnto the daye that Noe wente in to the arcke, and the floude came and destroyed them al.

Lykewyse also as it came to passe in the tyme of Lot, they dyd eat, they dyd drynke they bought, they solde, they planted, they builded. * But euen the same daye that Lot went out of Sodome, it rayned fyre & brim stone from heauen, and destryed them all. After thys maner shall it go, in the daye whan the sonne of man shall appeare.

* And at that daye, who so is vpon the roffe, and hys stuffe in the house, let him not come downe to fetche it: Lykewyse he that is in the felde, let him not turne back, for it that is behynde hym. * Remember Lottes wyfe. + Who so euer goeth about to saue hys lyfe, shall lose it, and who so euer shal lose it, shal saue it.

I saye vnto you: In that nyght shall two lye vpon one bedde, the one shalbe receaued, the other shalbe forsaken. * Two shalbe grynding together, the one shall be receaued, the other shalbe forsaken. And they answered, and sayde vnto hym. Where LORDE? He sayde vnto them: Where soeuer the dead carcase is, ther wil the Iegels be gathered together.

The.xviii. Chapter.

He told them a symylitude, signifyenge, that men ought, *alwayes to praye, and not to leaue of, and sayde: There was a iudge in a cyte, whiche feared not God, and stode in awe of no man. And in the same cyte there was a wedowe, whiche came vnto hym, and sayde: delyuer me fro myn aduersary. And he wolde not a greate whyle. But after warde he thought wythin hymselfe: Though I feare not god and stond in awe of noman, yet seyng this wedowe is so importune vpon me, I wyll delyuer her: lest she come at the laste, and raile vpon me.

Then sayde the LORDE: Heare what the vnrighteous iudge sayeth. But shall not God also delyuer hys chosen, that crye vnto hym daye and nyght, though he defarre them? I saye vnto you: He shall delyuer them, and that shortly. Neuertheless, whan the sonne of man commeth suppose ye, that he shall fynde fayth vpon earth?

* And vnto certayne whiche trusted in them selues, that they were perfecte, and despysed other, he spake thys symylytude: There wente vp two men in to the temple to praye: The one a Pharise, the other a Publican. The Pharise stode, and prayed by hymselfe after thys maner: * I thanke the God, that I am not as other men, robbers, vnrighteous, aduouterers, or as this Publican. I fast twyse in the weke I geue tythes of all that I haue. And the Publican stode afarreof, and wolde not lyfte vp hys eyes to heauen: but smote vpon hys brest, and sayde: God be thou mercyful vnto me synner. I tell you: This mã went downe in hys house iustyfyed more then the other. * For who so euer exalteth hymselfe, shalbe brought lowe, and he that humbleth hymselfe, shalbe exalted.

* They brought yonge chyldren also vnto hym, that he shulde touche them. But whã the disciples sawe that, they rebuked them. Neuertheless IESVS called them vnto hym, and sayde: Suffre the chyldren, to come vnto me, and forbydde them not, for vnto suche belongeth the kyngdome of God. Uerely I saye vnto you: Who so euer receaueth not the kyngdome of God, as a chylde, shall not enter therin.

And a certayne ruler axed hym, and sayde: * Good master, what must I do that I maye inherete euerlastyng lyfe? But IESVS sayde vnto hym: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God onely. Thou knowest the commaundemẽtes: * Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: Thou shalt not kyll: Thou shalt not steale thou shalte not beare falce wytnesse: Honoure thy father, and mother. But he sayd: All these haue I kepte fro my youth vp. Whan IESVS herde that, he sayde vnto hym: yet lackest thou one thynge, sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto the poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and come and folowe me. Whan he herde that, he was sory, for he was very ryche.

Whan IESVS sawe that he was sory, he sayde: * How hardly shall the ryche come in to the kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a nedle, then for a ryche man to entre in to the kyngdome of God. Then sayde they that herde that: Who can then be saued? But he sayde: * Loke what is vnpossyble wyth men, is possyble wyth God.

* Then sayde Peter: Beholde, we haue forsaken all, and folowed the. He sayde vnto them: Uerely I saye vnto you: There is no man that forsaketh house, or elders, or brethren, or wyfe, or chyldren for the kyngdome of Gods sake, which shal not receaue muche more in thys tyme, and euerlastyng lyfe in the worlde to come.

 He toke vnto hym the.xii. and sayd vnto them: Beholde, we go vp to Ierusalem, and it shall al be fulfylled, that is wrytten by the prophetes concernyng the sonne of man. For he shalbe delyuered * vnto the Heythen, and shalbe mocked, and dyspytfully intreated, and spytted vpon, and whã they haue scourged hym, they shal put him to death, and vpon the thyrde daye shall he ryse agayne. * And they vnderstode nothynge of these thynges. And this sayenge was hyd from them, and they perceaued not the thynges that were spoken.

* And it came to passe, whan he came nye vnto Jericho, there sat one blynd by the waye, and begged. And whan he herde the people passe by, he ared what it was. Then sayde they vnto hym, that IESVS of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, and sayde: IESV thou sonne of Dauid, heue mercy vpon me. But the people that wente before rebuked hym, that he shulde holde his tūge Neuertheles he cryed muche more: Thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me. IESVS stode styll, and commaunded hym to be brought vnto hym. And whan he was come neare, he ared hym and sayde: What wylt thou, that I do vnto the? He sayde: LORDE, that I maye receaue my syght. And IESVS sayde vnto hym: Receaue thy syght, thy fayth hath saued the. And immediatly he sawe, and folowed hym, and prayed God. And all the people that sawe it, gaue God the prayse.

The. xix. Chapter.

AND he entred in, and went thorow Jericho: and behold, ther was a man named Zacheus, which was a ruler of the publicans, and was ryche, and desyred to IESVS what he shulde be, and he coulde not for the people, for he was lowe of stature. And he ranne before, and clymmed vp in to a wylde fygge tre, ỹ he might se hym: for he shulde come that waye. And whan IESVS came to the same place, he loked vp, and sawe hym, and sayde vnto him Zache, come down haistely, for to day must I turne in to thy house. And he came down Acts.16.9. haystely, and receaued hym * wyth ioye. Whan they sawe that, they murmured all, and sayde, that he was gone in, to a synner.

But Zacheus stode forth, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Beholde LORDE, the halfe of my goodes geue I to ỹ poore: And yf I haue defrauded ony man, I restore hym foure folde: IESVS sayde vnto hym: Thys daye is health happened vnto hys house, for so muche as he also is Abrahams

And it fortuned whan he came againe B after that he had receaued the kyngdome, he dyd call for the seruauntes, vnto whom he had geuen hys money, that he myght knowe, what euery one had done. Then came the fyrst and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath wonne ten pounde. And he sayde vnto hym: Well thou good seruaunt, for so muche as thou hast bene faythfull in the least, thou shalt haue auctoryte ouer ten cytyes. The seconde came also, and sayde: Syre thy pounde hath wonne fiue pounde And to hym he sayde. And thou shalt be ouer fyue cyttes. The.xx. Chapter.

And * it fortuned in one of those dayes whan he taught the people in the temple, and preached the Gospel, the hyghe priestes, and Scrybes came vnto hym, wyth the elders and spake vnto hym, and sayde: Tel vs, by what auctorite doest thou these thynges? Or who gaue the thys auctorite? But he answered, and sayde vnto them: I wyl axe you a worde also, tel it me: The baptyme of Jhon, was it from heaue or of men? But they thought in them selues, & sayde: If we say, frō heauē then shal he saye: Why dyd ye not then beleue hym? But if we saye, of men, then shall al the people stone vs, for they be persuaded, that Jhon is a prophete. And they answered, that they coulde not tell, whence it was. And IESVS sayde vnto them: Nother tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thynges.

And he beganne to tell the people thys symylytude: * A certayne man plented a vynyarde, and let it out vnto husbandmen and wente hymselfe in to a straunge countre for a greate season. And whan his tyme was come, he sent a seruaunt to the husbandmen, that they myght geue hym of the frute of the vynyarde. But the husbandmen bet hym, and sent hym awaye emptie: and agayne he sent yet another seruaunt, but they bet hym also, and intreated hym shamefully, and sent hym awaye emptye. And besydes thys, he sent the thyrde, but they woūded him also, and thrust him out. Then sayde the Lorde of the vynyarde: What shall I do? I wyl sende my * deare sonne, peraduenture they wyll stonde in awe of hym, whan they se hym.

But whan the husbandmen sawe the sonne, they thought in them selues, and sayde: Thys is the heyre, come, * let vs kyll hym, that the inheritaunce maye be oures. And they thrust him out of ỹ vyntarde, and slewe hym. What shall now the Lorde of the vintarde do vnto them? He shall come and destroye those husbandmē, and let out hys vyntard vnto other. Whan they herd that, they sayde: God forbyd.

But he beheilde them, and sayde: What is this then that is wrytten: * The same stone whiche the buylders refused, is become the head corner stone? whosoeuer falleth vpon thys stone, shalbe broken in sunder: but * vpon whom soeuer he falleth, he shall grynde hym to poulder. * And the hyghe Priestes and Scrybes went about to laye handes vpon hym the same houre and they feared ỹ people: for they perceaued ỹ he had spokē this similitude agaynst thē.

*And they watched hym, and sent forth spyes, which shulde fayne them selues perfecte, that they myght take hym in his wordes, to delyuer hym vnto the power, and auctorite of the debyte. And they axed him and sayde. Master, we knowe that thou sayest and teachest tyght, and regardest the outwarde appearaunce of no man, but teachest the waye of God truely. Is it lawful that we geue tribute vnto the Emperour, or not? But he perceaued theyr craftynes, and sayde vnto them: Why tempte ye me?

Hebrewe: This is the kyng of the Jewes.
And one of ꝑ mysdoers ꝑ hanged there, blaspheмed hym, & sayd: yf thou be CHRIST, then helpe thy selfe & vs. Then answered ꝑ other, rebuketh him, & sayd: And thou fearest not God also, which art yet in lyke dãnacyon. And truly we are therin by ryght, for we receaue according to our dedes. As for this mã, he hath done nothyng amysse. And he sayde vnto IESVS: LORDE, remẽbre me, whã thou cõmest into thy kingdõ. And IESVS sayd vnto hym: Verely I say vnto ỹ: To day shalte thou be wt me in Paradyse.

Mat.27.f Mar.15.b * And it was about the sixte houre, & there was darkenesse ouer ꝑ whole lond, vntyl ỹ nynth houre. And ỹ Sõne was darkened, an the vayle of the temple rente in two, euen thorowe the myddes.

Mat.27.f Mar.15.b whan the captayne sawe what had happened, he prayed God, and sayd: Verely this was a iust mã. And all ỹ people ỹ stode by & behelde, whã they sawe what was done, smote vpon their brestes, & turned backe agayne. But all his acquaintaunce, & ỹ wemen ỹ had folowed hym out of Galile, stode a farre of, & behelde all these thynges.

Mat.27.g Mar.15.c. Joh.19.b. * And beholde, a man named Joseph, a senatour, whiche was a good iust man, the same had not cõsented vnto their coũcell, & dede, which was of Arymathia a cyte of ỹ Jewes, which also wayted for the kingdome of God: he wẽt vnto Pylate, & axed ỹ body of IESVS. And he toke hym downe, wrapped hym in a lynnẽ cloth, & layed him in a hewen sepulcre, wherin neuer man was layed. ✣ And it was the day of prepa rynge, and the Sabbath drue on.

Luce.8.a. * The wemen that were come with him out of Galile, folowed hym, & behelde the Sepulcre, & how his body was layed. But they returned & made ready the spyces and anoyntmentes. And vpon the Sabbath they rested, accordynge to the lawe.

Joh.20.b IESVS. * And it happened as they were amased therat, beholde, there stode by them two men in shynyng garmentes. And they were afrayed, & cast downe their faces to ỹ earth. Then sayde they vnto them: What seke ye ỹ lyuyng amõge ỹ dead? He is not here, He is rysen vp: Remembre, howe ỹ he tolde you whan he was yet in Galile, and sayd: * The sonne of man must be delyuered in to ỹ hãdes of synners, & be crucified, and the thyrde day ryse agayne. And they remẽbred his wordes, * & went frõ the sepulcre, & tolde all this vnto ỹ eleuen, & to all ỹ other. It was Mary Magdalene, & Johanna, & Mary James, & the other wt them ỹ told this vnto ỹ Apostles. And their wordes semed vnto them, as though they had bene but fables, & they beleued them not. But Peter arose, & rãne to the sepulcre, & stouped in & sawe ỹ lynnen clothes layed by them selues, & departed. And he wondred within him selfe at that whiche had happened. ✣

Mat. Mar. Joh.20.

 And beholde, two of them went that same day, to a towne (which was three score furlonges from Jerusalem) whose name was called Emaus. And they talked together of all these thynges that had happened. * And it chaunced as they were thus talkyng & reasouyng together, IESVS him selfe drewe nye, & went with thẽ. But their eyes were holden, ỹ they shulde not knowe hym. And he said vnto them: What maner of cõmunicacyons are these ỹ ye haue one to another, as ye walke, and are sade Then answered the one, whose name was Cleophas, & sayde vnto him: Arte thou onely a straunger at Jerusalẽ, not knowyng what is come to passe there in these dayes? And he sayd vnto them: What? They said vnto hym: That of IESVS of Nazareth, * whiche was a prophet, mighty in dede & worde before God and all the people, howe our hye prestes & rulers delyuered hym to the condempnacyõ of death, & crucifyed hym: But we hoped ỹ he shulde haue delyuered Israell. And beside all this, to day is ỹ thyrde day ỹ this was done. * yee and certayne Luce. Joh. women also of our company whiche were early at the sepulcre & foũde not his body, came & tolde, that they had sene a vysyon of angels, which said he was alyue. And certayne of them that were with vs, went vnto the sepulcre, & founde it euen so as the wemen sayd: but hym founde they not.

And he sayd vnto them: O ye fooles and slowe of hart to beleue all that the prophetes haue spoken: * Ought not CHRISTE to haue suffred these thynges, & to entre into his glorye. And he beganne at Moses and all the prophetes, & expounded vnto them all the scryptures that were spoken of him. And they drewe nye vnto the towne, whyche they went vnto, & he made as thoughe he wolde haue gone farther. * And they cõpelled hym, and sayd: Abyde with vs, for it drawyth towardes nyght, and the daye is farre passed. And he went in to tarye with them * And it came to passe whan he sat at the table with thẽ, he toke the bread, gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it them. Then were theyr eyes opened, and they knewe hym. And he vanyshed out of theyr syght. And they sayd betwene themselues: Dyd not our hart burne within vs: Whan he talked with vs by the waye, whyle he opened the scripture vnto vs? And they rose vp the same houre, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and founde the eleuen gathered together, and them that were with thẽ which sayd: The LORDE is rysen of a trueth, and hath appeared vnto Symon. And they tolde thẽ what had happened by the waye, and how they knewe hym in breakynge of the breade. ¶

* But whyle they were talking therof. & Jesus hymselfe stode in þ myddes among them, and sayd: Peace be with you. But they were abashed and afrayed, supposyng that they had sene a spyrete. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye abashed? & wherfore ryse there such thoughtes in your hartes? Beholde my handes and my fete, it is euen I my selfe: Handle me, and se, for a spyrite hath not flesh and bones, as ye se me haue. And whan he had thus spoken, he shewed them his handes and his fete. But whyle they yet beleued not for ioye and wõder, he sayde vnto them: * Haue ye ony thynge here to eate? And they set before hym a pece of a brokyled fyshe, and an honycombe. And he toke it and dyd eat it before them.

And he sayd vnto them: * These are the wordes, whiche I spake vnto you, whyle I was yet with you, for it must all be fulfylled that was written of me in the lawe of Moses, in the prophetes, and in the Psalmes. Then opened he theyr vnderstondynge, that they myght vnderstõd the scriptures, & sayd vnto them: * Thus is it written, and thus it behoued Christe to suffre, and the thyrd daye to ryse agayne from the dead, and to let repentaunce and remissiõ of synnes be preached in his name amonge all nacions. * and to begynne at Jerusalem. As for all these thynges, ye are witnesses of thẽ. * And behold, I wyll sende vpon you the * promes of my father: but ye shall tarye in the cyte of Jerusalem, tyl ye be endewed with power from aboue. *But he led them out vnto Bethany, and lyfte vp his handes, and blessed them. And it cam to passe whan he blessed them, he departed from them, and was caried vp into heauen. And they worshypped hym, and turned agayne to Jerusalem with greate ioye: & were continually in þ tẽple, geuyng prayse and thankes vnto God. Amen.

Here after fo=
lowyth the Goſpell of Saynt Jhon.

The fyrſt Chapter. ✣

IN the begynnynge was the worde, and the worde was with god, and god was ỹ worde. The ſame was in ỹ begynnyng with god. * All thynges were made by ỹ ſame, & without the ſame was made nothynge that was made. In hym was the * lyfe, and the lyfe was the * lyght of men: and the lyght ſhyneth in the darkeneſſe, & the darkeneſſe comprehended it not.

There was ſent from God a man, whoſe name was Jhon. The ſame came for a wytneſſe to beare wytneſſe of the lyghte, ỹ thorowe hym they all myght beleue. * He was not the lyght, but ỹ he myghte beare wytneſſe of the lyght. That was the true lyght, whiche lyghteth all men, that come in to this worlde. He was in the worlde, & the worlde was made by hym, & the worlde knewe hym not. He came in to his owne, & his owne receaued him not. But as many as receaued hym, * to them gaue he power to be the chyldren of God: euen ſuch as beleue in his name. Which are not borne of bloude, nor of the wyll of the fleſſhe, nor of the wyll of man, but of God.

✣ * Jhon dyd beare wytneſſe of hym, & cryed, and ſayde: It was this, of whome I ſpake: After me ſhall he come that was before me, For he was or euer I: and * of his fulneſſe haue we all receaued, grace for grace. For the lawe was geuē by Moſes, grace & trueth came by IESVS CHRIST. * No man hathe ſene God at ony tyme. The onely begotten ſonne which is in the boſome of the father, he hath declared the ſame vnto vs. ✣

¶ And thys is ỹ recoꝛde of Jhon whã the Jewes sent pꝛestes & leuytes from Jerusalem to aꝛe hym: Who aꝛt thou * And he confessed and denyed not: he confessed and sayde: I am not Chꝛist. And they axed hym: What then? Aꝛt thou Elias? He said I am not. Aꝛt thou not the * Pꝛophete? And he answered: No. Then sayd they vnto hym: What aꝛt thou then, that we may gyue answere vnto thẽ that sent vs? What sayest thou of thy selfe? He sayd * I am the voice of a cꝛier in ỹ wyldernesse: Make stꝛaight the waye of the LORDE. ¶ As the pꝛophet Esay sayde.

And they that were sent were of the Phariseis. And they axed hym, and sayde vnto hym: Why baptyzest thou then, yf thou be not Chꝛist, noꝛ Elyas, noꝛ a pꝛophete? Jhõ answered them and sayd: * I baptise with water: but there is one come in amõg you, whome ye knowe not. It is he that commeth after me which was befoꝛe me: whose shue lachet I am not woꝛthye to lowse. This was done at Bethara beyonde Jordane, * whꝛe Jhon dyd baptyse. ℞

¶ The next daye after, Jhon sawe Jesus commynge vnto hym, and sayde: Beholde the * lambe of God, which taketh awaye the synne of the woꝛlde. This is he of whom I sayd vnto you: after me commeth a man, which was befoꝛe me. Foꝛ he was eꝛuer I, and I knewe hym not: but that he shulde be declared in Jsraell, theꝛfoꝛe am I come to baptyse with water.

¶ And Jhon bare recoꝛde, and sayd: I sawe the spꝛete descende from heauen lyke vnto a doue, and abode vpon hym, and I knewe him not. But he that sent me to baptyse with water, the same sayde vnto me: Vpon whome thou shalt se the spꝛete descende and tary styl on hym, the same is he, that baptyseth with the holy goost. And I sawe it, and beare recoꝛde that this is the sonne of God. ℞

¶ The nexte daye after, Jhon stode agayne, and two of his disciples. And whã he sawe Jesus walkynge, he sayd: Behold the * lambe of God. And two of his disciples herde hym speake & folowed Jesus. And Jesus turned hi m aboute, and sawe them folowyng, and sayd vnto thẽ: What seke ye? They sayde to hym: Rabbi, which is to saye by interpꝛetaciõ, Master: Where aꝛt thou at lodgynge? He sayde vnto them: Come and se it. They came and sawe it, & abode with hym the same daye. It was aboute the tenth houre.

One of ỹ two, which herde Jhõ speake, and folowed Jesus, was Andꝛew the bꝛother of Symon Peter: the same found fiꝛst his bꝛother Symon and sayde vnto hym: We haue founde Messias (which is by interpꝛetaciõ, the Anointed) and he bꝛought hym to Jesus. Whan Jesus beheld hym, he sayde: Thou aꝛt Symon the sonne of Jonas. * thou shalte be called Cephas, which is by interpꝛetacion, a stone. Mat.16.c

The nexte daye after, wolde Jesus go agayne in to Galile, and found Philippe and sayd vnto hym: folowe me. * Philip was of Bethsayda the cyte of Andꝛew and Peter. Philippe founde Nathanaell, and sayde vnto hym: We haue founde hym, of whome * Moses in the law, and the ✣ pꝛophetes haue wꝛitten, euen Jesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Nathanaell sayde vnto hym: * What good can come out of Nazareth? Philippe said vnto him: Come and se. Joh.12.c Gene.3.c. 22.c.49.b. Deu.18.c. ✣Esa.7.c. and.9.b. *Jo.7.c.

Jesus sawe Nathanaell commynge to hym, and sayd of hym: Beholde, a tꝛyghte Jsraelyte, in whome is no gyle. Nathanaell sayde vnto hym: Fꝛõ whẽce knowest thou me? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto hym: Befoꝛe that Philippe called the, whã thou wast vnder the figge tꝛe, I sawe the. Nathanael answered, and sayd vnto him: Rabbi thou aꝛt the sonne of God, thou aꝛt the kyng of Jsraell. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto hym: Because I sayde vnto ỹ, that I sawe the vnder the fygge tꝛe, thou beleuest: thou shalt se yet greater thynges then these. And he sayde vnto hym: Uerely verely I saye vnto you: Fꝛom this tyme foꝛth shall ye se the heauen open, and the angels of God going vp and downe ouer the sonne of man. ℞

The.ii.Chapttr. ✣

And vpon the thyꝛd daye there was a mariage at Cana in Galile, and the mother of Jesus was there. Jesus also and his disciples was called vnto the mariage. And whan the wyne fayled, the mother of Jesus sayd vnto him: They haue no wyne. Jesus sayde vnto her: * Womã, wat haue I to do with ỹ? Mine houre is not yet come. His mother sayd vnto the minysters: What soeuer he saieth vnto you, do it. There were set there syxe water pottes of stone, after ỹ maner of the puritieng of the Jewes, euery one conteynynge two oꝛ thꝛe measures. A Joh.2.g

Jesus sayde vnto them: Fyll the water pottes wyth water, And they fylled them vp to the brymme, and he sayd vnto them: Drawe out nowe, and bryng vnto the Mayster of the feast, and they dyd bare it. Whan the master of the feaste had taysted the wyne which had ben water, and knewe not whēce it came (but the mynysters that drew the water, knewe it) thē ỹ Master of ỹ feast called the brydegrome, and sayd vnto hym: Euery mā at ỹ fyrst geueth the good wyne, and whan they are dronkē, then that which is worse. But thou hast kept backe the good wyne vntyll now.

B This is the fyrst token that IESVS dyd at Cana in Galile, and shewed his glory, and his disciples beleued on hym. ✠

Mat.4.b Mar.1.b Luc.4.b. * Afterwarde wente he downe to Capernaum, he, his mother, his brethrē and his disciples, and taried not longe there.

Mat.21.b Mar.11.b Luc.19.b * * And ỹ Jewes Easter was at hāde, And IESVS wente vp to Jerusalem, and founde syttynge in the temple, those that solde oxen, shepe, and doues, and chaungers of money. And he made a scourge of small cordes and droue them all out of the temple with the shepe and oxen, and poured out the chaungers money, and ouerthrewe the tables, and sayd vnto thē that solde the doues: Haue these thynges hēce, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaundyse. His disciples remembred it, that is writtē. * The zele of thyne Psa.69.b C house hath euen eaten me.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto hym: * What token shewest thou vnto vs, that thou mayest do those thynges? IESVS answered and sayde vnto thē: Mat.16.a Joh.6.b. mat.26.f. * Breake downe this temple, and in three dayes wyll I set it vp agayne. Then sayd the Jewes: * Syxe and fortye yeare was this temple abuyldyng, and wylt thou set it vp in three dayes? But he spake of the tēple of his body. Now whan he was ryssen agayne from the dead, his disciples remembred ỹ he thus sayde, and they beleued the scripture, & the wordes which IESVS spake. 1.Esa.5.b

Whan he was at Jerusalem at Easter in the feaste, many beleued on his name, whan they sawe the tokens that he dydde. But IESVS committed not hymself vnto them, for he knewe them all, and neded not that ony mā shulde testifie of man, * For he knewe well what was in man. ✠ Jere.17.b. Apo.2.b.

There was a mā of the Phariseis, named * Nicodemus a ruler amōge the Jewes. The same came vnto IESVS by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: Master, we knowe that thou art come a teacher from God: * For no man can do these tokens that thou doest, excepte God be with hym Jesus answered, and sayde vnto hym, Verely verely I saye vnto the: Excepte a man be borne a new, he can not se the kyngdome of God. Nicodemus sayd vnto hym: How can a man be borne, whan he is olde? Can he entre in to his mothers wombe, and be borne agayne? IESVS answered: * Verely verely I saye vnto the: Excepte a mā be borne of water and of the spyrite, he can not come in to the kyngdom of God. I Joh.ca.7.b. Joh.ca.9.b. Tit.3.a.

* That which is borne of flesh is flesh: and that which is borne of the spyrite, is spyrete. Maruayl not, that I sayd vnto the: ye must be borne of new. The winde bloweth where he wyll, and thou heareste his sounde: * but thou canst not tell whence he cometh, and whether he goeth: So is euerypone, that is borne of the spyrite. B Luce.ca.

Nicodemus answered, & sayd vnto hym: Howe maye these be? IESVS answered, & sayd vnto hym: Art thou a Master in Israell, and knowest not these? Verely verely I saye vnto the: We speake that we knowe, and testifie that we haue sene, and ye receaue not our witnesse. ✠ If ye beleue not whā I tel you of earthly thynges, how shulde ye beleue, whan I speake vnto you of heauenly thinges.

* And no mā ascendeth vp in to heauē, but he that is come downe from heauen, (namely) the sōne of man which is in heauē. And lyke as * Moses lyfte vp the serpent in the wyldernesse, euen so must the sonne of man be lyfte vp, that who soeuer beleueth in hym, shulde not perysh, but haue euerlastyng lyfe. ✠ Exo. Joh.ca.

* * For God so loued the worlde, that he gaue his onely sonne, that whosoeuer beleueth on hym, shulde not perish, but haue euerlastynge lyfe. * For God sent not his sonne in to the worlde, to condempne the worlde, but that the worlde myght be saued by hym. He that beleueth on hym, shall not be condempned. But he that beleueth not, is condēpned alreadye: because he beleueth not on the name of the only sonne of God. But this is the condempnacion, * that the lyght is come in to the worlde, and men C Rom.5.a 1.Joh.4.b Joh.ca.5.b 1.Joh.2.a Joh.ca.

loued the darknesse more then the lyght: for their workes were euell. * Whosoeuer doth euell hateth the lyght, and commeth not to the lyght, that his dedes shulde not be reproued. But he ỹ doth the treuth, commeth to the lyght, that his workes maye be knowne: for they are done in God.

Afterwarde came IESVS and his disciples in to the londe of Jewry, and had his beynge there wyth them, * and baptysed: * Jhon baptysed also in Enō besyde Salem: for ther was muche water there. And they came thyther, and were baptysed: * for Jhon was not yet put in prison.

Then arose there a question amonge the disciples of Jhon, with the Jewes aboute the purifyenge, and they came vnto Jhon, and sayd vnto him: Master, he that was wyth the beyonde Jordane, of whom thou barest wytnesse, beholde, * he baptiseth, and euery man commeth vnto hym. Jhon answered and sayde: A man can receaue nothyng, except it be geuen hym frō heauen. ye your selues are my wytnesses, how * that I sayde: I am not CHRIST, but am sent before hym. He that hath the bryde, is the brydegrome: but the frende of the brydegrome stondeth, and herkeneth vnto hym, and reioyceth greatly ouer the voyce of the brydegrome: thys same ioye of myne is now fulfilled. He must increace But I must decreace.

He that commeth from on hyghe, is aboue al. He that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth. He that commeth from heauen is aboue all, and testifieth what he hath sene and herde, and no man receaueth hys wytnesse. But he that receaueth it, hath set to hys seale, * that God is true. For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the wordes of God: * for God geueth not the spyrite (vnto hym) by measure. The father loueth the sonne. * And hath geuen hym al thinges in to his hand: He that beleueth on the sonne, hath euerlastynge lyfe: he that beleueth not the sonne, shall not se the lyfe, but the wrath of God abydeth vpon hym.

The. iiij. Chapter.

NOw whan IESVS had knowledge, that it was come to the eares of the Pharisees, that IESVS made and baptysed mo disciples then Jhō (how beit IESVS hymselfe baptysed not, but his disciples) * he left the londe of Jewry, and departed agayne in to Galile. But he must nedes go thorow Samaria.

Then came he in to a cyte of Samaria, called Sychar, nye vnto the pece of londe, * that Jacob gaue vnto Joseph his sonne. And there was Jacobs well. Now whan IESVS was weerye of hys iourney, he sat hym down so vpon the wel And it was aboute the syxte houre. Then came ther a woman of Samaria to draw water. IESVS sayd vnto her: Geue me drynke (for his disciples were gone theyr waye in to the cyte, to bye meate.) Then the woman of Samaria sayde vnto hym. How is it ỹ thou arest drynke of me, seynge thou art a Jewe, and I a woman of Samaria: * for the Jewes medle not wyth the Samaritās IESVS answered, and sayde vnto her. yf thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that sayeth vnto the, geue me drynke, thou woldest aze of hym, and he wolde geue the * that water of lyfe. The woman sayd vnto hym: Syre, Thou hast nothing to drawe withall, and the wel is depe from whēce hast thou then that water of lyfe: Art thou greater then oure father Jacob, * which gaue vs this wel? And he hymselfe dranke therof, and hys children, and hys cattell. IESVS answered, and sayd vnto her: Who so euer drinketh of thys water, shall thyrst agayn: But who so euer shall drynke of the water that I shall geue him shall neuer be more a thyrst: * But the water that I shall geue hym, shalbe in hym a well of water, whiche springeth vp in to euerlastynge lyfe.

The woman sayde vnto hym: * Syre geue me that same water, that I thyrst not nother nede come hyther to drawe. IESVS sayde vnto her: Go call thy husband, and come hether. The woman answered, and sayde vnto hym: I haue no husbande.

Mat.14.a Mar.6.c. * At euen wente hys disciples downe to the see, and entred in to the shyppe, and came to the other syde of the see vnto Capernaum. And it was darke already. And IESVS was not come to them. And the see rose thorow a greate wynde. Now whan they had rowed vpon a fyue and twentye or thyrtye furlonges, they sawe IESVS goynge vpon the see, and came nye to the shyppe. And they were afrayed. But he sayde vnto them: It is I, be not afrayed. Then wolde they haue receaued him in to the shyppe. And immediatly the shyppe was at the londe whyther they wente.

C The nexte daye after, the people which stode on the other syde of the see, sawe that ther was none other shyppe there saue that one, wherinto hys disciples were entred: and that IESVS wente not in wyth hys disciples in to the shyppe, but that his disciples were gone awaye alone. Howbeit there came other shyppes from Tyberias nye vnto the place, where they had eaten the bread, after that the LORDE had geuen thankes. Now whan the people sawe that IESVS was not there, nother hys disciples, they toke shyppe also, and came to Capernaum, and sought IESVS.

And whan they founde hym on the other syde of the see, they sayde vnto hym: Master whan camest thou hyther? He that commeth vnto me, shall not hunger & he yͤ beleueth on me, shall neuer thyrst. ¶ But I haue sayde vnto you, that ye haue sene me, and yet ye beleue not. All that my father geueth me, commeth vnto me, and who so commeth vnto me, hym wyll not I cast out: for I am come downe from heauen, not to do myne owne wyll, but the wyll of hym that hath sent me.

Then murmured the Jewes there ouer that he sayde: I am that breade whiche is come downe from heauen, and they sayde: Is not thys IESVS, Josephs sonne, whose father and mother we knowe? How sayeth he then, I am come downe from heauen? IESVS answered, and sayde vn them: Murmure not amonge youre selues. * No mã cã com vnto me excepte the father whiche hath sent me, drawe hym. And I shall raysle hym vp at the last daye. It is wryten in the prophetes: * They shall al be taught of God. Who so euer nowe heareth of the father, and learneth it, cometh vnto me. * Not that ony man hath sene the father, saue he whiche is of the father, the same hath sene the father.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: * He that beleueth on me, hath euerlastyng lyfe. I am that breade of lyfe: youre fathers dyd eate Manna in the wyldernesse, and are dead. Thys is that breade whiche commeth from heauen, that who so eateth thereof, shulde not dye. I am the lyuynge breade, whiche came downe from heauen: who so eateth of thys breade shall lyue for euer. And the breade that I wyll geue, is my flesh which I wil geue for ỹ lyfe of the worlde.

Then stroue the Jewes amonge themselues, and sayde: How can thys felowe geue vs hys flesh to eate? IESVS sayd vnto the Verely verely I saye vnto you. Except ye eate the flesh of ỹ sonne of man and drynke hys bloude, ye haue no lyfe in you. Who so eateth my flesh, and drynketh my bloude, hath euerlastynge lyfe: and I shall raysle hym vp at the last daye. For my flesh is the very meate, and my bloude is the very drynke. * Who so eateth my flesh, and drynketh my bloude, abydeth in me, and I in hym. As the lyuyng father hath sent me, and I lyue for the fathers sake: Euen so he that eateth me, shal lyue for my sake. This is the breade which is come from heauen. Not as youre fathers dyd eate Manna, and are dead. He that eateth of this breade, shall lyue for euer.

These thynges sayde he in the synagoge whan he taught at Capernaum. Many now of hys disciples that herde thys sayd: Thys is an harde sayeng, who may abyde the hearynge of it? But whan IESVS perceaued in hymselfe, that hys disciples murmured therat, he sayde vnto them. Doth thys offende you? What and yf ye shall se the sonne of man ascende thyther, wher he was afore? It is the spyrete that quickeneth the flesh profyteth nothynge. The wordes that I speake, are spyrete, and are lyfe. But there are some among you, that beleue not. For IESVS knewe well from the begynnynge, whiche they were that beleued not, and who shulde betraye hym. And he sayd: Therfore haue I sayed vnto you: * No man can come vnto me, except it be geuen hym of my father. Joh. 6. a.

From that tyme forth, many of hys disciples wente backe, and walked nomore wyth hym. Then sayde IESVS vnto the twolue: Wyll ye also go awaye? Then answered Symon Peter: LORDE, whether shall we go: Thou hast the wordes of euerlastynge lyfe: and we haue beleued, & knowne that thou art CHRIST the sonne of the lyuynge God. IESVS answered them. Now whyle they continued axynge hym, he lyft hymselfe vp, and sayde vnto them: He that is amonge you wythout synne, let hym cast the fyrst stone at her. And he stouped downe agayne, and wrote vpon the grounde. But whan they herde that, they wente out, one after another: the eldest fyrst, and lefte IESVS alone, and the woman stondynge before hym. IESVS lyfte hymselfe vp, and whan he sawe noman but the woman, he sayde vnto her. Woman, where are thyne accusers? Hath no man condempned the? She sayde: LORDE, noman, IESVS sayde: Nother do I condempne the, Go thy waye, * and synne nomore.

Then spake IESVS agayne vnto them and sayde: ✣ * I am the lyght of ỹ world he that folowyth me, shall not walke in darcknesse, but shall haue the lyght of lyfe. Then sayde the Pharises vnto him: Thou beareſt recorde of thy selfe, thy recorde is not true.

IESVS answered and sayde vnto them Though I beare recorde of my selfe, yet is my recorde true: for I know whence I cam and whether I go: but ye can not tel when I come, and whether I go. ye iudge after the flesshe. I iudge noman: but yf I iudge, my iudgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the father that hath sent me. It is wrytten also in your law, * that ỹ testymony of two men is true. I am one ỹ beare wytnesse of my selfe: * And the father that sent me beareth wytnesse of me also. Then sayde they vnto him: Wher is thy father? IESVS answered: * ye nother knowe me, nor yet my father, yf ye knewe me, ye shulde knowe my father also. These wordes spake IESVS vpon the Gods chest as he taught in the temple. * And noman toke hym, for his hour was not yet com.

* Then sayde IESVS agayne vnto thē ✣ I go my waye, and ye shall seke me, and shall dye in youre synnes: whyther I go, thyther can not ye come. Then sayde the Jewes: Wyll he kyll himselfe then that he sayeth: whyther I go, thyther can not ye come? And he sayde vnto them: ye are from benethe, I am frō above, ye are of this worlde I am not of this worlde. Therfore haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shall dye in youre synnes. * For yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye shall dye in youre synnes. Mat.16.d Joh.3.c.

Then sayde they vnto hym: Who art thou then? and IESVS sayde vnto them: Euen the very same thynge that I say vn to you. I haue many thynges to saye, and to iudge of you. But he that set me, is true: * and loke what I haue herde of hym, that speake I before the worlde. How be it they vnderstode not, that he spake of the father. Joh.15.d.

Then sayde IESVS vnto them. Whan ye haue lyft vp on hyghe the sonne of man then shall ye knowe that I am he, and that I do nothynge of my selfe: * but as my father hath taught me, euen so I speake, and he that sent me, is wyth me. The father leaueth me not alone, for I do alwaye ỹ pleaseth hym. ✣ Whan he thus spake * many beleued on hym. ✣ Then sayde IESVS vnto the Jewes, that beleued on hym: yf ye continue in my worde, then are ye my very disciples, and ye shall knowe the trueth and the trueth shall make you, * fre. Then answered they him: We are Abrahams sede, we were neuer bounde to ony man. How sayeſt thou then: ye shall be fre? IESVS answered them and sayd: Verely verely, I saye vnto you: * Who soeuer doth synne, is the seruaunt of synne. Is for the seruaunt, he abydeth not in the house for euer, but the sonne abydeth euer: yf ỹ sonne therfore make you fre, then are ye fre in dede. I knowe that ye are Abrahams sede, but ye seke to kyll me. For my word taketh not amonge you. I speake that I haue sene of my father, and ye do that ye haue sene of youre father. Rom.6.b 2.Pet.2.b.

They answered, and sayde vnto hym: Abraham is oure father. IESVS sayde vnto them: yf ye were Abrahams children ye wolde do the dedes of Abraham. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man that haue tolde you the treuth, * whiche I haue herde of God, thys dyd not Abraham: ye do the dedes of youre father. Then sayde they vnto hym: We are not borne of fornycacyon, we haue one father, euen God. IESVS sayde vnto them: yf God were youre father, then wolde ye loue me. For I am proceded forth, and come from God. For I am not come of my selfe, but he hath sent me. Why knowe ye not then my speche? Euen because ye can not abyde the hearynge of my worde. AND Iesus passed by, and sawe a man that was borne blynde: and his disciples ared hym, ✠ sayde: Master, who hath synned: this, or his elders, that he was borne blynde? IESVS answered: Nother hath this synned, nor his elders, Joh.5.a. ✠Joh.5.b * but that the workes of God shulde be shewed on hym. ✠ I must worke the workes of hym that hath sente me, whyle it is daye. The nyght commeth, whan no man can worke: As lōge as I am in the worlde, I am the * lyght of the worlde.
Joh.1. b.12. Whan he had thus sayd, he dyd spyt on the grounde, and made claye of the spatle, and rubbed ỹ claye on the eyes of ỹ blinde, and sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye vnto ỹ

Thē sayde they vnto hym: how are thyne eyes opened? He answered, and sayd: The man that is called IESVS, made clay, and anoynted myn eyes, and sayde: Go thy waye to the poole of Siloha, and wash ỹ. I wēt

Mat.12. mar.2. luc.6. Joh.5. and.7. * It was the Sabbath, whan IESVS made the claye, and opened his eyes. Then agayne the Phariſes also ared hym, how he had receaued his syght. He sayde vnto them: He put claye vpon myne eyes, and I washed me, and now I se.

Then sayd some of the Phariſes: This man is not of God, Seyng he kepeth not the Sabbath, * But the other sayd: How Joh.7. 10.b. can a sinfull man do suche tokens? And there was a stryfe amonge them. They sayd agayne vnto the blynde: What saiest thou of hym, that hath opened thyne eyes? He sayd: * He is a Prophete.
Joh.7. The Iewes beleued not hym, ỹ he was blynde, ✠ had receaued his syght, tyll they called the elders of hym that had receaued his syght. And they ared them, and sayde: Is this youre sonne, whome ye saye, was borne blynde? How doth he now se then? His elders answered them, and sayd: We knowe that this is our sonne, and that he was borne blynde. But how he now seyth: we can not tell: or who hath opened his eies, can we not tel. He is olde inough himself, are hym, let hym speake for hymselfe.

This sayde his elders, because they ℣ fered the Iewes. * For the Iewes had con-Joh.12. spyred already, that yf ony man dyd confesse that he was CHRIST the same shulde be excomunicate. Therfor said his elders: he is olde inough, are hym.

Then called they the man agayne that was blynd, and sayd vnto hym: * Geue God the prayse, we knowe that this man is a synner. He answered, and sayd: Whether he be a synner or no, I can not tel: one thynge am I sure of, ꝑ I was blynde, and now I se. Thē sayd they vnto hym again: What dyde he vnto the? How opened he thyne eyes? He answered thē: I tolde you ryght now. Herde ye it not? What, wyll ye heare it agayn? Wyll ye also be his disciples? Then rated they him & sayd: Thou art his disciple. We are sure ꝑ God spake with Moses: as for this felowe, we know not whence he is.

The man answered, and sayd vnto thē: This is a maruaylous thing, that ye wote not whence he is, and hath opened myne eyes. For we knowe, that God heareth not the synners: but yf ony man be a fearer of God, and doth his wyll hym heareth he. Hence the worlde begāne was it not herd, that ony man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. ꝑf this man were not of God, he could haue don nothyng. They answered, and sayd vnto hym: Thou arte altogether borne in synne, & teachest thou vs? And they thrust hym out.

IESVS herde, that they had thrust hym out, and whan he had foūde hym, he sayd vnto hym: Beleuest thou on the sonne of God? He answered, and sayd: LORD who is it that I myght beleue on hym? IESVS sayd vnto hym: * Thou hast sene hym & he it is, that talketh with the. He sayde: LORD, I beleue. And he worshipped him.

And IESVS sayd: I am come to iudgement into this worlde, that they which se not, myght se: and ꝑ they which se, myght be made blynde. And some of the Pharises that were with him, herde this, and sayde vnto him: Are we then blynde also? IESVS sayd vnto them: * ꝑf ye were blynde, ye shuld haue no synne. But now that ye say, we se, therfore youre synne remayneth.

The.x. Chapter.

VErely verely I saye vnto you he that entreth not in at ꝑ dore in to the shepefolde, but climmeth vp some other waye, the same is a theefe and a murtherer. But he that goeth in at the dore is the shepherde of the shepe: to hym the porter openeth * and the shepe heare his voyce, and he & calleth his owne shepe by name, leadeth them out. And whan he hath sent forth his owne shepe, he goeth before them, and the shepe folowe hym: for they knowe his voyce. As for a straunger, they folowe hym not, but flye from hym: for they knowe not the voyce of straūgers. This prouerbe spake IESVS vnto thē, but they vnderstode not what it was, that he sayd vnto them.

Then sayde IESVS vnto them agayne: Verely verely I saye vnto you: * I am ꝑ dore of the shepe. All they that are come before me, are theues & murtherers. But the shepe harkened not vnto them. I am the dore. ꝑf ony mā entre in by me, he shal be saued, and shall go in & out, and fynde pasture. A thefe commeth not, but for to steale, kyll, and destroy. I am come, that they myght haue lyfe, and haue it more abundantly.

* * I am a good shepeherde. A good shepeherde geueth his lyfe for the shepe. But an hyred seruaunt, which is not the shepherde, nother the shepe are his owne, seyth the wolfe commynge, and leaueth the shepe, and flyeth. And the wolfe catcheth and scatchereth the shepe. But the hyred seruaunt flyeth because he is an hyred seruaunt, and careth not for the shepe: I am a good shepeherde, * and know myne, and am knowē of myne. & Euen as my father knoweth me, and I knowe ꝑ father. And * I geue my lyfe for my shepe. And I haue yet other shepe, which are not of this folde, & those same must I bryng also, & they shal heare my voyce and there shall be one flocke and one shepherde.

Therfore dothe my father loue me, because I leaue my lyfe, that I may take it agayne. Noman taketh it fro me, but I leaue it of my selfe. I haue power to leaue it, and haue power to take it agayn. This commaundemente haue I receaued of my father. Thē was there dyssencion amonge the Jewes for these sayenges. * Many of thē sayd: He hath the deuell, & is madde, why heare ye hym? Other sayde: & These are not wordes of one ꝑ is possessed. Can the deuell also open the eies of the blynde?

* The workes that I do in my fathers

The.xi.Chapter.

I THere laye one sycke, named Lazarus of Bethania, in the Luc.7.b. towne of Mary, and hyr syster Martha * (It was that Mary, which anointed the LORDE with ointment, and dryed his fete with hir heer, whose brother Lazarus lay sycke.) Then sent his syster vnto hym, and sayd: LORDE, behold, he whō thou louest lyeth sycke. When IESVS herde that, he sayd: This sykenes is not vnto death, but for Joh.9.a. the prayse of God, * that the sonne of God maye be praysed therthorow. IESVS loued Martha and hir syster, ‡ Lazarus. Now whā he herde that he was sycke, he abode two dayes in the place where he was.

After warde sayd he vnto his disciples: Let vs go agayne into Jewry. His disciples sayd vnto hym: Master, * lately Joh.7. 8.2.10. wolde the Jewes haue stoned the, ‡ wylt thou go there agayne? IESVS answered: Are ther not twelfe houres in the daye? He that walketh in the daye, stombleth not, for he seyth the lyght of this worlde. But he that walketh in the nyght, stombleth for ther is no lyght in hym.

This he spake, and afterwarde sayd he B vnto them: Lazarus our frend * slepeth, Mat.9. mar.5. but I go to wake hym out of slepe. Then 2.a.d. sayd his disciples: LORDE, yf he slepe, he shall do well ynough (How beit IESVS spake of his death, but they thought that he had spoken of the bodely slepe.) Then sayd IESVS vnto them playnly: Lazarus is dead ‡ I am glad for youre sakes, that I was not there, þ ye may beleue. Neuertheles let vs go vnto hym. Then sayd Thomas * (which is called Didimus) vn Joh.14. to þ disciples, Let vs go also, that we may dye with hym.

Then came IESVS, and founde that he had lyen in the graue foure dayes alreadȳ. Bethanie was nye vnto Jerusalem, about fyftene furlōges. And many of the Jewes were come to Martha and Mary, to comforte them ouer their brother. Now whan Martha herde that Jesus came, she went to mete hym. But Mary sat styll at home.

* Then sayd Martha vnto IESVS: C
* LORDE, yf thou haddest ben here, my Joh.11. brother had not ben dead, But neuertheles I know also, that what soeuer thou arest of God, that God wyll geue it the. IESVS sayd vnto her: Thy brother shall ryse agayne. Martha sayd vnto hym: I knowe that he shall ryse agayne in the resurrectiō at the last daye. IESVS sayd vnto her: I Joh.5.c. 11.a. 1.Cor.15.a. am the resurrection and the * lyfe ‡ He that beleueth on me, shall lyue, though he were dead alreadȳ: and whosoeuer lyueth and beleueth on me, shall neuer dye. Beleuest thou this? She sayd vnto hym: yee LORDE, I beleue, that thou art Christ the sonne of God, which shulde come in to the worlde. * And whan she had sayde this, she wente hir waye, and called Mary hyr syster secretly, and sayde: The Master is come, and calleth for the. She, whan she herde that, rose vp quickly, and came vnto hym: For IESVS was not yet come in to the

wbne, but was yet in the place, where Martha met hym, The Jewes that were with her in the house and confoyted her: whan they sawe Mary, ỹ she rose vp hastely, and went out, they folowed her, and sayd: She goeth to ỹ graue to wepe there.

Now whan Mary came where IESVS was and sawe hym: she fell downe at his fete, and sayd vnto hym: * LORDE, yf thou haddest ben here, my brother hadde not ben dead. Whã IESVS sawe her wepe, and the Jewes weppynge also that came with her, he groned in the spyrite, and was sory within hymself, & sayd: Where haue ye layed hym? They sayd: LORDE, come and se it. And * IESVS wepte. Then sayde the Jewes: Beholde how he loued hym. But some of them sayde: Coulde not he * which opened the eyes of the blynde, haue made also, that this man shulde not haue dyed? But IESVS: groned agayn in hymself, and came to the graue. It was a caue and a stone layed on it. IESVS sayd: Take away the stone. Martha the syster of hym that was dead, sayde vnto hym: LORDE, he stynketh already, for he hath ben dead foure dayes. IESVS sayde vnto her: Sayd I not vnto ỹ: that yf thou dyddest beleue, thou shuldest se ỹ glory of god. Then toke they awaye the stone, where the dead laye. IESVS lyft vp his eyes, and sayd: Father, I thanke the, that thou hast harde me. How be it I knowe, that thou hearest me alwaye: but * because of the people that stonde by, I sayde it, that they maye beleue, that thou hast sent me.

Whan he had sayde this, he cryed loude: Lazarus come forth * And the dead came forth bounde hande and fote with graue clothes, and his face bounde with a napkyn. Jesus sayd vnto them: Lowse hym, and let hym go. Many now of the Jewes which were come vnto Mary, and sawe what IESVS dyd, beleued on hym. But some of them wente theyr waye vnto the Pharises, and tolde them what IESVS had done.

* Then the hye prestes, and the Pharises gathered a councell, & sayd: * What do we? This man doth many tokens. yf we let hym go thus, all men wyll beleue in hym: * Thẽ shall ỹ Romaynes come, and take awaye our lõde, and people. But one of them, named Cayphas, which was hye prieste the same yeare, sayde vnto them: ye knowe nothynge, nother consydre ony thynge at all. * It is better for vs that one man dye for the people, then that all the people shulde perysshe.

Thys spake he not of hymselfe, but for so much as he was hyghe prest of the same yeare, he prophecied. For IESVS was for to dye for ỹ people: & not for ỹ people only, but ỹ he shulde gather together the chyldre of god, which wer scatered abrod: From ỹ day forth, they toke coũcel, how they myght put hi to death. IESVS walked nomore openly amonge the Jewes but wente from thence in to a countre by the wyldernesse, to a cyte called Ephraym, and there had he hys beynge wyth hys disciples.

The Jewes easter was nye at hande. And there wente vp many to Jerusalem out of that countre before the Easter to purifye them selues. Then stode they vp, and axed after IESVS, and spake amonge them selues in the temple. * What thynke ye, that commeth not to the feaste? * The hyghe prestes and Pharises had geuen a commaundement, that yf ony man knewe where he were, he shulde shewe it, that they myght take hym.

Then answered hym the people: We haue herde in the * lawe that Christ endureth for euer: and how sayest thou then that the sonne of man must be lyft vp? Who is this sonne of man?

Jhon.

Then sayd IESVS vnto them: * the lyght is yet a litle whyle with you, walke whyle ye haue the lyghte, that the darknesse fall not vpō you. He that walketh in the darknes, wotteth not whither he goeth. Beleue ye on the * lyght, whyle ye haue it, that ye may be the chyldren of lyght. ✣

Jhon.

These thinges spake IESVS, and departed awaye, and hyd hymselfe from them. And though he had done such tokens before them, yet beleued they not on hym, that the saienge of Esay the prophet might be fulfylled, whiche he spake: * LORDE, who beleueth our preachinge? Or to whō is the arme of the LORDE opened? Therfore coulde they not beleue. For Esay sayd agayne: * He hath blynded their eyes, & hardened their hart, that they shulde not se with the eyes, nor vnderstonde with the hart, and shulde be cōuerted, and he shuld heale them: This sayde Esay, whan he sawe his glorie, and spake of hym.

Esa.53.a. Esa.6.c.

* Neuertheles many of the chefe rulers beleued on hym, but because of the Pharises they wolde not be aknowen of it * lest they shuld be excōmunicate: For they loued more the prayse of mē, then of God.

Joh.12.f. Joh.12.g.

* IESVS cryed and sayd: He that beleueth on me, beleueth not on me, but on hym that sent me. And he that seyth me, seyth hym that sent me. * I am come a lyghte in to the worlde, that who so euer beleueth on me, shulde not byde in darknesse. And he that heareth my wordes and beleueth not, I iudge hym not, * for I am not come to iudge the worlde, but to saue the worlde. He that refuseth me: and receaueth not my wordes, hath one already that iudgeth hym. The worde that I haue spoken, that shall iudge hym at the last daye, * For I haue not spoken of my selfe: but the father that sent me, hath geue me a commaundemēt, what I shulde do & saye. And I knowe that his cōmaundemēt is lyfe euerlasting. Therfore loke what I speake, that speake I euē so, as the father hath sayd vnto me.

The.xiij.Chapter. ✠

BEfore the feast of Easter whā IESVS knewe that hys tyme was come, that he shulde departe out of thys worlde vnto the father, as he loued hys which were in the worlde, euen so loued he them vnto the ende. And after supper * whan the deuell had already put in to ỹ harte of Judas Iscarioth Simōs sonne to betraye hym. IESVS knowynge that the father * had geuen all thynges in to hys handes, and that he was come from God, and wente vnto God, he rose from supper, and layed aside hys vpper garmēts, and toke a towell, and gyrde it aboute hym. Afterwarde poured he water in to a basen, and beganne to washe the disciples fete, and dryed them with the towell, that he was gyrded withall.

Then came he vnto Symon Peter, and the same sayde vnto hym: LORDE, shalt thou washe my fete? IESVS answered, and sayd vnto him: What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt knowe it herafter. Then sayde Peter vnto hym: Thou shalt neuer wash my fete. IESVS answered him: ỹf I * washe the not, thou shalt haue no parte with me. Simon Peter sayde vnto hym: LORDE, not the fete onely, but the handes also and the heade.

IESVS sayde vnto hym: He ỹ is washē, needeth not saue to washe the fete, but is cleane euery whyt. And ye are cleane * but not all. For he knew hys betrayer, therfor sayde he: ye are not all cleane.

Now whan he had washen theyr fete, and taken hys clothes, he set hym downe agayne, and sayde vnto them: Wote ye what I haue done vnto you? ye call me Master and LORDE, and ye saye ryght therin, for so I am. ỹf I then youre LORD and master haue washē your fete, ye ought also to washe one anothers fete. * I haue geuen you an ensample, that ye shulde do as I haue done vnto you. ✠ Uerely verely I saye vnto you: * the seruaunt is not greater then hys LORDE, nother is the apostle greater then he that sēt hym. ỹf ye know these thynges * blessed are ỹe ye do them. I speake not of you all. I knowe whom I haue chosen, but that the scrypture myght be fulfylled. * He that eateth my bread, hath lyfte hys hele agaynst me. * I tell it you now, before it come, ỹ whan it is come to passe, ye maye beleue. ỹ I am he.

* Uerely verely I saye vnto you: He that receaueth whom soeuer I sende, receaueth me: and he that receaueth me, receaueth hym that sent me. Whan IESVS had thus sayde, he was heauy in spyrite, and testified, and sayde: * Uerely verely I saye vnto you: * One amonge you shal betraye me. Then the disciples loked one vpon another, and were in doute of whom he spake. But there was one amonge hys disciples, that leaned at the table on IESVS bosome. * whom IESVS loued: to hym beckened Symon Peter, that he shulde aske, who it was, of whome he spake. For the same leaned vpon IESVS brest, and sayde, vnto hym: LORDE, who is it? IESVS answered: It is he vnto whome I dyppe the soppe, & geue it. And he dipped in the soppe, and gaue vnto Judas Iscarioth Symons sonne. And after the soppe the deuell entred into hym.

Then sayde IESVS vnto hym: That thou doest, do quyckly. But the same wyst no man at ỹ table, for what intent he sayd it vnto hym. Some thought (for so muche as Judas * had the bagge) that IESVS had sayde vnto hym: Bye that is necessary for vs at the feast: Or that he shulde geue somthynge vnto the poore: Whan he had receaued the soppe, he wente out immediatly, and it was nyght.

Whā he was gone forth. IESVS sayd: * Now is the sonne of man glorified, and God is glorified in hym. ỹf God be glorified in hym, then shall God glorifie him also in hymselfe, and straycht waye shall he glorifie hym. * Dear chyldren, I am yet a lytle whyle with you. * ye shall seke me and (as I sayde vnto the Jewes) whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. And now I saye vnto you. * A new commaūdement geue I you, that ye loue together as I haue loued you, that euen so ye loue one another. * By this shall euery man knowe that ye ar my disciples, ỹf ye haue loue one to another. Symon Peter sayd vnto hym: LORDE, whither goest thou? IESVS answered hym: Whether I go thou canst not folow me, now * but thou shalt folowe herafter. Peter sayde vnto hym: LORDE, why can not I folow the now? * I wil geue me life for thy sake. IESVS answered hym: Wylt thou geue thy lyfe for my sake? Uerely verely I saye vnto the: The cock shall not crowe, tyll thou haue denyed me thryse. ✠

AND he sayd vnto his disciples Let not your harte be afraied yf ye beleue on God then beleue also on me. In my fathers house are many dwellynges. yf it were not so, I wold haue told it you. I go to prepare the place for you. And though I go to prepare the place for you, yet wyl I come agayne, & receaue you vnto my selfe, that ye may be where I am. And whyther I go ye knowe, and the way knowe ye also.

Thomas sayde vnto hym: LORD we knowe not whyther thou goest, and how can we knowe the waye? IESVS sayde vnto hym: I am the waye, and the trueth and the * lyfe * Noman commeth to the father, but by me. yf ye knewe me, ye knewe my father also. And from hence forth ye knowe hym, and haue sene hym. Philippe sayde vnto hym: LORD, shewe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. IESVS sayde vnto hym: Thus longe am I with you, and hast thou not knowen me? Philippe, he that seyth me, seyth the father. And how sayest thou then: Shewe vs the father. Beleuest thou nott that * I ame in the father, and that the father is in me? * The wordes ỹ I speake vnto you, those speake not I of my self, but the father that dwelleth in me, he doth the workes. Beleue me that I am in the father, and that ỹ father is in me: Or els, beleue me at the leest for the workes sake Verely verely I saye vnto you: He that beleueth on me, shall do the workes, that I do, and shall do greater then these. For I go to the father. * And what so euer ye are the father in my name, ỹ wyll I do: that the father may be praysed in the sonne. yf ye are ony thynge in my name, I wyll do it. ✠

yf ye loue me kepe me commaundementes. And I wyll praye the father, and he shall geue you another comforter, that he maye abyde wyth you for euer: euen the spyrete of trueth, whom the worlde can not receaue, for it seyth hym not, nother doth it knowe hym: but ye knowe hym, for he abydeth with you, and shalbe in you. * I wyll not leaue you comfortelesse, I com vn to you. It is yet a lytle whyle then shall the worlde se me nomore, * but ye shal se me, for I lyue, and ye shall lyue also. In that daye shall ye knowe, that I am in the father and ye in me, and I in you. * He that hath my commaundementes, and keepeth them, the same is he that loueth me, and he that loueth me, shalbe loued of my father: and I wyll loue hym, and wil shewe myne owne selfe vnto him. * Judas sayde vnto hym: (not the Iscariotb) LORDE, What is the cause then, that thou wylt shewe thy selfe vnto vs, and not vnto the worlde?

IESVS answered and sayde vnto him ✠ He the loueth me, wyll kepe my worde, and my father wyll loue hym: and we wyll come vnto him, and will make oure dwelling with him. But he that loueth me not, kepeth not my saienges. * And the worde that ye heare, is not myne, but the fathers whiche hath sent me.

This haue I spoken vnto you, whyle I was with you. But that comforter euen the holy hoost. * whome my father shall sende in my name * he shall teache you all thinges, and bringe all to youre remembraunce, what soeuer I haue tolde you.

Peace I leaue vnto you, my peace I geue you: I geue not vnto you, as ỹ world geueth. Let not youre harte be troubled, nother let it be afrayed. ye haue herd, that I sayd vnto you: I go, and come agayne vnto you. yf ye loued me, ye wolde reioyce, because I sayde: I go to the father: for the father is greater then I. * And now haue I tolde you, before it come, that whā it is come to passe, ye maye beleue: Here after wyll not I talke muche with you. For the * prynce of this worlde commeth and hath nothynge in me. But that the worlde maye knowe that I loue ỹ father And as the father hath commaunded me, so do I. ✠ Aryse let vs go hence.

The.xv. Chapter. ✠

I Am a true * vyne, and my father is an husbandeman. Euery braunche that bringeth not forth frute in me, shall he cut of: and euery one that bringeth forth frute, shall he pourge, that it maye bring forth more frut. Now are ye * cleane because of the worde, that I haue spoken vnto you. Byde ye in me, and I in you. Lyke as the braunche can not bringe forth frute of it selfe except it byde in the vyne. Euen so nother ye also, except ye abyde in me.

I am the vyne, ye are the braunches He that abydeth in me, and I in hym, the same bringeth forth muche frute: for without me can ye do nothinge. He ỹ abydeth me, is cast out as a vyne braunche, and wythereth and men gather it vp, ād cast it in to the fyre, and it burneth. * yf ye abyde in me, and my wordes abyde in you, ye shall axe what ye wyll and it shall be done vnto you. † Herin is my father glorified, that ye bringe forth much frute, and become my disciples. Lyke as my father hath loued me, euen so haue I loued you. Continue ye in my loue. * yf ye kepe my commaundementes, ye shall continue in my loue: lyke as I haue kepte my fathers commaundementes, and continue in his loue.

These thynges haue I spoken vnto you, that my ioye myght remayne in you, and that youre ioye myght be perfecte.

This is my commaundement, that ye loue together, as I haue loued you. No man hath greater loue, then to set his lyfe for his frende. * ye are my frendes, yf ye do that I commaund you. Hence forth call I you not seruauntes: for a seruaūt knoweth not what his Lorde doth. But I haue called you frendes: * for all thinges that I haue herde of my father, haue I shewed vnto you. ye haue not chosen me, * but I haue chosen you, and ordeyned you, that ye go, and * bringe forth frute, and that your frute continue, that what so euer ye axe the father in my name, he shall geue it you.

This I commaunde you, that ye loue one another. * yf the worlde hate you, ye know, that it hath hated me before you. yf ye were of the worlde, the worlde would loue his owne. Nowbeit because ye are not of ye worlde, but I haue chosen you out of ye worlde, therfor ye worlde hateth you. Remembre my word, ye I sayde vnto you. * The seruaunt is not greater then his Lorde. If they haue persecuted me, they shall persecute you also. If they haue kepte my worde, they shall kepe yours also.

* But all this shall they do vnto you for my names sake, because they knowe not him that sent me. If I had not come and spoken vnto them, then shulde they haue no synne. But now haue they no cloke to cloake their synne withall. He that hateth me, hateth my father also. * If I had not done amonge them the workes whiche none other man dyd, they shulde haue no synne. But now haue they seene it, and yet haue they hated, both me and my father. Neuertheles that the saynge myght be fulfilled, whiche is written in their lawe: * They haue hated me wythout a cause. Psa.34.c. and.68.a.

But whan the comforter commeth, * whom I shall sende you from the father, euen ye spirete of trueth which proceedeth of ye father, he shal testifie of me: * ye shal beare wytnesse also: for ye haue bene wyth me from the begynnynge. Joh.14.c. and.16.a. Actū.2.a Actu.1.a.

THese thynges haue I sayd vnto you, that ye shulde not be offended. * They shall excōmunicate you. * The tyme cōmeth that who so euer putteth you to death, shal thynke that he doth seruyce vnto God * And suche thynges shall they do vnto you, because they haue nother knowne the father nor yet me. * But these thynges haue I sayde vnto you, that whan the tyme commeth ye may thynke theron, that I told you. † But these thynges haue I not sayd vnto you from the begynnynge: for I was wyth you. It is better for you that I go awaye. For yf I go not awaye, that comforter commeth not vnto you: but yf I departe. * I wyll sende him vnto you, and whan he cōmeth, he shall rebuke the worlde of synne, and of ryghteousnesse, and of iudgement. Of synne, because they beleue not on me. Of righteousnesse, because I go to the father, and ye shall se me nomore. Of iudgement, because the * prince of this worlde is iudged already. Then perceaued IESVS that they wolde axe hym, and he sayde vnto them: Ye enquyre of this amonge youre selues, that I sayde: After a lytle whyle, and ye shall not se me: and agayne after a lytle whyle, and ye shall se me.

The.xvii.Chapter. *

THese thynges spake IESVS and lyft vp hys eyes towarde heauen, and sayde: * Father the houre is come, that thou glorifie thy sonne, that thy son also maye glorifie the. Lyke as thou hast * geuen hym power ouer all flesh, that he shulde geue euerlastynge lyfe to as many as thou hast geuen hym. * But this is the lyfe euerlastynge, that they knowe the (that thou onely arte the true God,) and whom thou hast sent IESVS CHRIST.

I haue glorified the vpon earth, and
Joh. * fynyshed the worke, that thou gauest me to do. And now glorifie me thou father by thyne owne selfe, with the glory whiche I had or euer the worlde was. I haue declared thy name vnto the me, whom thou gauest me from the worlde. They were thyne and thou gauest them vnto me, and they haue kepte thy worde.

Now knowe they, that all thynges B what soeuer thou hast geuen me, are of ỹ.
Joh. * For the wordes whiche thou gauest me haue I geuen vnto them and they haue re-ceaued them, and knowe of a trueth, that I am come forth from the, and haue beleued that thou hast sent me. I praye for the and praye not for the * worlde, but for the

Ps. worde, * and the worlde hateth them: for
Joh. they are not of the worlde, euen as I also am not of the worlde. I praye not that thou
Ec. shuldest take them out of the worlde, * but that thou kepe them from euell. They are not of the worlde, as I also am not of the worlde.

Sanctifye them in thy trueth. Thy worde is the trueth. Like as thou hast sent me in to the worlde, so haue I sent them in the worlde: and for theyr sakes I sanctyfye my selfe, that they also maye be sanc-tyfyed in the trueth.

Neuertheles I praye not for them one lye, but also for those, whiche thorowe theyr wordes shall beleue on me, that they al may be one, lyke as thou father art in me, and I in the, that they also maye be * one in hast sent me. And the glory whyche thou gauest me, haue I geue the: that they may be one, lyke as we are one. I in them, and thou in me, that they maye be perfecte in one: and that the worlde may knowe, that thou hast sent me, and hast loued them, as thou hast loued me.

* Father, I wyll, that they whom thou hast geuen me, be with me where I am, ꝑ they maye se my glory, whiche thou hast geuen me: for thou hast loued me, or euer the worlde was made.

Righteous father, * the worlde hath not knowne the, but I haue knowne the:
and these haue knowen, that thou hast sent me. And I haue declared thy name vnto them, and wyll declare it, that ꝑ loue wher with thou hast loued me, maye be in them and I in them.

The.xviii.Chapter.

When IESVS had thus spoken
he wente forth with hys dyscy-ples ouer the broke Cedron, where there was a garden, in to the whiche IESVS entred and hys disciples. But Judas ꝑ betrayed him, knewe the place also. For IESVS resorted thyther oftymes with hys disciples thyther when Judas had taken vnto him the company, and mynysters of the hyghe prestes and Pharisees, he came thyther with lanternes, with lanternes, and wyth weapons. IESVS now knowynge al that should come vpon hym, wente forth, and sayde vnto them: Whom seke ye? They answered hym: IESVS of Nazareth. IESVS sayde vnto them: I am he. Judas also which betrayed hym, stode with them.
Assone then IESVS sayde vnto them: I am he, they wente backwarde, and fell to the ground. Then ared he them agayne: whom seke ye? They sayd: IESVS of Nazareth. Jesus answered: I haue tolde you that I am he. ꝑ ye seke me, then let these go their waye. That the worde myght be fulfylled, whiche he sayde: * Of the whom thou gauest me, haue I not lost one. Then had Symon Peter a swearde, and drewe it out, and smote the hygh prestes seruaũt, and cutte of hys ryghte eare, and the servauntes name was Malchus.

Then sayde Jesus vnto Peter: Put vp 11 thy swearde in to the sheeth, Shall I not drynke of the cuppe, which my father hath geuen me? * Then the companye and the Mat.26.f captayne, and the officers of the Iewes Mar.14.f
toke Jesus, and bounde hym and led hym Luce.22.B awaye fyrst vnto Annas, that was father in lawe vnto Cayphas, * whiche was Joh.11.a. hyghe prest the same yeare. It was Cay-phas, whiche gaue councell vnto ꝑ Iewes, that it were good, that one man shulde dye for the people.

As for Symon Peter, he and another disciple folowed Jesus. The same disciple was knowne vnto the hyghe prest, and wente in wyth Jesus in to the prestes palace. But Peter stode wythout at the dore.
Then ꝑ other disciple which was knowne vnto the prest, wente out, and spake to the damsell that kepte the dore, and broughte in Peter. Then the damsell that kepte the dore, sayde vnto Peter: Art not thou also one of thys mans disciples? He sayde: I am not.

The seruauntes and officers stode, and C had made a fyre of coles (for it was colde) and warmed them selues. Peter also stode with them, and warmed hymselfe. The hyghe prest ared Jesus of hys disciples, and of hys doctryne. Jesus answered him
* I haue spoken openly before the worlde, Joh.7.b.
I haue euer taughte in the synagoge, and in the temple, whyther all the Iewes resorted, and in secrete haue I spoken nothyng. Why aresk thou me? Aske them that haue herde what I haue spoken vnto the,
beholde, they can tell what I haue sayd.
But * whan he had thus spoken, one of 3.Reg.22.b
the officers that stode by, smote Jesus on Jere.20.d the face, and sayd. Answerest thou the hye Mat.26.g prieste so? Jesus answered hym: ꝑ I haue Actu.23.a. spoken euell, then beare wytnesse of euell:
but ꝑ I haue well spoke, why smytest thou me? And Annas sent hym bounde vnto Cayphas the hyghe prieste.

* Symon Peter stode, and warmed Mat.26.h hymselfe. Then sayde they vnto hym: Art Mar.14.g. thou one of hys disciples? He denyed, and Luce.22.b. sayde: I am not. A seruaunt of the hyghe prieste, a kynsman of hys whose eare Peter had smytten of, sayde vnto hym: Dyd not I se the in the garden wyth hym.

Then Peter denyed agayne. * And immediatly the cocke crewe. Then led they

* Then entred Pilate in to the comune hall agayne, and called IESVS, and sayde vnto hym: Arte thou the kynge of the Jewes? IESVS answered: Sayest thou that of thyselfe, or haue some other tolde it the of me?

Pilate ānswered: Am I a Jewe? Thy people & the hygh prestes haue delyuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? IESVS answered: My kingdom is not of this worlde yf my kyngdome were of thys worlde, my mynysters wold fyght therfor that I shuld

For thys cause am I borne, and came in to the worlde, that I shuld testifye the trueth. Who so euer is of ỹ trueth, heareth my voyce. Pilate sayde vnto hym: What is ỹ trueth? And whan he had sayde that, he wente out agayne to the Jewes, & sayde vnto them: * I fynde no gyltynesse

Then * Pilate toke Jesus, and scourged hym, & the souldyers plated a crowne of thornes, & set it vpon hys heade, and put a purple garment vpon hym & sayd: Hayle kynge of the Jewes. And they smote him on the face. Then went Pilate forth agayne, and sayd vnto them: Behold I bringe hym forth vnto you, that ye may knowe, that I fynde no faute in hym. So IESVS went out, & syd weare a crown of thorne and a purple robe. And he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the man. Whan the hyghe prestes, and the mynysters sawe hym, they cryed and sayde: Crucifye, Crucifye. Pylate sayde vnto thē: Take ye hym and crucifye hym, for I fynde no gyltynesse in hym. The Jewes answered hym: * We Then sayde Pylate vnto hym: Speakest thou not vnto me? Knowest thou not, that I haue power to crucifye the, and haue power to lowse the? But they cried: Awaye with him, awaye with him, Crucifie hym. Pylate saide vnto them: Shall I Crucifie youre kinge? The Hyghe prestes answered: we haue no kinge but the Emperoure. Then deliuered he him vnto them to be crucified.

* They toke IESVS and led him awaye to the place called the place of dead mens skulles, whiche in Hebrue is named Golgatha, where they crucified him, and two other with him, on eyther syde one: but IESVS in the myddes. * Pylate wrote a superscripcion, and set it vpon the crosse Luce.

And there was written: IESVS of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This superscripcion redde many of the Jewes. For the place where IESVS was crucified wrote vnto the cyte. And it was written in Ebrew, Greke, and Latyn. Then sayd the hyghe prestes of the Jewes vnto Pylate: Wryte not kynge of the Jewes but that he sayde: I am kynge of the Jewes. Pylate answered: What I haue wrytten, that haue I wrytten.

The souldiers whan they had crucified IESVS, toke hys garmentes, & made foure partes, to euery souldier one parte, and the cote also. As for the cote, it was without sewed, wrought from aboue thorow out thorowe. Then sayde they one to another: Let vs not deuyde it, but cast lottes for it, who shall haue it, that the scrypture might be fulfylled, which sayeth. * They haue parted my garmentes amonge them and on my cote haue they cast lottes. Thys dyd the souldyers in dede.

There stode by the crosse of IESVS, hys mother, and hys mothers syster Mary, the wyfe of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene stode whan IESVS sawe hys mother, and the disciple stondynge by, whom he loued he sayde vnto hys mother: Woman behelde, that is thy sonne. Then sayde he to the disciple: beholde, thys is thy mother. And from that houre the disciple toke her vnto hym.

After that whan IESVS knewe that al was performed, * that the scrypture might be fulfylled, he sayd: I am a thyrst. There stode a vessel ful of vyneger. * They filled a sponge wyth vyneger, and wonde it aboute wyth ysope, and held it to hys mouth. Now whan IESVS had receaued the vyneger, he sayde: It is fynyshed, and bowed hys heade, and gaue vp the goost.

The Jewes then, for so muche as it was the daye of preparynge, * that the bodyes shulde not remayn vpon the crosse vpon the Sabbath, (for that same Sabbath daye was greate) besought Pylate, that their legges myght be broken, and that they myght be taken down. Then came the souldyers, and brake the legges of the first and of the other that was crucified wyth hym. But whan they came to IESVS, and sawe that he was dead already, they brake not hys legges, but one of the souldyers opened hys syde with a speare. * And im mediately there wente out bloude & water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye myght beleue also. For this is done, that the scrypture myght be fulfylled: * ye shall not breake a bone of hym. And another scrypture sayeth: * They shall se hym, wohme they haue pearsed. Zach. 12.c

* After that, Joseph of Aramathia, whiche was a disciple of IESVS (but secretely for feare of the Jewes) besought Pylate, that he myght take downe the body of IESVS. And Pylate gaue hym lycence. There came also. * Nicodemus, (which afore came vnto IESVS by nyght) and brought of Myrre and aloes mingled together, about an hundreth pound weyght. Mat.27.g Mar.15.e. Luce.23.d. Joh.3.a.

Then toke they the body of IESVS, and wonde it wyth lynen clothes, and with the spices, as the maner of the Jewes is to bury. And by the place where IESVS was crucyed, there was a garden and in the garde a new sepulchre, where in was neuer man layed: there layed they IESVS, because of the preparinge daye of the Jewes, for the sepulchre was nye at hande.

The.xx. Chapter.

Vpon one day of the Sabbath came Mary Magdalene early (when it was yet darke) vnto the sepulchre, and sawe that the stone was taken from the sepulchre. Then ran she, and came to Symon Peter, and to the other disciple, whō * IESVS loued, and sayde vnto them: they haue taken awaye the LORDE out of the sepulchre, and we can not tell where they haue layed hym. Then wente Peter forth and the other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. They ranne both together, & that other disciple outranne Peter, and came fyrst to the sepulchre, and loked in, & sawe the lynen clothes layed. But he wente not in. Then came Symon Peter after hym, and wente in to the sepulchre & sawe the lynen clothes lye, and the napkyn that was bounde rounde aboute IESVS heade, not layed wyth the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by it selfe. Then wente in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre, and he sawe and beleued: for as yet they knewe not the * scryptures that it behoued hym to ryse agayne from the dead. Then wente the disciples agayne together. Joh.1.c 19.a. 21.d. 19 Psal.15.d Actu.2.c 13.Dpt.17.d

 As for Mary, she stode before the sepulchre & wept without. Now as she wept she loked in to the sepulchre, and sawe two angels in whyte garmentes syttinge, the one at the head, and the other at the fete, where they hadde layed the body of IESVS. And Luc.24.a.

they sayde vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? She sayde vnto them: They haue taken awaye my LORDE, and I wote not where they haue layed him, and whan she had sayde that, she turned herselfe back and sawe IESVS stondynge, and knew not that it was IESVS. IESVS sayde vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? Whome seekest thou? She thought that it had bene the gardener, and sayde vnto hym: Syr, yf thou hast borne hym hence, then tell me wher thou hast layed hym: and I wil fetch hym. IESVS sayde vnto her: Mary, Ther turned she her aboute, and sayde vnto hym: Rabboni that is to saye: Master. IESVS sayde vnto her: Touche me not, for I am not yet ascended vnto my father. But go

But he sayde vnto them: Excepte I se in hys handes the prynte of the naples, and put my fynger in to the prynte of the naples, and put my hande in to his syde, I wyl not beleue.

And after eyght dayes againe were his disciples wythin, and Thomas with them. Then came IESVS (whan the doores were shut) and stode in the middes and sayde: Peace be with you. After that sayde he vn to Thomas: Reache hyther thy fynger, ād se my handes, and reache hyther thy hande, & put it in to my syde, and be not fayth lesse, but beleue. Thomas answered, and sayde vnto him: MY LORDE, and my God. IESVS sayde him: Thomas, because thou haste sene me, thou hast beleued. Blessed art they, that se not, and yet beleue. ✠

Many other tokens dyd IESVS, before his disciples, whiche are not written in this boke. But these are written, that ye shulde beleue, that IESVS is CHRIST the sonne of God, and that ye thorow beleue myght haue lyfe in his name.

The.xxi. Chapter. ✠

AFter that shewed IESVS hym selfe agayne at the see of Tyberias. But on this wyse shewed he himselfe. There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas whiche is called Didymus, and * Na Ioh thanael of Cana a cyte of Galile, and the sōnes of Zebede, and two other of his disciples. Simon Peter sayde vnto them: I go a fyshinge: They sayde vnto him: we also wyll go with the. They wente out, and entred in to a shippe strayght waye. And that same nyght toke they nothinge. But whan it was morowe, IESVS stode on the shore, but his disciples knewe not that it was IESVS. IESVS sayde vnto them: Children haue ye ony thing to eate? They answered him. No, He sayde vnto them:
* Caste out the net on the ryght syde of the Luc shippe, and ye shall fynde. Then they caste out, and coulde nomore drawe it of the multitude of fyshes. Then sayde the disciple, Ioh. the LORDE.

Whan Simon Peter herd that it was the LORD, he gyrded his mantell aboue him (for he was naked) and sprange in to the see, but the other disciples came by shyp (for they were not farre from londe, but as it were two hundreth cubites) & they drew the net with the fyshes. Now whan they were come to londe, they sawe coles layed and fyshe theron, and breade. Jesus saide vnto them: * Bringe hyther of the fishes

IESVS sayde vnto them: Come, and C dyne. But none of the disciples durste aske hym: Who art thou. For they knew that it was the LORD. Then came Jesus, and toke the breade, and gaue it them: and the

So whan they had dyned. IESVS ſayde vnto Simon Peter: Symon Johanna, loueſt thou me more then theſe do? He ſayd vnto hym: ye LORD, thou knowſt that I loue the. He ſayde vnto hym: Fede my lambes. He ſayd vnto hym agayne the ſeconde tyme: Symon Johanna, loueſt thou me? He ſaid vnto hym: ye LORD thou knoweſt that I loue the. He ſaid vnto hi feede my ſhepe. He ſayd vnto hi the thyrde tyme: Symon Johanna, loueſt thou me? Peter was ſory, becauſe he ſayde vnto him the thyrde tyme, loueſt thou me? And he ſayde vnto hym: LORDE, thou knoweſt all thinges: thou knoweſt that I loue the. IESVS ſayd vnto hym: Fede my ſhepe, Verely verely I ſaye vnto the: Whan thou waſt yonge, thou gerdedeſt thy ſelfe, and walkedeſt whyther thou woldeſt. But when thou arte old, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thy handes, and another ſhall gyrde the, and lede the whyther thou woldeſt not. This he ſayde, to ſignifye, with what death he ſhulde glorifye God.

When he had ſpoken this, he ſayde vnto hym: Folowe me. Peter turned hym about, and ſawe the diſciple folowynge, whome IESVS loued, (which alſo leaned vpon hys breſt at the ſupper and ſayd: LORD, who is it that betrayeth the?) Whan Peter ſawe hym, he ſayde vnto IESVS: LORDE, but what ſhall he do? IESVS ſayde vnto hym: yf I wyll that he tary tyll I come, what is that to the? Folowe thou me. Then went there out a ſayeng among the brethre: This diſciple dyeth not. And IESVS ſayde not vnto hym. He dyeth not, but yf I wyl that he tary tyll I com, what is that to the? This is the ſame diſciple, which teſtifyeth of theſe thynges, and wrote theſe thynges, and we knowe, that his teſtimony is true. There are many other thynges alſo that IESVS dyd, which yf they ſhulde be wrytten euerye one, I ſuppoſe the worlde ſhulde not contayne the bokes that were to be wrytten.

PEter and Jhon wente vp toget ther in to the temple aboute ꝑ nyenthe houre to praye. And there was a certayne man halt frō his mothers wombe, whō the brought, and layed dayly at the gate of the temple, whiche is called the Beutyful, that he might aske almesse of them that wente in to the temple. Now whan he sawe Peter and Jhon, that they wolde in to the temple, he desyred to receaue an almesse.
Peter beheelde hym with Jhon, and sayde: Loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them hoppynge to receaue some thynge of them.

of that, whyche had happened vnto hym. For as thys halt which was healed, helde hym to Peter and Jhon, all the people ran amaseth vnto thē in to the *porche, which is called Salomons, and wondred.

Whan Peter sawe that, he answered vnto the people: ✣ ye men of Israell why mauayle ye at thys, or why loke ye so on vs, as though we by oure owne power, or holynesse, had made thys man to walke? The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob the God of our fathers hath glorified hys childe IESVS, * whom ye delyuered and denyed in the presence of Pylate, whā he had iudged hym to be lowsed. But ye denyed the holy and iust, and desyred the murtherer to be geuē you, but slewe the prynce of lyfe, whom God hath raysed from the dead, of the whiche we are wytnesses. And thorowe the fayth in hys name, hath he confyrmed hys name vpon thys man, whome ye se and knowe: and euen thorow hym, hath geuen thys man hys health before youre eyes.

Now deare brethren I knowe that ye haue done it, * thorow ignorāunce, as dyd also youre rulers. The.iiij. Chapter.

BVt as they spake to the people there came vnto them the preistes and the rulers of the temple, and the Saduces (whome it greued that they taught the people and preached in IESV the resurrection from the dead) and they layed handes vpon them, and put them in holde tyll the morow: for it was now euentyde. How bett many of them, which herde the worde, beleued, and the nombre of the men was aboute fyue thousande.

And it chaunched on the morow, that theyr rulers and Elders and Scrybes (as Annas the hyghe preistes and Cayphas, and Jhon, and Alexander, and as many as were of the hyghe Preistes kynred) gathered them selues together at Jerusalem and set them before them, and axed them: * By what authorite, or in what name haue ye done thys? Mat.21.f.

✣ Peter full of the holy goost, sayde vnto them: ye rulers of the people, and ye Elders of Israell, yf we this daye be examined concernynge thys good dede vpon the sycke mā, by what meanes he is made whole: be it knowen then vnto you, and to all the people of Israell, * that in the name of IESVS CHRIST of Nazareth (whome ye crucifyed, whom God hath rayse vp from the dead) stondeth thys man here before you whole. * This is the stone Act.3.a. which is refused of you buylders, which is become the headcornerstone, nother is there saluacyon in ony other: * Nor yet also is there geuen vnto men ony other name, wherin we must be saued. They sawe the boldnesse of Peter, and Jhon, and mauayled, for they were sure that they were vnlearned men, and laye people. And they knewe them also, that they were with IESV. As for the man that was made whole, they sawe him stonding by them, and coulde not saye agaynst it. Then commaunded they them to stond aside out of the councell, and comuned amonge them selues, and sayde: * What shall we do to these men? for a manyfest token is done by them, and is openly knowē vnto them that dwell at Jerusalem, and Joh.11.b

Actu. 5.c. * And they called them, and commaũded them, that in ony wyse they shulde not speake, nor teache in the name of IESV. But Peter and Thon answered, and sayd vnto them: Judge youre selues, whether it be ryght before God, that we shulde be more obedyent vnto you, then vnto God. We cã not chose, but speake that we haue sene and herde. For the man, vpon whom thys token of healthy was done, was aboue fortye yeare olde.

¶ And whan they were let go, they came to theyr felowes, and tolde them what the hygh Preistes, and Elders sayde vnto thẽ. Whan they herde that, they lyfte vp theyr voyce wyth one accorde vnto God, and sayde: LORDE, thou that arte the God which made heauen and earth, and the see and all that therin is, thou that by the mouth of Dauid thy seruaunt hast sayde: Psal. 2.a. * Why do the Heythen rage, and the people ymagen vayne thynges? * Joses whyche was also called of the Actu. Apostles, Barnabas (that is to saye, ỹ son of consolacyon) a Leuyte, of the countre of Cypers, had londe, and solde it, & brought the money, and layed it at Apostles fete.

The.v.Chapter.

But a certayne man named Ananias wyth Saphyra hys wyfe, solde hys possession, and kepte awaye parte of the money (hys wyfe knowinge of it) and brought one parte, and layed it at the Apostles fete. But Peter sayde: Ananias, Wherfore hath Sathan fylled thine hart that thou shuldest lye vnto the holy goost, and wythdrawe awaye part of the money of the lyuelode? Wyghtest thou not haue kepte it, whan thou haddest it? And whan it was solde, was not the mony also in thy power: Why hast thou then cõceaued this thynge in thyne harte? Thou hast not lyed vnto men, but vnto God. Whan Ananias herde these wordes, he fell downe, and gaue vp the goost. And there came a great feare vpon all them that herd of this. The ponge men rose vp, and put hym aside, caryed hym out, and buryed hym.

And it fortuned as it were aboute the B space of thre houres after, hys wyfe came in, and knewe not what was done. But Peter answered vnto her: Tell me, sold ye the lond for so muche? she sayd: ye for so much. Peter sayd vnto her: Why haue ye agreed together, to tempte the spyrite of the LORDE? Beholde, the fete of them whych haue buryed thy husbande, are at the dore, and shall cary the out. And immediatly she fell downe at hys fete, and gaue vp the goost. Then came in the ponge men, and founde her dead, and caryed her out, and buryed her by hyr husband. And there cam a great feare ouer the whole congregacyon, and ouer all them that herde it.

There came many also out of the cities rounde aboute vnto Jerusalem, and bzought the sycke and them that were vexed with vnclean spzetes & they were healed euery one

C *But the hyghe pzest rose vp, and all they that were with hym, whiche is ỹ secte of the Saduces: and were ful of indignacion, and layed handes on the Apostles, & put them in the comune pzeson. *But the angell of the LORDE by nyght opened the pzeson dozes, and bzought them out, and sayde: Go youre waye, and steppe vp, and speake in the temple to the people all the wozdes of thys lyfe. Whan they herde that, they entred in to the temple early in the moznynge, and taught.

But the hyghe pzest came, and they that were with hym, and called the counsell together, and all the elders of the chyldzen of Jsrael, and sent to the pzeson, to fet them. The ministers came and founde thē not in the pzeson, came agayne, and tolde, and sayde: The pzeson sound we shut with all diligence, and the kepers stondinge without before the dozes: but whan we had opened, we founde noman therin. Whan the hyghe pzest, and the rulers of the temple and the other Hyghe Pzestes herde these wozdes, they douted of them, where vnto this wolde growe.

D Then came there one, which tolde thē: Beholde, the men that ye put in pzeson, are in the temple, standynge and teachyng the people. Then wente the rulers with theyr ministres, and fetched them wythout violence: * for they feared the people, lest they shulde haue ben stoned. And whan they had bzought them, they set them before the counsell. And the hyghe pzest ared them, and sayd: Dyd not we * commaūde you strately, that ye shulde not teache in thys name? And beholde, ye haue fylled Jerusalem wyth youre doctrine, & ye intende to bzynge * this mans bloude vpon vs.

But Peter and the Apostles answered and sayde: * We ought moze to obeye god then men. The God of oure fathers hath rayfed vp IESVS whome ye slew, and hanged on the tre. And we are hys recozdes of these wozdes, and the holy goost, whome God hath geuen vnto thē ỹ obeye hym. Whan they herde that, it went thozow the hartes of them, & they thought to slaye them.

Then stode there vp in the counsell a E Pharyse, named * Gamaliel, a Scrybe had in greate reputacion before all ỹ people, and bad put the Apostles alyde a lytle and sayde vnto them: ye men of Jsraell, take hede to youre selues, what ye do as touchynge these men. Before these dayes rose vp one Theudas, boastynge hymself. (And ther cleued vnto hym a nombze of men, aboute a foure hundzeth) which was slayne, and all they that enclyned vnto hym, were scatred abzode, and bzought to naught. After this stode vp * Judas of Galile in the dayes of tribute, and dzewe awaye muche people after hym, and he also perysshed, and all they that enclyned vnto hym, are scatred abzode. And now I say vnto you: refrayne youre selues fro these men, and let them go. * yf thys councell oz wozke be of men, it wil come to naught: but yf it be of God, ye are not able to destroye it, lest ye be found to be the men, that wil stryue against God. Then they agreed vnto hym and called the Apostles, * and bet them, and commaunded them, ỹ they shulde speake nothynge in the name of IESV, and let them go.

Actu.13.a. But afore there was in the same cyte a certayne man called Symon, * whiche vsed witchcraft, and bewitched the people of Samaria, sayenge, that he was a man which coulde do greate thinges. And they all regarded hym from the least vnto the greatest, and sayde: This is the power of God whiche is greate. But they regarded
B hym, because that of longe tyme he had bewitched them with his sorcery. Howbeit whan they beleued Philips preachynge of the kyngdome of God, and of the name of IESVS CHRIST, they wer baptysed both men and wemen. Then Simon hymselfe beleued also, and was baptysed, and dyd cleaue vnto Philippe. And whan he sawe the dedes, and tokens that were done, he wondred.

✠ Whan the Apostles whiche were at Jerusalem, herde, that Samaria had receaued the worde of God, they sent vnto the Peter and Jhon. Which, whan they were come, prayed for them, that they myght receaue ỹ holy goost. For as yet he was com vpon none of them, but they were baptised onely in thy name of CHRIST IESV.

The spyrete sayde vnto Philippe: Go neare and ioyne thy self to ponder charret. Then came Philippe vnto hym, and herd hym rede the Prophet Esay, and sayde: Vnderstondest thou what thou redest? He sayde: How can I, excepte some man enfourme me?

And he desyred Philippe, that he wolde D come vp, and syt with hym. The tenoure of the scripture whiche he redde, was this:

* He was led as a shepe to be slayne, and as a lambe voyceles before his sherer, so opened not he hys mouth. In his hũblenes is hys iudgement exalted. Who shall declare his generacion? for hys lyfe is taken awaye from the earth. Then answered the chamberlayne vnto Philip, and sayde: I praye the, of whom speaketh the Prophet this? of hymselfe, or of some other man?

Philippe opened his mouth, and began at hys scripture, and preached hym ỳ Gospell of IESVS. And as they wente on they waye, they came to a water. And the chamberlayne sayde: Beholde, here is water, * what hyndereth me to be baptysed? Philippe sayde: yf thou beleue from thy whole harte, thou mayest. He answered, & sayde: I beleue that IESVS CHRIST is the sonne of God. And he commaunded to holde styll the charret, & they went downe into the water, both Philippe, and the chãberlayne. And he baptysed hym. But whã they were come vp out of the water, the spyrite of the LORDE toke Philippe away, And the chamberlayne sawe hym nomore. But he wente on hys waye reioycenge. As for Philippe, he was found at Asdod, and walked aboute, and preached the Gospell vnto all ỳ cyties, tyl he came to Cesarea.

The.ix. Chapter.

SAul was yet breathynge out threathninges, and slaughter agaynst the dyscyples of the LORDE. And wente vnto the hyghe preest, and desyred of hym letters to Damascon vnto the synagoges, that yf he founde ony of this waye (whether they were men, or women) he myght bynge them bounde vnto Jerusalem. And as he was goynge on his iourney, it fortuned, that he came nye vnto Damascon, and sodenly there shyned rounde aboute hym a lyght from heauen, and he fell to the earth, and herde a voyce whiche sayde vnto hym: Saul Saul, * why persecutest thou me? He sayde: LORDE, who art thou? The LORDE sayd: I am IESVS whom thou persecutest. It shall be harde for the to kycke agaynst the prycke. And he both trembling and astonnyed, sayde: LORDE * what wylt thou that I shall do? The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Aryse and go in to the cyte, there shal it be tolde the what thou shalt do.

As for the men that iourneyed wt hym they stode and were amased: for they herde a voyce, but sawe no man. Saul rose from the earth, and whan he hadde opened hys eyes, he sawe no man. Neuertheles they toke hym by the hãd, & brought him to Damascon: and he was thre dayes wythout syght, and nother dyd eate nor drynke. It Damascon there was a disciple named Ananias, and vnto hym sayde the LORDE in a vision: Ananias. And he sayde: Beholde, here am I LORDE, The LORD sayde vnto hym: Aryse, and go in to ỳ strete whiche is called strayght, and axe at the house of Juda after one called Saul of * Tharsis: for beholde, he prayeth, & hath sene in a vysyon a man named Ananias commynge vnto hym, and layenge the hande vpon hym, that he myght receaue hys syght. B Actu. 22.c. and. 22.a.

Ananias answered: LORDE, I haue herde by many of this man, * how much euell he hath done to thy sayntes at Jerusalem. And here hath he auctorite of the Hyghe Prestes, to bynde all those that cal vpon thy name. The LORD sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye, * for this man is a chosen vessell vnto me, that he maye beare my name before the Heythen, and before kynges, and before the chyldren of Israell. I wyll shewe hym, how greate thynges he must * suffre for my names sake. Actu. 8.a Gala. 1.cf Actu. 27.b 2.Co.11.f.

& And Ananias wente hys waye, and came in to the house, and laied the handes vpon hym and sayde: Brother Saul, the LORD whiche appeared vnto the in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, ỳ thou myghtest receaue thy syght, and be fylled wyth the holy goost. And immediatly there fell from hys eyes as it had bene scales, and he receaued hys syght, and rose, and was baptysed, and toke meate, and was comforted. C & Act. 22.b

Then was Saul a certayne dayes wt the disciples that were at Damascon. And straight waye he preached CHRIST in the synagoges, how that he was the sonne of God. But all they that herde hym, were amased and sayde: Is not this he, whiche at Jerusalem spoyled all those that called on his name? and came hyther to the intẽt that he shulde bryng them bounde vnto the hyghe prestes? But Saul increased in strength, and confunded the Jewes which dwelt at Damascon, and affermed that this was very CHRIST.

D And after many dayes the Jewes held a councell together to kyl him. But it was tolde Saul, that they layed waite for him.

Gala. 2.b. * But whan Saul came to Jerusalem he assayed to ioyne hymselfe to the disciples. And they were all afrayed of him, and beleued not, that he was a disciple. Neuertheless Barnabas toke hym, and brought hym to the Apostles, and tolde them how he had sene the LORD in the waye, & how he spake to him, and how he had done boldly at Damascon in the name of IESV. And he was with them, and went out, and in at Jerusalem, and quyte hymselfe boldly in the name of the LORD IESV. He spake also, and disputed with the Grekes. But they wente aboute to slaye hym.

Actu. 22.b * Whan the brethren knewe that, they brought hym to Cesarea, and sent hym forth to Tharsys. So the congregacions had reste thorow out all Jewry, and Galile, and Samaria, and were edified, and walked in the feare of the LORDE, & were fylled with the comforte of the holy goost.

E It chaunched that as Peter walked thorow all quarters, he came also vnto the sayntes whiche dwelt at Lydda. Joh. 5.a.

At Joppa there was a certayne woman that was a disciple, named Tabitha, whiche by interpretacion is called Dorcas: the same was ful of good workes, and almesse dedes, which she dyd. But it chaūched at the same tyme, that she was sycke, and dyed. Then washed they her, & layed her in a chamber. But for so much as Lydda was nye vnto Joppa, and the disciples herde that Peter was there, they sent two men vnto hym, and desyred hym, that he wolde take it for no greke to come vnto them.

F Peter rose, and came with them. And whan he was come, they brought hym in to the chamber, and all the widowes stode rounde aboute him, weppynge, and shewed hym, the cotes and garmētes, which Dorcas made whyle she was with them. And whan Peter had put them al forth, he kneled downe, made hys prayer, and turned hym vnto the body, and sayde: Tabytha, aryse vp. And she opened hyr eyes: and whā she sawe Peter, she sat hyr downe agayne. But he gaue her the hande, and lyfte her vp, and called the sayntes and the wedowes, and shewed her there alyue. And it was knowne thorowe out all Joppa, and many beleued on the LORDE. And it fortuned, that he taryed a long season at Joppa by one Symon, whiche was a tanner.

The.x.Chapter.

THere was a man at Cesarea, named Cornelius (a captayne of the company, whiche is called the Italiane) a deuoute mā, and one that feared God with all hys house, and gaue muche * almesse to the people, and prayed God alway. The same sawe in a vision openly (aboute the nyenth houre of the daye) an angell of God entrynge in to hym, and sayeng vnto hym: Cornelius. He loked vpon hym, and was afrayed and sayde: LORDE, what is it? He sayde vnto hym: * Thy prayers, and thyne almesses are come vp in to remembraunce before God, and now sende men vnto Joppa, and call for Symon, whose Syrname is Peter, which is at lodgynge with one Symon a tanner, whose house lyeth by the see syde: he shall tell the what thou oughtest to do. And whan the angell whiche spake to Cornelius, was departed, he called two of hys housholde seruauntes, and a deuoute souldyer, of them, that wayted vpon hym: and tolde them al and sent them to Joppa.

Gen.17. and.

B On the nexte daye after whan these were goynge on theyr iourney, and came nye vnto the cyte. Peter * wente vp in to 4.Ki.4. Mat.14. Mar.6. Luc.9. a chamber to praye aboute the syxte houre. And whan he was hongrie, he wolde haue eaten. But whyle they made redy for hym he fell in to a traunce, and sawe heauen open, and a vessell commynge downe vnto hym, as it hadde ben a great lynnen cloth, knyt at the foure corners, & was let down to the earth, wherin were all maner foure footed beastes of the earthe, and wylde beastes, and wormes, & foules of the ayr. And there came a voyce vnto him: Aryse Peter, slaye, & eate. But Peter sayd: Oh no. LORD

† For I neuer dyd eate ony commune, or vncleane thynge. And the voyce spake vn to hym agayne the seconde tyme: * What God hath clensed, that make not thou vn cleane. This was done thryse. And the vessell was receaued vp agayne in to heauen.

But whyle Peter was combred in him selfe, what maner of vision this shulde be whiche he had sene, beholde, the men that were sent from Cornelius, enquyred after Symons house, and stode before the doore and called, † ared whether Symon (whose syname was Peter) were lodged there. Whyle Peter was musynge of the vision the spyrete sayde vnto hym: beholde, the men seke the. Aryse therfore, and get the downe and go with them: and doute not, for I haue sent them.

Then went Peter downe to the men, that were sent vnto hym from Cornelius, and sayde: lo, I am he whom ye seke what is the cause, wherfore ye are come. They sayde: Cornelius the captayne, a iust man, and one that feareth God, † of good reporte amonge all the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angell, to send for the in to hys house, and to heare wordes of the. * Then called he them in, and lodged them.

The nexte daye after went Peter forth with them, * † certayne brethren of Joppa bare hym company. And the daye folowynge came they to Cesarea. Cornelius wayted for them, and called together hys kynsfolkes and speciall frendes. And as it chaunched that Peter came in, Cornelius met hym, and fell downe at hys fete, and worshypped hym. But Peter toke him vp and sayde: * Stonde vp, I am a man also. And as he talked with him, he went in, and founde many that were come together, and he sayde vnto them: ye knowe ỹ † it is not lauful for a man beyng a Jewe to ioyne hymselfe, or to come to a straunger. But God hath shewed me, ỹ I shulde cal no man commune or vncleane. Therfore haue I not douted to come, as soone as I was sentfore. I axe youtherfore, for what intent haue ye sent for me?

Cornelius sayd: It is now foure dayes ago, then fasted I, and at the nyenth hour I prayed in my house, and beholde, there stode a man before me in a bright clothing and sayde: Cornelius, thy prayer is herde, and thyne almesse dedes are had in remembraunce in the syght of God. Sende therfore to Joppa, and call for one Symon, (whose syname is Peter) which is at lodgynge in the house of Symon the tanner by the see syde: the same whan he commeth shall speake vnto the. Then sent I vnto the immediatly, and thou hast done well, that thou art come. Now are we all here present before God, to heare all thynges, that are commaunded the of God.

† Peter opened his mouth, and sayde: * Now perceaue I of a trueth, that God hath no respecte of personnes, † but in all people he that feareth hym, and worketh ryghteousnesse, is accepted vnto hym. Ye knowe of the preachynge that God sent vnto the thyldren of Israell, preachinge thorow IESVS CHRIST. (which is LORD ouer all) which preachyng was publyshed thorow out all Jewry, * and beganne in Galile after the baptyme that Jhon preached, how God * anoynted the same IESVS of Nazareth with the holy goost and with power, whiche went about, and dyd good and healed all those that were oppressed of the deuell for God was with him. And we are wytnesses of all that he dyd in ỹ londe of the Jewes, and at Jerusalem. Whome they slewe, and hanged on a tre.

Hym God rayled vpon the thyrde day and caused hym be openly shewed not to all the people, but to the chosen wytnesses of God, euen vnto vs, * whiche dyd eate and drynke with hym after he was ryssen vp from the dead. † * And he commaunded vs to preache vnto the people, and to testifye, ỹ it is he that is ordeyned of God a iudge of the lyuyng and of the dead. Of hym beare * all the prophetes wytnesse, that thorow his name all they that beleue in hym, shal receaue remissiõ of synnes. ‖ Whyle Peter was yet speakyng these wordes: * the holy goost fell vpon all them, that herkened vnto the worde. And the faythfull of the circumcision whiche came with Peter, were astonnied, because that the gyft of the holy goost was shed out also vpon the Heythen. For they herde that they spake with tunges, and magnifyed God. Then answered Peter: * May ony man forbyd water, that these shulde not be baptysed whiche haue receaued the holy goost as wel as we? And he commaunded them to be baptysed in the name of the LORDE. ‖ Then prayed they hym that he wolde tary there certayne dayes.

THe Apostles and the brethren that were in Iewrye, herde saye, that the Heythen also had receaued ỹ worde of God. And whan Peter was come vp to Ierusalem, they that were of the circūcysyon, chode wyth hym, and sayde:

The.xii. Chapter. ✠

AT the same tyme layed kynge Herode handes vpon certaine of the congregacyon, to vexe them. Is for * James the brother of Jhon, hym he slewe with the sweard. And whan he sawe that it pleased the Iewes, he proceded farther to take Peter also. But it was Easter. Now whan he had taken hym, he put hym in prison, and delyuered hym vnto foure quaternyons of souldiers, to kepe hym: & thought after Easter to bryng hym forth to the people. And Peter was kepte in the prison. * But prayer was made wythout ceassyng a of the congregacion, vnto God for hym.

And whan Herode wolde haue brought him out vnto the people, in the same night kepte Peter betwene two souldiers, bound with two cheynes. And the kepers before the doze kepte the prison.

* And beholde, the Angell of the LORD was there present, and a lyght shyned in the habitacyon, and smote Peter on ỳ syde, and waked hym vp, and sayde: Aryse vp quickly. And the cheynes fell of from hys hondes. And the Angell sayde vnto hym: Gyrde the, and put on thy shues. And he dyd so. And he sayde vnto hym: Cast thy mantle aboute the, and folowe me. And he went out, and folowed him and wyst not, that it was treuth that was done by the angell, but thought he had sene a dysyon. Neuertheless they went thorow the fyrst and seconde watch, and came to the yron gate, that ledeth vnto the cyte, which opened vnto them by hys owne accorde. And they went out, and passed thorowe one strete, and immediatly the angel departed from hym.

And whan Peter was come to hymselfe, he saide: * Nowe I knowe of a treuth that the LORDE hath sent hys angell, and delyuered me out of the honde of Herode, and from all the waytynge for of the people of the Jewes. ✝ And as he consydered the thynge, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one Jhon, (which after hys syrname was called Marke) where many were gathered together, * ✝ prayed. As Peter knoked at the entry doze, there came forth a damsell to herken, named Rhoda. And whan she knewe Peters voyce, she opened not the entrye for gladnesse, but ranne in, and tolde, that Peter stode before the entry. But they sayde vnto her: Thou art madde. Neuertheless she abode by it, that it was so. They sayde: it is hys angell. But Peter continued knockynge. Whan they opened the doze, they sawe hym, and were astonyed. * But he beckened vnto them with the hande, to holde theyr peace, and tolde them, howe ỳ LORDE had brought hym oute of the prison. And he sayde: Shewe this vnto * James and to the brethren. And he departed, and went to another place.

Whan it was daye, there was not a litle a do amonge the souldiers, what was become of Peter. Whan Herode had called for hym, and founde hym not, he caused the kepers to be aramyned, and commaunded them to be caryed awaye, and he went downe from Jewry vnto Cesarea, and there abode. But he was displeased wt them of Tyre and Sydon. Neuertheless they came vnto him wyth one accorde and made intercessyon to Blastus the kynges chamberlayne, and desyred peace, because theyr countre was norysshed by the kinges londe. But vpon a daye appoynted, Herode putte on the kyngly apparell, sat hym downe vpon the iudgement seate, and made an oracyon vnto them. As for the people, they cried therto: Thys is a voyce of God, and not of man. Immediatly the angell of the LORDE smote hym, because he gaue not god the honoure. And he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the goost. But the worde of God grewe, and multyplyed. As for Barnabas and Saul, they came agayne to Jerusalem, and delyuered * the handreachyng, and toke with them ✝ Jhon whose syrname was Marke. Actu. 11.c. & 13.a.

The.xiii. Chapter.

THere were at Antioche in the congregacyon, Prophetes, and teachers, as Barnabas, and Symon called Nyger, and Lucius of Cyre, and Manahen Herodes ỳ Tetrarchas norysshelow, and Saull. As they serued the LORDE, and fasted, the holy goost sayde: Separate me oute Barnabas, and Saull for the worke, * where vnto I haue called them. Actu. 9.b. Then fasted they and prayed, and layed the hondes on them, and let them go. And they beynge sent of the holy goost, came vnto Seleucia, from thence they sailed vnto Cypers. Whan these were sent forth, they came vnto Antioche, and gathered the multytude together, & delyuered the epistle. Whan they had red it, they were glad of that consolacyon. As for Judas & Sylas, (whiche were prophetes also) they exhorted the brethren with much preachynge, & strengthed them. And whan they had taryed there for a season, they were let go of the brethren in peace vnto the Apostles. Notwithstondyng Silas thought it good to byde there styll. * But Paule, and Barnabas contynued at Antioche, teachynge and preachynge the worde of the LORDE, wyth other many.

Neuertheleſſe after certayne dayes Paule sayde vnto Barnabas: let vs go agayne, and vyset oure brethren thorow all the cytes (wherin we haue shewed ỳ word of the LORDE) how they do. But Barnabas gaue counsel, that they shulde take with them Jhon, whose syrname was Marke. Howbeit Paul thought it mete, not to take hym with them, * whiche departed from them in Pamphilia, & went not vᵭ them vnto the worke. And so sharp was the stryf betwene them, that they departed asunder the one from the other, ād Barnabas toke Marke vnto hym, and sayled vnto Cypers. But Paule chose Sylas, and departed, beynge commytted of the brethren vnto the grace of God. He went thorow Syria and Celica, stablyshynge the congregacions.

The.xvij. Chapter.

AS they made theyr iourney thorow Amphipolis, and Ap-ge of the Iewes. And Paul (as hys maner was) wente in vnto them, and vpon thre Sabbathes he spake vnto them of the scrypture, opened it vnto them, and alleged, * that CHRIST must nedes haue suffred, and ryse agayne from ỹ dead: And thys IESVS, whome I preache vnto you (sayde he) is the same CHRIST. * And some of them beleued, and were ioyned vn

also of the deuout Grekes, and of the chefe wemen not a fewe.

But the stynecked Iewes had indig-

men whiche were vagaboundes, and gathered a company, and set the cyte in a rore and preassed vnto the house of Jason, and sought to brynge them out vnto the com-

C They that conueyed Paull, brought hym vnto Athens. And whan they had receaued a commaundement * vnto Sylas and Tymotheus, that they shulde come vnto hym in all the hayst, they wente theyr waye. But whyle Paull wayted for them at Athens, hys spyrete was moued in hym, whan he sawe the cite geuen so to the worshyppynge of ymages. And he spake vnto the Jewes, and deuoute persones in the synagoge, and in the market dayly, vnto them that came to hym. But certayne Philosophers of the Epicures and Stoyques disputed with hym. And some sayde: What wyll thys babler saye? But some sayde: He semeth to be a tydynges bryngar of new goddes, (ꝑ was because he had preached vnto them the Gospel of IESVS and of the resurreccyon.) And they toke hym, and brought hym before the councell house, and sayde: Maye we not knowe, what new doctryne thys is that thou teachest? For thou bryngest straunge tydynges to oure eares? We wolde knowe therfore, what this meaneth. As for all they of Athens, and straungers, and gestes, they gaue them selues to nothynge els, but eyther to tell, or to heare some newes.

D Paul stode on the myddes of the commune place, and sayde: Ye men of Athens I se that in all thynges ye are to superstitious. I haue gone thorow, and sene your Gods scrupce, and founde an altare wherupon was writen: To the vnknowē god. Now shewe I vnto you the same, whome ye worshyppe ignorauntly. God * which made the worlde, and al that therin is, for so muche as he is LORDE of heauen and earth, * dwelleth not in temples with handes, nother is he worshipped wᵗ mens handes, as though he had nede of ony mā, seynge he hymselfe * geueth lyfe, & dreth vnto all men euery where, and hath made of one bloude all the generacion of men to dwell vpon all the face of the earth: * and hath assygned borders, appoynted before how longe, and farre they shulde dwell, that they shulde seke the LORDE, yf they myght fele and fynde hym.

E And truely he is not farre from euery one of vs. For in hym we lyue, moue, and haue our beynge, as certayne of your owne * Poetes also haue sayde: We are his generacion. For as muche then as we are the generacion of God, we ought not to thynke that the Godhead is lyke vnto golde, and syluer, or ymagery worke of the crafte or ymagination of man. * And truely God hath ouersene the tyme of ignoraūce * But now he commaundeth al men euery where to repēt, because he hath appoynted a daye, in the whiche he wyll iudge the compasse of the worlde, with ryghtousnesse, by that one man in whom he hath appoynted it: and offred fayth vnto all men, after ꝑ he had raysed hym vp frō the dead. Rom. 2.a. Luc. 24.b.

Whan they had herde of the resurreccyon of the dead, some mocked. But some sayde. We wyll heare the agayne of thys matter. So Paull departed from among them. Howbeit certayne men dyd cleue vnto hym, and beleued: amonge whom was Dionisius one of the councell: & a woman named Damaris, and other with them.

The.xviii. Chapter.

After that departed Paule frō Athens, and came to Corinthum, and founde a Jewe named * Aquila, borne in Pontus, whiche was lately come out of Italy: and hys wyfe Priscylla (because the Emperoure Claudius had commaunded all Jewes to departe from Rome) and he drewe vnto them. And because he was of the same crafte, he abode with them, and wrought. Theyr crafte was to make tentes. And he preached in the synagoge euery Sabbath daye, and exhorted the Jewes and the Grekes. A Ro. 16.a. 2.Ti.4.c.

* Whan Sylas and Tymotheus were come from Macedonia, Paull was constrayned by the spyrete to testifye vnto the Jewes, that IESVS was very CHRIST. But whan they saide contrarie, and blasphemed, * he shoke his rayment, and said vnto them: Youre bloude be vpon youre owne heade. From henseforth I go blameles vnto the gentyles. And he departed thence, and came in to the house of a man named Justus, whiche feared God, and hys house was nerre vnto the Synagoge. Howbeit Crispus the chefe ruler of the Synagoge, * beleued on the LORDE wyth all his housholde. And many of the Corinthians that gaue audience, beleued, and were baptysed. Actus.17.c. B But whan Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaya, the Jewes made insurrecyon with one accorde agaynst Paul, & brought hym before the iudgement seat, and sayde. Thys folowe counceleth men to worshippe God contrarie to the lawe. Whan Paule was aboute to open hys

There came vnto Ephesus a certayne
1. Cor. 1.b Jewe, named * Apollo (borne at Alexan-
1.a. 16.b. dria) an eloquent man, and myghtie in the scriptures, the same was informed in the waye of the LORDE, and spake feruently in the spirite, and taught diligently the thynges of the LORDE, and knew but the baptyme of Jhon onely. The same began to speake boldly in the Synagoge. Whan Aquyla and Priscylla herde hym, they toke hym vnto them, and expounded the waye of God vnto him more perfectly. But whan he wolde go in to Achaya, the brethren wrote, and exhorted the disciples to receaue hym. And whan he was come thyther, he helped them muche whiche beleued thorowe grace. For he ouercame the * Jewes myghtely, and shewed openly by the scrypture, that IESVS was CHRIST. Joh. 1.

The.xix.Chapter. ✣

BUt it fortuned whan Apollo was at Corynthum, that Paul walked thorowe the vpper coastes, and came to Ephesus and founde certayne disciples vnto whome he sayde: Haue ye receaued the holy goost, sence ye beleued? They sayd vnto hym: We haue not herde whether ther be an holy goost. He sayde vnto them: Wherwith then were ye baptysed? They sayde: With the baptyme of Jhon. Paull sayde: * Jhon baptysed with the baptyme of repentaunce, and spake vnto the people that they shulde beleue on hym, whyche shulde come after hym, that is, on IESVS, that the same is CHRIST. When they herde that, they were baptised in the name of the LORDE IESV. And whan Paule layed the handes on them * the holy goost came vpon them, and they spake with tunges, and prophecied. And al the men were aboute twelue.

He wente in to the synagoge, and preached boldly thre monethes long, teachyng and geuynge them exhortacyons of the kyngdome of God. B But whan dyuers warrd harde harted, and beleued not, and spake euell of the waye of the LORDE before the multytude, he departed frō them, and separated the disciples, and disputed dayly in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And thys was done two yeares longe, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, herde the worde of the LORDE IESV, both Jewes and Grekes. * And God wrought no small myracles by the hādes of Paule, so that from hys body there were brought napkyns, or partelettes vnto the sycke, and the diseases departed from thē, and the euell spyrytes wente out of them.

But certayne of the vagabounde Jewes which were conturers, vndertoke to name the name of the LORDE IESVS, ouer those that hadde euell spyrytes, and sayde: We charge you by IESVS whom Paule preacheth. They were seuen sonnes of one Sceua a Jewe the hygh Prest whiche dyd so. The euell spyryte answered, and sayde: IESVS I knowe, and Paule I knowe, but wo are ye? And the man in whō the euel spyrete was, ranne vpon them, and ouercame them, and cast them vnder him, so that they fled out of the same house naked and wounded. Thys was knowen vnto all the Jewes and Grekes which dwelt at Ephesus, and there fell a feare vpon them all. And the name of the LORDE IESVS was magnifyed. * Many of them also that beleued, came and confessed, and shewed theyr workes. But many of them that had vsed curious craftes, * brought the bokes together, and burnt them openly: and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it of money, fyfty thousande pens. So myghtely grewe the worde of ỹ LORDE, and preuayled.

C Whan thys was done, Paul purposed in spyryte to take hys pourney toward Macedonia, and Achaia, and to go to Jerusalem, and sayde: After that I haue ben there, I must se Rome also. * And he sent vnto Macedonia two that ministred vnto hym, Tymotheus and Erastus. But he hymselfe remayned in Asya for a season.

* In the same tyme there rose no lytle a do about that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius a goldsmith, which made syluer shrynes for Diana, and brought the craft no small vauntage. Them he gathered together, & the folowe workmen of the same occupacion, and sayde: Syrs, ye know that by this crafte we haue vauntage, and ye se and heare, that not onely at Ephesus, but almooste also thorowe oute all Asya, this Paule turneth awaye much people wyth hys persuadinge, and sayeth: * They be not goddes that are made with handes. Howbeit it shall not onely bringe oure occupacyon to this point to be set at naught, but also the temple of greate Diana shall from henceforth be despysed, and hyr mayeste also shall be destroyed, whom neuertheles all Asya, and the worlde worshyppeth.

D When they herde thys, they were full of wrath, cryed out, and sayde: Greate is Diana of the Ephesyans. And all the cyte was one a rore, & they rushed in with one assent in to the open place, & toke * Gayus and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Pauls companions. Whan Paule wolde haue gone in amonge the people, the disciples suffred hym not. Certayne also of the chefe of Asya, whyche were Pauls good frendes sent vnto hym, and desyred hym, that he shulde not presse in to the open place.

Some cryed one thynge, some awother. And the congregacyon was out of quiete, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come together. Some of the people drewe forth Alexander, whan the Jewes thrust hym forwarde. Alexander * beckened with the hand, and wold haue geuē the people an answere. But whā they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shoute of al, and cried the space of two houres: Greate is Diana of the Ephesians. Actu. 21.b.

Whan the towne clercke had stylled E the people, he sayde: ye men of Ephesus, what man is it whiche knoweth not, that the cyte of the Ephesyans is a worshipper of the greate goddesse Diana, and of the heauenly ymage? Seynge now that thys can not be sayde agaynst, ye ought to be contente, and to do nothynge wythout aduysement. ye haue brought hyther thes men, whiche are nother churchrobbers, nor blaspheners of youre goddesse.

But yf Demetrius and they that are craftesmen wyth hym, haue ought to saye vnto ony man, the lawe is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one another. But yf ye will go aboute ony other thinge it maye be determyned in a lawfull congregacyon. For we stonde in ieopardy to be accused of thys dayes vproure: and yet is ther no mā gylty, of whom we myght geue a rekenynge of thys vproure. And whan he sayde thys, he let the congregacyon departe.

The. xx. Chapter.

NOw whan the vproure was A ceassed, Paul called the disciples vnto hym, and toke hys leue of them, & departed * to 1.Tim.1.d go i to Macedonia. And whā he had gone thorowe those partes, and exhorted them wyth many wordes, he came into Grekelonde, and abode there thre monethes. But whan the Jewes layed wayte for hym, as he was aboute to sayle in to Syria, he purposed to turne agayne thorowe Macedonia. Ther accompanyed hym in to Asya, Sopater of Berrea: and of Thessalonica, Aristarchus, and Secundus: and Gayus of Derbe, and Tymotheus: but of Asya, Tychicus & * Trophimus. Actu. 27.b. 2.Ti. 4.c. These wente before, and taried for vs at Troiada: but we sayled after the Easter dayes from Philippos, vnto the fyft daye and came to them vnto Troada, and tarried there seuen dayes.

B Upon one of the Sabbathes, whan the disciples cam together to breake bread Paull preached vnto them, wyllynge to departe on the morowe, and continued the prachynge vnto mydnyght. And ther were many lyghtes in the chamber, where they were gathered together. There sat a yõge man named Eutychos, in a wyndow, and fel in a depe slepe (whyle Paul was spea kynge) and was ouercome with slepe, and fell downe from the thyrde lofte, and was taken vp dead. But we wente afore in to the shyppe, and sayled towarde Asson, wyllynge there to receaue Paule. For so had he appoynted, and wolde hymselfe go on foote. Whã he was come to vs vnto Assõ, we toke hym in, and came to Mytilenes, and sayled frõ thence, and came on the nexte daye ouer a gaynst Chios, and on the daye folowynge we arryued at Samos, and taryed at Tra gilion, and on the nexte daye came we to Mileton: for Paul had determined to say le ouer by Ephesus, that he neded not to

The.xxi.Chapter.

NOw whan it fortuned that we I had launched forth and were departed from them, we came with a strayght course vnto Coos, and on the daye folow-page vnto Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And whan we founde a shyp ready to sayle vnto Phenices, we went aboord and set forth. But whan we came wythyn the syghte of Cypers, we lefte it on the left hande, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto Tyre: for there the shyppe shuld laye forth the ware. And whan we had founde disciples, we taryed there seuen dayes.

4.a *And they tolde Paul thorow the spyrite, ỹ he shulde not go vp to Ierusalem. And it fortuned whā we had fulfilled those dayes we departed and wente oure wayes, and they all brought vs on oure waye with wyues and chyldren, tyll we were come oute of the cyte, and we kneled downe vpon the 5.a shore, *and prayed. And whan we had taken our leaue one of another, we toke shyp but they turned agayne vnto theyrs. As for vs we ended the course from Tyre, and came to Ptolomayda, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one daye.

B On the nexte daye we that were wyth Paul departed, and came vnto Cesarea, & entred in to the house of * Philippe the Euāgelistę (which was one of ỹ seuen) and abode w̄ hym. The same had foure doughters, which were virgins * and prophecyed. And as we taried there mo dayes, there came downe from Iewry a prophet, named * Agabus. Whan he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls gyrdell, and bounde his handes and fete, and sayde: Thus sayeth the holy goost: * The man whose gerdell thys is, shall the Iewes bynde thus at Ierusalem, and shall delyuer hym in to ỹ handes of the Heythen. Whan we herde thys, both we and they that were of the same place, besought hym, that he wolde not go vp to Ierusalem. Then answered Paull and sayde: What do ye wepinge, and breakynge my harte? * For I am ready not onely to be bounde, but also to dye at Ierusalem for the name of the LORDE IESV. But whan he wolde not be persuaded, we ceased, and sayde * The wyll of the LORDE be fulfylled. And after those dayes we were ready, and wente vp to Ierusalem. There came with vs certaynes of the disciples of Cesarea, and brought wyth them one of Cypers, named Mnason, and olde disciple, wyth whome we shulde lodge. Now whan we came to Ierusalem, the brethren receaued vs gladly. But on the nexte daye Paule wente in with vs vnto Iames, and all the Elders came together. And whan he had saluted them, he tolde by order, what God had done amonge the Heythen by hys mynystracyon.

Whan they herde that, they prayed C the LORD, and sayde vnto him: Brother, thou seyst how many thousande Iewes ther are whiche beleue, and are all zelous ouer the lawe. But they are enformed of the, that thou teachest all the Iewes whiche are amonge the Heythen, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they ought not to circumcyse theyr chyldren, nor to walke after the same costume. What is it therfor? The multytude must nedes come together, for they shall heare that thou art come. Do thys therfore that we saye vnto the: We haue foure men which haue a * vowe on them, take them vnto the, & Num. 6.b purifye thyselfe with them, and do the cost Actu. 18.ab vnto them, that they maye shaue theyr heades: and they shall knowe, that it is nothynge, wherof they are informed agaīst the, but that thou also walkest and kepest the lawe. For as touchynge them that beleue amonge the Heythen, * we haue wrytten and concluded, that they shulde obserue no suche, but onely to kepe them selues from the offeringes of Idols, from bloud, from strangled, and from whoredome: Actu.15.d * Then Paull toke the men vnto hym, & was purifyed with them on the nexte daye, and entred in to the temple, declarynge that he fulfylled the dayes of purifycacyon, tyll there was an offerynge offered for D euery one of them.

But whan the seuen dayes were all moost fulfylled, the Iewes of Asya sawe hym in the temple, and moued all the people, layed handes vpon hym, and cried: Ye men of Israell, helpe, thys is the man, that teacheth all men euery where agaīst oure people, the lawe, and thys place. He hath brought Grekes also in to the temple and hath defyled this holy place. For they had sene * Trophymus the Ephesyan w̄ Act. 20. a. hym in the cyte, hym they thought that 2.Ti. 4.a Paul had brought into the temple. And al the cyte was moued, and the people ranne together. And they toke Paul, and drewe hym out of the temple, and forthwith the dores were shut.

But whan they wente about to kyll hym, tydynges came to the chefe captayne of the company, that all Ierusalem was moued. Whiche immediatly toke souldyers & captaynes vnto hym, & rāne in amōg them. Whan they sawe the captayne, and the souldyers, they lefte smytyng of Paul.

Actu.21.b. E Whan the captayne came nye, he toke hym, and commaunded hym * to be bounde with two cheynes, and ared what he was, and what he had done. One cryed thys, another that, among the people. And the vpper captayne answered: With a greate summe optayned I thys fredō. But Paul sayde: Is for me, I am a Romayn borne. Then strayght waye departed from hym, they that shulde haue examined hym. And the chefe captayne was afrayed, whan he knewe that he was a Romayn, and becau se he had bounde hym. On the nexte daye wolde he knowe the certaynte wherfore he was accused of the Jewes, and he lowsed hym from the bondes, and commaunded the Hyghe Prestes, and all theyr councell to come together, * and broughte Paull forth, and set hym amonge them.

The.xxiij.Chapter.

PAull beheelde the councel, and sayde: ye men and brethren. * I haue liued with al good conscience before God vnto thysdaye: * But the Hyghe Preste Ananias commaunded them that stode aboute hym, to smyte hym on the mouth. Then sayde Paull vnto hym: God shall smyte the thou paynted wall. * Sittest thou and iudgest me after the lawe, and commaundeste me to be smytten contrary to the lawe? And they that stode aboute hym, sayde: Reuylest thou Gods Hyghe Preste? And Paul sayde: Brethren, I wyst not that he was the Hyghe Preste. For it is wrytten: * The ruler of the people shalt thou not curse

But whan Paull knewe that the one parte was Saduces, and the other parte Pharises, he cryed out in the councell. ye men and brethren, I am a * Pharise, and the sonne of a Pharise, * Of hope and re surrection of the dead am I iudged. And whan he had so sayde, ther arose a dissen cyon betwene the Pharises and the Saduces, and the multitude was deuyded: * for the Saduces saye that there is no resurrecyon, nother angell, nor spyrete: but the Pharises graunte both. And there was made a greate crye. And the Scrybes of the Pharyses secte stode vp, and stroue, & sayde: We fynde no euell in thys man. * But yf a spyrete, or an angel haue spoken vnto hym, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

But whan the dissensyon was greate, the vppercaptayn feared, that Paul shuld haue ben pluckt asunder of them, and commaunded the souldyers to go downe, and to take hym from them, and to bryngе him in to the castell. * But in the nyghte following, the LORDE stode by hym, and sayd: Be of good cheare Paul, for as thou haste testifyed of me at Jerusalē * so must thou testifye at Rome also. Act. 16.& and. 18. 6j Ephe. 3.a 2. Tim. 1.b

Now whan it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues together and made a bowe nother to eate, nor drynk tyl they had kylled Paul. They were more then fortye, whiche had made thys conspyracyon. These came to the hyghe prestes, and Elders, and sayde: We haue bounde oure selues wyth a bowe, that we wyl eate nothynge, tyl we haue slayne Paul. Now therfore geue ye knowlege to the vpper captayn & to the councel, þ he maye bringe hym forth vnto you tomorowe, as though ye wolde heare hym yet better: As for vs, we are ready to kyll hym, or euer he come nye you.

But whan Pauls systers sonne herde of theyr layenge awayte, he came, and entred in to the castell, and tolde Paule. So Paull called vnto hym one of the vnder captayns, and sayde: Bryngе thys ponge man to the vpper captayne, for he hath somwhat to saye vnto hym. He toke hym and brought hym to the vppercaptayne, & sayde: Paul the presoner called me vnto hym, and prayed me to bryngе to the thys ponge man, whiche hath somwhat to saye vnto the. Then the hyghe captayne toke hym by the hande, and wente aside wyth hym out of the waye, and axed him: What is it, that thou haste to saye vnto me? He sayde: The Jewes are agreed together, to desyre the, to let Paule be broughte forth tomorowe before the councell, as though they wolde heare hym yet better. But folowe not thou theyr myndes, for they laye wayte for hym mo then forty men of them, whiche haue bounde them selues with a bowe, nother to eate nor drynke, tyll they haue slayne Paul: and euen now are they redye, and loke for thy promes.

Then the vpper captayne let þ ponge man departe, and charged hym to tell no man, that he had shewed hym thys. And he called vnto hym two vndercaptaynes and saide: Make ready two hundreth soul dyers, that they maye go to Cesarea, and thre score and then horsemen, and two hundreth speare men at the thyrde houre of the night, and deliuer them beastes, that they maye set Paule theron, and bryngе hym

The souldyers (as it was commaunded them) toke Paull and brought hym to Antipatras. But on the nexte daye: they left the horsmen to go with hym, and turned agyne to the castel. Whan these came to Cesarea, they delyuered the letter vnto the debyte, and presented Paul before him also. Whan the debyte had red the letter, he axed of what countre he was. We haue founde thys man a pestilẽt felowe, and a stearer vp of sedicyon amõg all the Iewes thorow out all the worlde, and a mayntayner of the secte of the Nazaretes, * and he had taken in hande also to

The Iewes lykewyse affyrmed and sayde that it was euen so.

But Paull (whan the debyte had beckened vnto hym, that he shulde speake) answered: Seynge I knowe that thou haste ben iudge now many yeares among thys people, I wyll not be afrayed to answere for my selfe, because thou mayest knowe that thet are yet nomore but twelfe dayes sence. He hoped also, that money shulde haue ben geuen hym of Paule, therfore called he ofte for hym, and communed with him. But after two yeares came Porcius Festus in Felix rowme. ¶ Felix wyllynge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, left Paul bounde.

The.xxv.Chapter.

NOw whan Festus came in to the countre, ouer thre dayes he went vp from Cesarea to Jerusalem. Then appeared ỳ hyghe prestes, & ỳ chefe of ỳ Jewes before hym agaynst Paule, and intreated hym, and desyred fauoure against him, that he wolde sende for him to Jerusalem, and layed wayte for hym, that they might slaye him by the waye. Then answered Festus, that Paule shulde be kepte at Cesarea, but that he hymselfe wolde shortly go thyther agayne. Let them therfore (sayde he) whiche are able amonge you, come downe with vs to accuse the man, yf ther be ought in hym.

Whan he had taryed amonge them more thẽ ten dayes, he went downe to Cesarea. And on the nexte daye he sat downe in the iudgement seate, and commaunded Paule to be brought. Whan he was come the Jewes whiche were come downe from Jerusalem, stode rounde aboute him, and brought many & greuous quarels against Paul, which they coulde not proue, whyle he answered for himselfe: * I haue neyther offended ought agaynst the lawe of ỳ Jewes, nor agaynst ỳ temple, nor agaynst the Emperoure.

But Festus wyllinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paull, and sayde: Wylt thou go vp to Jerusalem, ãd there be iudged of the thynges before me? But Paull sayde: I stonde at the Emperours iudgement seate: where I ought to be iudged: to the Jewes haue I done no harme, as thou also knowest very wel. yf I haue hurte ony man, or committed ony thynge worthye of death, I refuse not to dye. But yf ther are no suche thynges, as they accuse me of, then maye no man deliuer me vnto them: I appeale vnto the Emperoure. Then spake Festus with the Coũcel, & answered: Thou hast appealed vnto ỳ Emperour, to ỳ Emperour shalt thou go

After certayne dayes came kynge Agryppa, and Bernice to Cesarea to welcome Festus, and whan they had taryed there many dayes: Festus rehearsed Pauls cause vnto the kynge, and sayde. * Ther is a man left bounde of Felix: for whose cause the hyghe prestes and Elders of ỳ Jewes appeared before me whan I was at Jerusalem, and desyred a sentence agaynst hym. Vnto whom I answered: * It is not the maner of the Romaynes to deliuer ony man that he shuld perysshe, before that he whiche is accused, haue his accusers present, and receaue libertye to answere for hymselfe to the accusacion. Whã they were come hither together I made no delaye, but sat the nexte daye in iudgment and commaunded the man to be brought forth. * Of whom, whan the accusers stode vp, they brought no accusacion of suche thynges as I supposed: but had certayne questions agaynste hym of theyr owne superstycions, and of one Jesus dead whom Paule affyrmed to be alyue. Howbeit because I vnderstode not the question, I asked hym whether he wold go at Jerusalem and there be iudged of these matters. But whan Paul had appealed, that he myghte be kept vnto the knowlege of ỳ emperoure I cõmaunded him to be kept, tyll I myght sende hym to the Emperoure.

Agryppa sayde to Festus: I wold fayne heare the man also. He sayde: Tomorowe shalte thou heare hym. And on ỳ nexte daye came Agryppa and Bernyce with greate pompe, and went in the comune hal with the captaynes and chefe men of the cyte. And at Festus commaundement, Paull was brought forth. And Festus sayde: Kynge Agryppa, & all ye men, which are here with vs, ye se this man, about whom al the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me, both at Jerusalem and here also, and cried that he ought not to lyue ony lenger. But whan I perceaued that * he had done nothynge worthy of death, and ỳ he hymselfe also had appealed vnto the Emperoure I determyned to sende hym, of whome I haue no certayne thynge to wryte vnto my Lorde. Therfore haue I caused hym to be brought forth before you, specyally before the (O kynge Agrippa) that after examinacion had, I might haue somwhat to wyte. For me thynke it an vnreasonable thinge to sende a prysoner, and not to shewe the causes whiche are layed agaynst hym.

The.xxvi. Chapter.

AGryppa sayde vnto Paule: Thou haste leaue to speake for thy selfe. Then Paul stretched forth the hande, and answered for hymselfe: I thynke my selfe happye, O kynge Agrippa) because I shall answere this daye before the, of all the thynges wherof I am accused of the Jewes: spetially for so muche as thou art experte in all costumes, and questions which are amonge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseke the, to heare me patiently.

My lyuynge truely frō youth vp (how it was led from the begynnynge amonge this people at Jerusalem) know all ỹ Jewes wich knew me afore at the fyrst, yf they wolde testifye, for after the mooste straynte secte of oure Jewyshe lawe, I lyued a pharyse. * And now stonde I, and am iudged, because of the hope of the * promes, ỹ was made of God vnto oure fathers, vnto whiche (promes) oure twolue trybes hope to come seruynge God instantly daye, and nyghte. For the whiche hopes sake (O kynge Agryppa) I am accused of the Jewes. Wherfore is this iudged amonge you not to be beleued * that God rayseth vp the deade?

The.xxvii. Chapter.

When it was cõcluded that we shulde sayle in to Italy. They delyuered Paul and certayne other prysoners to the vnder captayn named Julius, of ỹ Emperours souldyers. And whã we were entred in to a shyppe of Adramis to sayle by Asia, we launched from londe. And ther was wyth vs one * Aristarchus out of Macedonia of Thessalonica, and on ỹ nexte daye we came vnto Sydon. And Julius entreated Paull curteously, * and gaue hym libertye to go to his frendes, and to refreshe hymselfe. And from thence launched we, and sayled harde by Cypers (because the wyndes were agaynst vs) & sayled ouer the see of Cilicia and Pamphilia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptayne found a shyppe of Alexandria, ready to sayle in to Italy, and put vs therin. And whã we had sayled slowly, & in many dayes were scarcely come ouer agaynst Gnydon (for the wynde withstode vs) we sayled in Candye vnto the cyte of Salmo, and came scarcely beyonde it. Then came we to a place which is called Goodhauen, nye where vnto was the cyte Lasea. Now whan muche tyme was spent, and saylynge was now to perdous, because that they also had fasted ouerlonge. Paull exhorted them, & sayde vnto them: Syrs I se that thys saylynge wyll be with hurte and much dammage, not onely of the ladynge and of the shippe but also of oure lyues.

Neuerthelesse the vndercaptayne beleued the gouernoure of the shyppe, and the master, more then it that was spokẽ of Paull. And for so much as the hauen was not commodius to wynter in, ỹ more part of them toke councell to departe thence, yf by ony meanes they mighte come to Phenices to wynter there, which is an hauen of Candy, towarde the Southwest, and Northwest wynde. Whan the South wynde blewe, they supposyng to haue had their purpose, lowsed vnto Asson, and sayled past all Candy.

But not longe after, ther arose against them purpose a flowe of wynde, which is called Northeast. And whan the shyppe was caught, and coulde not resyste the wynde, we let her go, and droue wyth the wether. But we came to an Ile, named Claudia where we could scarce get a bote. Whiche they toke vp, and vsed helpe, and bounde it vnder harde to the shyppe, fearinge lest they shulde haue fallen in to the Syrtes, and let downe the vessell, and so were caried. And whan we had bidden a greate tempest, on the nexte daye they made an outcastynge. And on the thyrde daye with oure owne handes we cast out the tacklynge of the shyppe, But whan nother Sonne, nor starres appeared in many dayes, and no small tempeste laye vpon vs, all the hope of oure lyfe was taken awaye.

And after longe abstinence, Paule stode forth in the middes of them, & sayde: Syrs, ye shulde haue herkened vnto me, and not to haue lowsed from Candy, and not to haue brought vs this harme, and losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good cheare, for ther shall none of oure lyues perysshe but the shippe onely.

For this night stode by me the angell of God (whose I am, and whom I serue) and sayde: Feare not Paull, * thou must be brought before the Emperoure. And lo, God hath geuen vnto the all them ỹ saylewith the. Wherfore syrs be of good cheare: for I beleue God, that it shall come so to passe, as it was tolde me. * How be it we must be cast in to a certaine ylonde.

But whan the fourtenth nyght came as we were caried in Adria aboute midnight, the shipmen demed that ther appeared some countre vnto them, and they cast out the leade, and founde it twentye feddoms: and whan they were gone a lytle farther, they caste out the leade agayne, and founde fyftene feddoms.

Then fearinge leste they shulde fall on some rocke, they caste four ankers out of the sterne, and wyshed for the daye. Whan the shipmen were aboute to flye out of the shippe, and let downe the bote in the see (vnder a coloure as though they wold cast ankers out of the forestippe) Paule sayde vnto the vndercaptayne and to the souldyers: Excepte these byde in the shippe, ye can not be saued. Then the souldiers cutte of the rope from the bote, and let it fall. And whan it beganne to be daye Paull exhorted them all to take meate, and sayde: To daye is the fourtenth daye that ye haue taryed and continued fasting and haue receaued nothynge: Wherfor I praie you take meate, for your health: * for ther shall not one heer fal from the heade of ony of you. And whan he had thus spoken, he toke bread, * and gaue thankes to God before them all, and brake it, and beganne to eate. Then were they al of good cheare, and toke meate also. We were all together in the shyppe two hundreth, three score, and syxtene soules. And whan they had eaten ynough, they lyghtened the shyp and cast out the wheate in to the see.

C Whan it was daye, they knewe not the londe. But they spyed an hauen wyth a banke, in to whiche they were mynded, (yf it were possyble) to thrust in the shyppe. And whan they had taken vp the anckers they committed them selues to the see, and lowsed the rudderbandes, and hoysed vp the mayne saple to the wynde, and drue to warde lond. And whan we chaunched on a place whiche had the see on both the sydes, the shyppe dasshed vpon it. And ỹ fore parte abode fast vnmoued, but the hynder part brake thorow ỹ violence of ỹ wawes.

The souldyers councell was to kyll ỹ prysoners, lest ony of them whan he had swymmed out, shulde flye awaye. But the vndercaptayne wyllynge to saue Paule, kepte them from theyr purpose, and commaunded that they whiche coulde swymme, shulde cast them selues fyrst in to the see, and escape vnto londe, and the other some on bordes, some on broken peces of the shyppe. And so it came to passe, that all the soules came safe vnto londe.

Act. 17.c.

AND whā we were escaped, we knewe that the Ile * was called Melyte. As for the people, they shewed vs no lytle kyndnesse: for they kyndled a fyre, and receaued vs all because of the rayne, that was come vpon vs, and because of the colde. Whan Paul hadde gathered a bondell of styckes, and laied them on the fyre, ther came a vyper out of the heate, & lepte on Pauls hande. Whan the people sawe the beast hange on hys hande, they sayde amonge them selues. This mā must nedes be a murthurer, whome vengeaunce suffereth not to lyue, though he haue escaped the see. But he shoke of the beast in to the fyre, & * felt no harm. Howbeit they wayted, whan he shulde haue swollen, or fallen down dead sodenly. But whan they had loked a greate whyle, and sawe that ther happened no harme vnto hym, they chaunged theyr myndes, and sayde * that he was a God.

In the same quarters the chefe man of the Ile whose name was Publius, had a lordshyppe: the same receaued vs and lodged vs thre dayes curteously. It fortuned whan Publius father laye sycke * of the feuers and of the bludy flure: Paul went in vnto hym, and prayed, and layed the hādes on hym, and healed hym.

Whan thys was done, other also which had dyseases in the Ile, came, & were healed. And they dyd vs greate honoure. And whan we departed, they laded vs wyth thynges necessary.

After thre monethes we sayled in a shyppe of Alexandria, whiche had wintred in the Ile, and had a badge of Castor, and Pollux. And whan we came to Syracusa, we taried there thre dayes: & whā we had sailed about we cam to Rhegiū: & after one daye whāȳ south wynd blewe, we came to Puteolis, where we found brethren & were desyred of them to tarye there seuen dayes and so came we to Rome. And from thence whan the brethren herde of vs, * they came forth to mete vs to Apiforum and to the thre tauernes. Whan Paule sawe the, he thanked God, and waxed bolde. But whā we came to Rome, the vndercaptayn deliuered the prysoners to the chefe captayne. * As for Paul, he hadde leaue to byde alone wyth one souldyer that kepte hym.

But whan the Jewes spake the contrary, I was constrayned to appeall vnto the Emperour: not as though I had ought to accuse my people of: for this cause haue I called you, euen to se you, and to speake wyth you: because that * for the hope of Israel, I am bound wt this cheyne. ¶ The Epistle of the Apostle Saynt Paull to the Romayns.

The summe of thys Epistle.

Chap. i Paul declareth his loue toward the Romaynes / sheweth what the Gospell is with the frute therof: and rebuketh the beastlynesse of the flesh.

Chap. ii He rebuketh the Jewes: whiche as touchynge lynne are lyke the heythen / yee worse then they.

Chap. iii He sheweth what preferment the Jewes haue / and that both the Jewes / and Gentiles are vnder lynne / and are iustified onely by the grace of God in Christ.

Chap. iiii He declareth by the example of Abraham: that fayth iustifieth / and not the lawe / nor the workes therof.

Chap. v The power of fayth: hope and loue and how death regned frō Adā vnto Christ by whō only we haue forgeuenesse of sinnes.

Chap. vi For so much as we be delyuered thorow Christ from synne: we must fashyon oure selues to lyue as the seruauntes of god and not after oure owne lustes. The vnlyke rewarde of ryghteousnesse and synne.

Chap. vii Christ hath delyuered vs from the lawe and death. Paul sheweth what the flesh and outwarde man is / and calleth it ꝓ lawe of the members.

Chap. viii The lawe of the spyrite geueth lyfe. The spyrite of God maketh vs gods chyldren and heyrs with Christ. The abidaunt loue of God can not be separated.

Chap. ix Paul complaineth vpon the hard hartes of the Jewes: that wolde not receaue Christ: and how the heythen are chosen in theyr steade.

Chap. x The vnfaythfulnesse of the Jewes. Two maner of ryghteousnesse

Chap. xi All the Jewes are not cast awaye / therfore Paull warneth the Gentyles that be called / not to be hye mynded / nor to despyse the Jewes: for the iudgementes of god are depe and secrete.

Chap. xii The sweete conuersacyon: loue: and workes of such as beleue in Christ.

Chap. xiii The obedience of men vnto theyr rulers. Loue fulfylleth the lawe. It is now no tyme to folowe the workes of darknesse.

Chap. xiiii The weake ought not to be despysed. No man shulde offende anothers conscience. Agayne: for outward thynges shuld noman condempne another.

Chap. xv The infirmyte and frayltie of the weake ought to be borne with all loue and kyndnesse: after the ensample of Christ.

Chap. xvi A chapter of salutacions. He warneth them to beware of them: & commendeth vnto them certayne godly men that were louers and brethren in the truethe.

The.fyrst.Chapter. ✠

PAull the seruaunt of IESV CHRIST, called an Apostle * put a parte to preache the Gospel of God (which he + promised afore by hys prophetes in the holy scryptures) of hys sonne, which was begotten * of the sede of Dauid after the flesshe, and myghtely declared to be the sonne of God after the spyrete which sanctifyeth, sence the tyme that he rose agayne from the dead, namely, IESVS CHRIST oure LORDE, by whome we haue * receaued grace and Apostelshyppe amonge all Heythen, to set vp the obedience of fauth vnder hys name, of whome ye are a parte also, which are called of IESVS CHRIST. +

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God, and sayntes by callynge. * Grace be wyth you, and peace from God our father, + the LORDE IESVS CHRIST.

Fyrst I thanke my God thorow IESV CHRIST for you all, that youre faith is spoken of thorow out all the worlde. detter both to the Grekes, and to the vngrekes: to the wyse, and to the vnwyse. Wherfore (as muche as in me is) I am redy to preache the Gospell vnto you at Rome also.

* For I am not a shamed of the Gospell of CHRIST: for it is the + power of God, which saued all that beleued therein, the Iewe fyrst, and also the Greke: for in it the ryghteousnesse that is of value before God, is opened, whiche commeth out of fayth in to fayth. As it is wrytten. * The iust shall lyue by hys fayth. For the wrath of God is declared from heauen vpon all vngodlynes, and vnryghteousnesse of men, whiche wytholde the treuth of God in vnryghteousnesse: because that it, which may be knowne of God, is manyfest with the. * For God hath shewed it vnto them, that the + inuisyble thynges of God (that is, hys euerlastynge power and God heade) myghte be sene * whyle they are considered by the workes from the creacion of the worlde: so that they are without excuse, in as much as they knewe, that ther is a god, and haue not prayed him as God, nor thanked hym, but became vayne in their ymaginacions, and * their folysh harte was blynded. Whan they counted them selues wyse, they became fooles: * and turned the glory of the incorruptible God, in to the symilitude of the ymage of a corruptible man, and of byrdes, and of foure footed, * and creepinge beastes.

* Wherfore God lykewise gaue them vp vnto their hartes lustes in to vnclennesse, to defyle their owne bodies in them selues, whiche turned the treuth of God vnto a lye, and worshipped and serued the creature more then the maker, whiche is blessed for euer. Amen.

Therfore God gaue them vp vnto shameful lustes. * For their wemen chaunged the naturall vse in to the vnnaturall: lykewyse the men also lefte the naturall vse of the woman, and brent in their lustes one on another, and man wyth man wrought fylthynes, and receaued in them selues the rewarde of their errour, as it was accordynge. * And as they regarded not to knowe God, euen so + God gaue them vp in to a lewde mynde, to do thole thynges whiche were not comly, beynge full of all vnryghteousnesse, whoredome, wickednesse, couetousnesse, maliciousnesse full of enuye, murther, stryfe, deceate, euel condicioned, whisperers, backbyters, de-

The. ii. Chapter.

THerfore canst thou not excuse thy selfe O man whosoeuer thou be that * iudgest: * for loke wherin thou iudgest another, thou cõdempnest thy self, in so much as thou that iudgest, doest euē the same. For we are sure that the iudgement of God is (accordynge to the trueth) ouer them that do such. But thinkest thou thys o thou man, that iudgest them which do suche thynges, and doest euen the very same thynge thy selfe, that thou shalt escape the iudgement of God? Or despysest thou the ryches of his goodnes, patience, and longe sufferynge? * Knowest thou not, that the louynge kyndnesse of God leadeth the to repentaunce?

But thou after thyne harde and impenytent harte, heapest vnto thy selfe a treasure of wrath, agaynst the daye of wrath, and of the openynge of the ryghteous iudgement of God, * whiche shall rewarde euery mã accordìng to his dedes: namely, prayse and honoure, and vncorruption, vnto them that wyth patience in doynge good, seke euerlastynge lyfe: But vnto thẽ that are contencyous, * and not obedient vnto the treuth, but obey vnryghteousnesse, shal come indignacyon and wrath, trouble, and anguysh vpon all the soules of mẽ that do euell, of the Jewe fyrst, and also of the Greke: But vnto all thẽ that do good, (shall come) prayse and honoure, and peace vnto the Jewe fyrst, & also to the Greke.

 For ther is no respecte of persones before God: Whosoeuer haue synned wythout lawe, shall perysshe also without lawe: and whosoeuer haue synned in the lawe, shalbe iudged by the lawe. * For before God, they are not ryghteous, which heare the lawe: but they that do the lawe, shalbe iustifyed. For yf the Gentyles whiche haue not the lawe, do of nature the thynges conteyned in the law, then they haupnge not the lawe, are a law vnto them selues, in that they shewe that the worde of the lawe is wrytten in theyr hartes, whyle theyr conscience beareth wytnesse vnto them, and also the thoughtes, whiche accuse or excuse them amonge thẽ selues, in the daye * whan God shall iudge the secretes of men by IESVS CHRIST, accordynge to my Gospell. Amẽ

But take hede, * thou arte called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, and makest thy boast of God, and knowest hys wyll: & for so muche as thou arte enkourmed of ỹ lawe, thou prouoste what is best to do, and presumest to be a leader of the blynde: a lyghte of them that are in darknesse: an enkourmer of the vnwise: a teacher of the symple: whiche haste the ensample of knowlege and of the treuth in the lawe.

Now teachest thou other, and teachest not thy selfe: * Thou preachest that a mã shulde not steale, and thou stealest. Thou sayest, that a man shulde not breake wedlocke, and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest God of his honour. Thou makest thy boast of ỹ law, and thorowe breakynge of the lawe thou dyshonorest God. For thorowe you is the name of God euell spoken of amonge the gentyles, * as it is wrytten.

The circumcysyon verely auayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe, but yf thou breake the lawe, then is thy circumcision become vncircumcysyon. Therfore yf the vncircũcysyon kepe the ryght thynges conteyned in the lawe, shall not hys vncircumcysyon be counted for circumcysyõ? And so, it that of nature is vncyrcumcysyon, and fulfylleth the lawe, shall iudge the, whiche vnder the letter and circumcysyon trangresseth the lawe. For he is not a Jewe whiche is a Jewe outward: nother is that circumcisyon whiche is done outwardly in the flesh: * But he is a Jewe, whiche is hyd wythin. And ‡ the circumcysyon of ỹ hart is the circumcysyon, whiche is done in the spyrete and not in the letter: Who so prayse is not of men, but of God.

The. iii. Chapter.

WHat furtheraunce then haue the Jewes? Or what auaunctageth circumcysyon? Surely very much e. Fyrst * vnto them was committed what God spake: * But where as some of them dyd not beleue thereõ, what then? shulde theyr vnbeleefe make the promesse of God of none effecte? God forbid. Let it rather be

But yf it be so, that oure vnrygh teousnesse prayseth the ryghteousnesse of God, what shall we saye? Is god then vnryghtreous, that he is angrie therfore (I speake thus after the maner of men) god forbyd. How mpghte god then iudge the worlde? For yf the treuth of god be thorowe my lye the more excellent vnto hys prayse, why shulde I then be iudged yet as a synner? and not rather to do thus: (as we are cuell spoken of, and as some reporte, ỹ we shuld saye) Let vs do euel, that good maye come therof. Where is now then thy reioycynge? It is excluded. By what lawe? By the law of workes? Nay, but by the lawe of fayth.
Gala. 2. * We holde therfore that a man is iusty-fyed by fayth, wythout the workes of the lawe. Or is god the god of the Iewes on-nes verely the god of the Heythen also, for so muche as he is the god onely that iusty fyeth the cyrcumcysyon whiche is of faith: and the vncyrcumcysyon thorowe fayth. Destroye we then the lawe thorow fayth? god forbyd. But we mayntayne the lawe.

The. iiij. Chapter.

What shall we saye then, that Abraham * our father as per Gala. 3. taynynge to the flesshe, byd fynde? This we saye: yf Abra hā were made righteous tho-rowe workes, then hath he wherin to re-ioyce, but not before god. But what sayeth Gene. 15. Gala. 3. Jam. 2. the scrypture? * Abraham beleued god, & that was counted vnto hym for ryghteous-nesse. Vnto hym that goeth aboute wyth workes, is the rewarde not rekened of fa-noure, but of duety: Howbeit vnto hym, that goeth not about wyth workes, but beleueth on hym that iustifyeth ỹ vngodly, is hys fayth counted for ryghteousnesse. Eue as Dauid sayeth also, that blessednesse is Psa. 32. onely that mans, vnto whom god counted ryghteousnesse wythout addyng to of wor-kes, where he sayeth: * Blessed are they whose vnryghteousnesses are forgeuen, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is the man, vnto whom the LORDE impu-teth no synne.

Now this blessednesse goeth it ouer ỹ circumcisyon, or ouer the vncircumcision? We must nedes graunte, that Abrahams fayth was counted vnto hym for ryghteousnesse. How was it then rekened vnto Gene. 17. hym? In the circumcisyon, or in the vncircumcysyon? Doutles * not in the circum-Gene. 17. cysyon, but in the vncyrcumcisyon. As for the token of circumcision * he receaued it for a stale of the ryghteousnesse of fayth, whiche he had yet in the vncircumcysyon, that he shulde be a father of all them that beleue, beyng in the vncyrcumcysion, that it myght be counted vnto them also for ryghteousnesse: and that he myght be a father of cyrcumcision, not only of them that are of the circumcysyon, but of them also that walke in the fotesteppes of the fayth, whiche was in the vncircumcysyon of our father Abraham.

For the promes (that he shulde be the heyre of the worlde) was not made vnto Abraham or to hys sede, thorowe the law, but thorowe the ryghteousnesse of fayth.

* For yf they whiche are of the lawe be heyres, then is fayth vayne, and the promes of none effecte, for so muche as ỹ lawe causeth but wrath. For where ỹ law is not, there is also no transgressiō. Therfor was the promes made thorowe fayth, that it myght come of fauoure, whereby the promes myght be made sure vnto al the sede: not onely vnto hym whiche is of the lawe, but also vnto hym that is of the fayth of Abraham, * whiche is the father of vs al As it is wrytte: * I haue made the a father of many Heythen before God, whom thou hast beleued: whiche quickeneth the dead, and calleth it which is not, that it may be.

And he beleued vpon hope, where nothynge was to hope, that he shulde be a father of many Heythen, accordynge as it was sayde vnto hym: * Euen so shall thy sede be. And he was not faynt in fayth, nother consydred hys owne body, which was dead already, whyle he was almooste an hundreth yeare olde, nother the dead wōbe of Sara. For he douted not in the promes of God thorow vnbeleefe, but was stronge in faith, and gaue god the prayse, and was sure, that loke * what God promyseth, he is able to make it good. And therfore was it reckened vnto hym for ryghteousnesse.

* But thys is not wrytte onely for his sake that it was counted vnto hym, but also for oure sakes: vnto whom it shalbe counted, yf we beleue on hym that rayseth vp oure LORDE IESVS from the death.

* Which was geuen for oure synnes, and rayseth vp for oure ryghteousnesse sake.

The. v. Chapter.

BEcause therfore that we * are iustifyed by fayth, * we haue peace wyth God thorowe our LORDE IESVS CHRIST, by whome also we haue an entraunce in fayth vnto thys grace, wherein we stonde, and * reioyce in the hope of the glorie for to come, whiche God shall geue. Not onely that, but we reioyce also in troubles, for so much as we knowe that * trouble bryngeth patience, patience bryngeth experience, experience bryngeth hope: * As for hope, it letteth vs not come to confusyon, because the loue of God is shed abrode in oure hartes, by ỹ holy goost which is geuen vnto vs. * For whan we were yet weake accordynge to the tyme, CHRIST dyed for vs vngodly. Now dieth ther scarce ony man for the ryghteousnesse sake: Peraduenture for a good mā durst one dye. + * Therfore doth God set forth hys loue toward vs, in ỹ CHRIST dyed for vs, whan we were yet synners: Much more then shal we be saued from wrath by hym: seynge we are now made ryghteous thorowe hys bloude.

For yf we were reconcyled vnto God by the death of hys sonne, whan we were yet enemyes: muche more shall we be saued by hym, nowe that we are reconcyled. Not onely that, but we reioyce also in god thorowe oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST, by whome we haue now receaued the attonement.

Wherfore * as by one man synne entred into the worlde, and death by the meanes of synne: euen so went the death also ouer all men, in so muche as they all haue synned. For synne was in the worlde vnto the lawe: but where no law is, there is not synne regarded. Neuertheles death raygned from Adam vnto Moses, euen ouer them also that synned not with lyke transgression as dyd Adam, which is the ymage of hym that was to come.

But it is not wyth the * gyfte as ỹ the synne: for yf thorowe synne of one many be dead, yet muche more plenteously came the grace and gyfte of God vpō many * by the fauour that belonged vnto one man IESVS CHRIST.

And the gyfte is not onely ouer one synne, as death came thorowe one synne, of one ỹ synned. For the iudgement came of one synne vnto condempnacion, but the gyfte to iustifie from many synnes. For yf by the synne of one death raygned by the meanes of one: muche more shall they whiche receaue the abundaunce of grace & of the gyfte vnto ryghteousnesse, raygne in lyfe by ỹ meanes of one IESV CHRIST. Lykewise then as by the synne of one ton-

Gen. 2.a Rom. 6.a

The.vii. Chapter. ✣

KNowe ye not brethren (for I speke vnto them that knowe the lawe) how that the lawe hath power vpon a man as longe as he lyueth? * For the woman that is in subiection to the man, is bounde vnto the lawe whyle the man lyueth: but yf the man dye, then is she lowsed from the lawe that concerneth the man. * yf she be now with another man, whyle the mã liueth, she shalbe called a wedlocke breaker. But yf the man be dead, thẽ is she free from the law, so that she is no wedlock breaker, yf she be with another man.

1.Co.7.a

Rom. 6.a

Euen so my brethren, ye also are dead vnto the lawe by the body of CHRIST, that ye shulde be with another (namely with him that is raised vp from the dead) that we shulde bring forth frute vnto God. For whan we were in the flesshe, the synfull lustes (whiche were stered vp by the lawe) were mightie in oure membres to bringe forth frute vnto death. But now are we lowsed from the lawe, and dead vnto it, ý helde vs captiue, so that we shulde serue in a new conuersacion of the spyete, and not in the olde conuersacyon of the letter.

What shall we saye then? Is the lawe synne? God forbyd: Neuertheles I knewe not syn, but by the lawe. For I had knowen nothynge of luste, yf the lawe had not sayde: * Thou shalt not lust. But then toke synne occasyon at the commaundement, and stered vp in me al maner of lust for wythout the lawe, synne was dead.

As for me, I lyued somtyme, wythout lawe howbeit whan the cõmaudnement came, synne reuyued, but I was dead. And the very same commaundement that was geuen me vnto lyfe, was founde to be vnto me an occasion of death. For synne toke occasyon at the commaundement, and deceaued me, and slewe me by the same commaũdement. * The lawe in dede is holy, and the commaundement holy, iuste and good. Is that then which is good become death vnto me? God forbyd. But syn that it myghte appeare how ỹ it is synne, hath wrought in me death thorow good: that synne myghte be oute of measure synfull by the commaundement. For we knowe that the lawe is spirituall, but I am carnal * solde vnder synne: because I knowe not what I do. For I do not that I wyll, but what I hate, that do I. yf I do now that whiche I wyll not, then graunte I, that the lawe is good.

So then it is not I that do it, but syn that dwelleth in me: for I knowe that in me, (that is, in my * flesshe) ther dwelleth no good thynge. To wyll is present with my, but to perfourme that whiche is good I synde not. For the good that I wyll, do I not: but the euel whiche I wyll not, that do I. yf I do now that I wyll not: then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me.

Thus synde I now by the lawe, that whan I wyll do good, euel is present with me. For I delyte in the lawe of God after the inwarde man: but I se another law in my membres, which stryueth agaynst the lawe of my mynde, and taketh me prysoner in the lawe of synne, whiche is in my membres. O wretched man that I am, who shall delyuere me from the body of this death? I thanke God thorowe IESVS CHRISTE oure LORDE.

So then with the mynde I serue the lawe of God, but with the flesshe the lawe of synne,

The.viii.Chapter.

THen is ther now no damnacyon vnto them that are in CHRIST IESV, whiche walke not after the flesshe, but after the spyete. For the lawe of the spyete (that bryngeth lyfe in CHRIST IESV) hath made me * free from the lawe of synne and death. * For what vnpossyble was vnto the lawe (in as muche as it was weake because of ỹ flesshe) that performed God, and sent hys sonne in the symylitude of synfull flesshe, and by * synne damned synne in the flesshe: that the ryghteousnesse requyred of the lawe, myght be fulfylled in vs, whiche walke not after the flesh, but after the spyete. For they that are fleshly, are fleshly minded: but they that are goostly, are goostly mynded. To be fleshly mynded, is death: but to be goostly mynded, is lyfe and peace.

For to be fleshly mynded, is enemyte agaynst God, * syth it is not subdued vnto the lawe of God. For it can not also. As for them that are fleshy, they can not please God. Howbeit ye are not fleshly, but goostly, yf so be that the spyet of God dwel in you. But who so hath not the spyete of CHRIST ỹ same is not hys. Neuertheles yf CHRIST be in you, then is the body dead because of synne: But the spyete is lyfe for ryghteousnesse sake, Wherfore yf the spyete of him, that rased vp IESVS from the dead, dwell in you, then shall euen he also that rayled vp CHRIST from the dead, quycke̅ your mortall bodyes, because that hys spirite dwelleth in you. * Therfore bretheren we are now detters, not to the flesshe, to lyue after the flesshe, for yf ye lyue after the flesshe, ye must dye: but yf ye mortifye the dedes of the body thorowe the spyete, ye shall lyue. For whosoeuer are led by the spyete of god are Gods children: * for ye haue not receaued the spyete of bondage to feare ony more, but ye haue receaued the spyete of adopcyon, whereby we crye: Abba, deare father. * The same spyete certifyeth oure spyete, ỹ we are ỹ children of god. yf we be children, the are we heyres also, namely the heires of god, & heires annexed vnto CHRIST yf so be ỹ we suffer together, ỹ we may be also glorifyed together. * * For I suppose, ỹ the afflictions of this tyme, are not worthy of ỹ glory, wich shalbe shewed vpõ vs. * For ỹ feruent longinge of ỹ creature loketh for the appearynge of the children of god, because ỹ creatur is subdued vnto hanyte agaynst hyr wyll, but for his wyll that subdued her vpon hope. For the creature also shall be fre from the bondage of corruption, vnto the glorious lybertie of the chyldren of God. For we knowe, that Job.16.c. euery creature groneth, * and trauayleth with vs in payne vnto the same tyme.

Not they onely, but we oure selues also, which haue the fyrst frutes of the spyret, grone within in oure selues for the chyldshyppe, and loke for the delyueraunce of oure body. For we are saued in dede, howbett in hope: * but the hope that is sene, is Heb.11.a no hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seyth? But yf we hope for that which we se not, then do we thorowe pacience abyde for it.

LYkewise the spyret also helpeth oure weakenesse: for we knowe not what we Esa.26.c shulde desyre as we oughte: * neuertheles the spyret it selfe maketh intercessyō mightely for vs with vnoutspeakable gro
Jere.17.b nynges. * Howbeit he ỳ searcheth the hart knoweth what the mynde of the spyret is: for he maketh intercessyon for the sayntes accordynge to the pleasure of God.

* But sure we are, that all thynges serue for the best vnto them that loue god: wich are called of purpose. For those whome he knewe before, hath he ordeyned also before that they shulde be lyke fashioned vnto ỳ shape of his sonne, that he might be ỳ fyrst begotten amonge many brethren. As for those whome he hath ordeyned before, thē hath he called also: and whome he hath called, them hath he also made ryghteous: ād whome he hath made ryghteous, thē hath he glorified also.

What shall we saye then vnto these num.14.a thynges? * yf God be on oure syde, who Esai.50.b can be agaynst vs? * Which spared not Gen.22.c his owne sonne, but hath geuen him for vs Esa.53.c all, how shall he not with him geue vs all Joh3.3.c thynges also? Who wyll laye ony thynge to the charge of Gods chosen? It is God that maketh ryghteous, who wyll then cōdemne? It is CHRIST that dyed, ye rather whiche is raysed vp agayne: whiche is also on the ryghthande of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who wyll separate vs from the loue of God? Trouble? or angyshe? or persecucyon? or honger? or nakednesse? or parell?
Psal.43.c or swearde? As it is wrytten: * For thy sake are we kylled all the daye longe, we are counted as shepe appoynted to be slayn. Neuertheles in all these thinges we ouer come farre, for his sake that loued vs. For sure I am, that nother death nor lyfe, nother angell, nor rule, nother power, nother thynges present, nother thynges to come, nother heyght, nor loweth, nother ony other creature shalbe able to separate vs from the loue of God, which is in CHRIST IESV oure LORDE.

The.ix.Chapter.

I Saye the trueth in CHRIST, and lye not (wherof my conscience beareth me wytnesse in the holy goost) that I haue greate heuynesse and contynuall sorowe in my harte. * I haue wy- Gen.

to the, that is. They which are children after the flesh, are not the children of God, but the children of the promes are counted for the sede. For this is a worde of the pro- Gen.
mes: where he sayeth: * About this tyme wyll I come, and Sara shall haue a son.

How be it it is not so with this onely
but also whan * Rebecca was with child Gen.
by one (namely by our father Isaac) or euer the chyldren were borne, and had done nother good nor bad (that the purpose of god might stonde accordynge to the electyon, not by the deserynge of workes, but by ỳ grace of the caller) it was sayd thus vnto her: The greater shall serue the lesse. As it is wrytten: * Jacob haue I loued, but Gen.
Esau haue I hated.

What shall we saye then? is God then vnrighteous? God forbyd. For he sayeth vnto Moses: * I shew mercy, to who I shew Exo. mercy: & haue cōpassiō, on whom I haue compassion. So lieth it not then in ony mās wil, or running, but in ỳ mercy of god. For the scrypture sayeth vnto Pharao: * For Exo.
this cause haue I stered the vp, euen to shewe my power on the, ỳ my name might be declared in all londes. Thus hath he mercy on whom he wyl: and whom he wil he hardeneth.

Thou wylt saye then vnto me: why blameth he vs yet? * For who can resyste hys wyll? O thou man, who art thou that disputest with God? Sayeth the worke to his workman: Why hast thou made me on this fashion? * Hath not the potter power, out of one lompe of claye to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another vn to dishonoure? Therfore whan God wold shewe wrath, & to make his power knowē, he brought forth with greate pacience the vessels of wrath, whiche are ordeyned to dampnacyon: that he might declare the ry ches of his glorie on the vessels of mercy, which he had prepared vnto glory, whom he hath called (namely vs) not only of the Iewes, but also of the Gentyles. As he sayeth also by Osee: * I will call that my people, whiche is not my people: and my beloued, whiche is not the beloued. And it shall come to passe in the place, where it was sayde vnto them: ye are not my people, there shall they be called the chyldrē of the lyuynge God. But Esay cryed ouer Is rael: * Though the nombre of the chyldren of Israell be as the sonde of the see,
yet shall ther but a remnaunte be saued.
For there is the worde that fynysheth, and shorteneth in ryghteousnesse. For a shorte worde shall God make vpon earth. And as Esay sayde before: * Excepte ỹ LOR-DE of Sabbaoth had lefte vs sede: we shulde haue ben as Sodoma, and lyke vn to Gomorra.

What shall we saye then? This wyll we saye: The Heythen which folowed not ryghteousnesse, haue ouertaken righteous nesse: but I speake of the ryghteousnesse that commeth of fayth. Agayne, Israel fo lowed the lawe of ryghteousnesse, and at-tayned not vnto the law of ryghteousnesse Why so? Euen because they sought it not out of fayth, but as it were out of the de-seruinge of workes. For they haue stōbled at the stomblinge stone. As it is written:
* Behold, I lay in Syō a stone to stōble at & a rocke to be offended at: & whosoeuer be leueth on him, shal not be confounded.

The.x. Chapter. ✣

BRethren my hartes desyre, & ād prayer vnto God for Israell is, that they myght be saued.
For I beare them recorde, that they are zelous for gods cause, but not with vnderstondynge. For they knowe not the ryghteousnesse whiche auayleth before God, and go aboute to mayntayne their owne ryghteousnesse: & thus they are not subdued vnto the rygh-teousnesse, that is of value before God.
* For CHRIST is the ende of the law, vnto Mat. 5 b

(that is nothynge els thē to fetch CHRIST depe? (that is nothynge els then to fetch vp CHRIST from the dead). But what sayeth the scrypture? The worde is nye the, euen in thy mouth, & in thyne harte. Thys is the worde of fayth that we preache.

For yf thou knowlegest IESVS w̄ thy B

the dead, thou shalt be saued. ✣ For yf

I saye then: Haue they therfore stombled, that they shuld cleane fal to naught? God forbyd: but thorowe they fall is saluacion happened vnto the Heythen, that he myght prouoke them to be zelous after them. For yf theyr fall be the ryches of the worlde, and the mynyshynge of them the ryches of the Heythen: howe muche more shulde it be so, yf theyr fulnes were there?

For verely the giftes and callynge of God are suche, that it can not repente hym of them. For like wise as ye also in time past haue not beleued, but now haue optayned mercy thorow their vnbeleffe: Euen so now haue they not beleued on the mercy whiche is happened vnto you, that they also maye optayne mercy. For God hath closed vp all vnder vnbeleffe, ỹ he myght haue mercy on all.

The powers that be, are ordeyned of God, so that whosoeuer resysteth ỹ power, resysteth the ordinaunce of God. And they that resyste, shall receaue to them selues damnacion. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but of euell. yf thou wylt be without feare of the power, do well then, and thou shalt haue prayse of the same: for he is the mynister of God for thy wealth. But yf thou do euel, then feare, for he beareth not the swearde for naught. For he is the mynyster of God, a taker of vengeaunce, to punyshe hym that doth euell. Colo.2.c alyke. * Let euery mā be sure of hys meanynge. He that putteth dyfference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE, and he that putteth no dyfference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE also. He that eateth, eateth vnto the LORDE, for he geueth God thankes: and he that eateth not, eateth not vnto the LORD, and geueth god thankes. For none of vs lyueth to hymselfe and none dyeth to hymselfe. If we lyue, we lyue vnto the LORD: ꝑ we dye, we dye vnto the LORD. Therfore, whether we lyue or dye, we are the LORDES.

Rom.4.b thynges are wrytten afore tyme, are wrytten for oure learnynge, that we thorow ꝑ Psal.119.b cience and * comforte of the scryptures, myght haue hope. The God of patyence, and consolacyon graunte you to be lyke mynded one to another accordynge vnto IESV CHRIST, that ye beyng of one mynd maye with one mouth prayse God the father of oure LORDE IESV CHRISTE.

Wherfore receaue ye one another, as CHRIST hath receaued you to the prayse of God. But I saye, that CHRIST IESVS was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confyrme the promyses made vnto the fathers, and that the Heythen myght prayse God because of mercy, as it is wrytten: * For this cause wyll I prayse the amonge the Gentyles, & synge vnto thy name. And agayne he sayeth: * Reioyce ye Heythen with hys people. And agayne: * Prayse the LORDE all ye Gentyles, and laude hym all ye nacyons. And agayne Esay sayeth: * There shalbe ỳ rote of Jesse and he that shall ryse to rule the gentyles, in hym shall the gentyles trust. The god of hope fyl you with al ioye and peace in belyuynge, that ye maye be plenteous in hope thorowe the power of the holy goost.

+ I my selfe am full certifyed of you (my brethren) that ye youre selues are full of goodnesse, fylled with all knowlege, so that ye are able to exhorte one another. Nethelesse (brethrē) I haue somwhat more boldly wrytten vnto you, as one that putteth you in remembraunce, for the grace ỳ is geuen me of god, that I shulde be a myster of IESV CHRIST amonge the Heythen, to declare the gospell of god, that the Heythen myght be an acceptable offering vnto god, sanctifyed by the holy goost. Therfore maye I boast my selfe thorowe IESV CHRIST, that I myght wyth thynges pertaynynge vnto god. + For I durst not speake oughte except CHRIST had * wroughte the same by me, to make the Heythen obedient thorow worde and dede thorowe the power of tokens and wōders and thorow the power of the spyrite of god, so that from Jerusalem, and rounde about vnto Illyricon, I haue fylled all with the gospell of CHRIST. So haue I enforced my selfe to preache the gospell, not where Christes name was knowne, lest I shulde buylde on another mans foundacyon, but as it is wrytten: * To whome he was not spoken of, they shall se: and they that haue not herde, shall vnderstonde. This is also the cause, wherfore I haue bene oft tymes let to com vnto you. But now syth I haue no more place in these contrees, hauynge yet a desyre many yeares sence to come vn to you, whan I shall take my yourney in to Spayne: I wyl come to you: for I trust that I shall passe that waye, and se you, & to be brought on my way thytherwarde by you: but so, that I fyrst refresh my selfe a lytle with you.

But now go I to Jerusalem, to mynyster vnto the sayntes: For they of Macedonia and Achaia haue wyllyngly prepared a comune * collectyon together, for the poore sayntes at Jerusalē. They haue done it wyllyngly, and they are detters are they. + For yf the Heythen be made partakers of their spirituall thinges, their dutye is to mynyster vnto them in bodely thynges. Now whan I haue perfourmed this, and haue brought them thys frute sealed, I wyl take my iourney by you into Spayn. But I am sure whan I come vnto you, that I shall come with the full blessyng of the Gospell of Christ.

I beseke you brethren thorowe oure LORDE IESV CHRIST, and thorow the loue of the spyrite, that ye helpe me in my busynes with youre prayers vnto god for me, that I maye be delyuered from the vnbeleuers in Jewry, and that this my seruice which I do to Jerusalem, maye be accepted of the sayntes, that I maye come vnto you with ioye by the wyl of god, and refreshe my selfe with you. * The God of peace be with you all. Chap. xvi He putteth them in remembraūce of the gatherynge for the poore Christen at Jerusalem: and cōcludeth hys epistle with the salutacyōs of certayne louynge brether.

The fyrst Epistle

of the Apostle. S. Paull to the Corinthians.

The.fyrst.Chapter.

PAull, called to be an Apostle of IESVS CHRIST thorowe the wyl of God, & brother * Sosthenes, vnto the congregacion of God whiche is at Corinthū, to them that are * sanctifyed in CHRIST IESV, saynctes by callynge, with al them that call vpon the name of oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE, in euery place both of theyrs and ours, * Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE IESVS CHRIST.

* I thanke my God alwayes on your behalfe, for the fauoure of God whiche is geuen you in IESVS CHRIST, ✠ in all poyntes ye are made ryche by hym, in euery worde, and in all maner of knowlege (euen as the preachynge of CHRIST is confyrmed in you) so that ye wante nothynge in ony gyfte, and wayte but for the appearynge of oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE: which shall strengthen you also vnto ✠ ende, that ye maye be blameles in the daye of oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE. ✠ * For God is faythfull, by whome ye are called vnto the felowshyppe of hys sonne IESVS CHRIST oure LORDE.

But I beseke you brethren thorow the the name of oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST * that ye all speake one thynge, & let ther be no dissensyon amonge you, but that ye be perfecte in one meaninge. For it is shewed me (my brethren) of you, by them which are of the housholde of Cloes, that ther is stryfe amonge you. I speake of that, wich euery one of you sayeth: I holde of Paull: Another, I holde of * Apollo. The thyrd I holde of Cephas. The fourth, I hold of CHRIST. Is CHRIST then deuyded in partes? Was Paull crucifyed for you? Or were ye baptysed in the name of Paul? I thanke God that I haue baptysed none of you, but * Crispus and Gayus: lest ony shulde saye, that I in myne owne name had baptysed. I baptysed also the housholde * of Stephana. Farthermor knowe I not whether I baptised ony other. For CHRIST sent me not to baptyse, but to preache the Gospell, not with wysdome of wordes, lest the crosse of CHRIST shulde haue bene made of none effecte.

For the worde of the crosse is foolyshnesse to them that perysshe * but vnto vs, whiche are saued, it is the power of God. For it is wrytten * I wyll destroye ✠ wysdome of the wyse, and wyll caste away the vnderstondynge of the prudent.

* Where are the wyse? Where are the Scribes? Where are the disputers of this worlde? Hath not god made the wysdome of this worlde foolishnesse? For in so much as the world by the wisdome therof knew not god in his wisdome, it pleased god thorowe foolysh preachynge, to saue them that beleue. For * the Iewes requyre tokens, and the Grekes are after wysdome. But we preache CHRIST the Crucified: to the Iewes an occasyon of fallinge, and vnto the Grekes foolyshnesse. But vnto them that are called (both Iewes and Grekes) we preache CHRIST the power of god, and * the wysdome of god.

For the foolyshnesse of god is wyser [illegible] and weaknesse of god is stroger then men. ✠ Brethren, loke on your calling How we ✠ * not many wyse men after ✠ flesh not many myghty, not many of hyghe degre are called: but that foolysh is before ✠ world hath god chosē, ✠ he myght confounde the wise: And that weake is before ✠ world hath god chosen, that he myght confounde the myghtie. And the vyle and despysed before the worlde hath god chosen, * yee, and that whiche is nothynge, that he myght destroye, that whiche is ought, that no flesh shulde reioyce in his presence. Of the same are ye also in CHRIST IESV, which of god is made vnto vs * wysdome & righteousnesse * sanctifyenge and redemption: accordynge as it is wrytten. * He that reioyceth, shulde reioyce in the LORDE. ✠

The.ii.Chapter.

1 AND I brethren, whan I came vnto you, I came not with hygh wordes or hyghe wysdome to shewe vnto you the preaching of CHRIST. For I shewed not forth my selfe amonge you þ I knewe ony thynge, saue onely IESVS CHRIST. euen the same that was crucifyed. And I was in weakneſſe, and in feare, & in muche
1.Cor.1.8 tremblynge: * and my worde and my preachynge was not with entiſynge wordes of mans wysedome, but in shewynge of the spirite and of power: that youre faith shuld not stonde in the wysedome of men, but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysedome amonge them that are perfecte: not the wysedome of this world, nother of the rulers

Euen so noman knoweth what is in god, saue the spirite of god. As for vs, we haue not receaued the spirite of this worlde but the spirite whiche commeth of god, so that we can knowe what is geuen vs of god: which we also speake, not with conynge wordes of mans wysdome, but with the conynge wordes of the holy goost, and iudge spirituall matters spiritually. Howbeit the naturall man perceaueth nothynge of the spirite of god. It is foolyshnesse vnto hym, and he can not perceaue it: for it muste be spyrytually discerned. * But he that is spirituall, discusseth all thynges, and he is iudged of no-

The.iiii. Chapter.

LEt euery man thys wyse esteme vs, euen for the * mynysters of CHRIST, and stewardes of the * secretes of God. Now is ther nomore requyred of the stewardes, then þ they be found * faythfull. It is but a small thynge vnto me, that I shulde be iudged of you, or of mans daye, nother iudge I myne owne selfe. I knowe nought by my selfe, * yet am I not therby iustifyed. It is the LORD that iudgeth me. Therfore iudge ye nothynge before the tyme, vntyll the LORD come, whiche shall bringe it to lyght that is hyd in darknesse, and open the councels of the hartes, and the shal euery one haue prayse of God.

These thynges brethren haue I descryued in myne owne person, and in Apollos for youre sakes, that ye myghte learne by vs, that noman counte hygher of hymself then aboue is writen, that one be not puft vp agaynste another for ony mans cause. For who preferreth the? * What hast thou that thou haste not receaued? yf thou hast receaued it, why makest thou the thy boast, as though thou haddest not receaued it? Now ye are full, now ye are made riche, ye raygne wythout vs, and wolde God ye dyd raygne, that we might raygne with you.

Me thynketh that God hath sette forth vs Apostles for the lowest of all, * euē as thoe that are appoynted to death. For we are a gasynge stocke to the worlde, and to the angels, and vnto men. We are fooles for CHRISTES sake, but ye are wyse in CHRIST: We weake, but ye stronge: ye honorable, but we despysed. Euen vnto thys houre we honger and thyrst, and are naked and are buffeted with fystes, and haue no certayne dwellynge place, * and laboure and worke with oure owne handes. We are reuyled, * and yet we blesse we are persecuted, and suffre it. We are euell spoken of, & we praye: We are become as it were the very outsweppynges of the worlde, yee the offscowryng of al men vnto this tyme.

I wryte not thys to shame you, but as my deare chyldren I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousād instructours in CHRISTE, yet haue ye not many fathers For I haue * begotten you in CHRIST IESV thorowe the Gospell. Wherfore I exhorte you, * be ye my folowers. For this cause haue I sent vnto you Tymotheus (whiche is my deare sonne, and faythfull in the LORDE) that he maye put you in remembraunce of my wayes, whiche are in CHRIST, euen as I teach euery where in al congregacyons. Some are puft vp as though I wold come nomore at you. But I wyll come to you shortely. (* yf the LORDE wyll) and wyll knowe, not the wordes of them that are puft vp, but the power. For the kyngdome of God is not in wordes, but in power. What wyll ye? Shall I come vnto you with the rod, or with loue and the spirite of meekenesse.

The.v. Chapter.

IT is comen to a commune reporte that ther is whordome amōg you, and suche whordome, as is not once named among the Heythen * that one shuld haue hys fathers wyfe. And ye are puft vp, and haue not rather sorowed, that he whiche hath done thys dede, myght be put from amonge you. * For I verely as absent in body, but present in spyrite, haue determyned already as though I were present (to condemnynge hym that hath done thys dede) in the name of oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST, whan ye are gathered together with my spyrite, and with the power of our LORDE IESVS CHRISTE, * to deliuer hym vnto Sathan for the destruccion of the flesh, that the spyrite maye be saued in the daye of the LORDE IESV.

ye not that youre bodyes are the membzes of CHRIST? Shall I now take ꝑ mem

The.vii.Chapter.

AS concernynge the thynges whereof ye wzote vnto me, I answere: It is good foz a mã not to touche a woman. Ne-uertheles to auoyde whozdome, let euery man haue hys owne wyfe and let euery woman haue hyz owne husbande. Let the man geue vnto the wyfe dew beneuolence: lyke wyse also the wyfe vnto he man. The wyfe hath not power ouer hyz owne body, but the husbande: and lykewyse the man hath not power ouer hys own body, but the wyfe. * Withdraw Gen.6 not youre selues one from another, except 1.Co.7 it be wyth cõsent of both foz a tyme, ꝑ ye may Joel.2
geue youre selues vnto fastynge & prayer, and then come together agayne, lest Sa-than tẽpte you foz youre incontynencye.
But thys I saye of fauoure, and not of cõ maundement. * Howbeit I wolde rather Jer.16 that all men were as I am. Neuertheles euerypne hath hys pzoper gyfte of God, one thus another so. To them verely that are vnmaryed and to wedowes I saye: It is good foz them that they abyde also as I 1.Co.7
do. * but yf they can not absteyne, let them marye. Foz it is better to marye, then to burne.

But vnto them that are maryed, com B maunde not I, but the LORDE, * that the Mat.19
wyfe separate not herselfe from hyz hus- 1.Co.7 bande: but yf she separate herselfe, that she remayne vnmaried, or be recõcyled to hyr husbande: and let not the husbande put awaye hys wyfe from hym.

Is for the other, vnto them saye I, not the LORDE: If ony brother haue an vnbeleuynge wyfe, and she is cõtent to dwel with hym, let hym not put her awaye. And yf a woman haue an vnbeleuynge husbãd and he is content to dwell with her, let her not put hym awaye. For the vnbeleuynge husbande is sanctifyed by the wyfe, and the vnbeleuynge wyfe is sanctified by the husbande: or els were youre chyldren vnclene, but now are they holy. But yf the vnbeleuynge departe, let hym departe. A brother or a syster is not bound in suche cases, but God hath called vs in peace. * For what knowest thou O woman, whether thou shalte saue the man? Or what knowest thou O man, whether thou shalt saue the woman? But euen as God hath dystributed vnto euery one, * & as the LORDE hath called euery man, so let hym walke: and so ordeyn I in all congregacyons.

C If ony man be called beynge circumcysed, let hym take no Heythenshyppe vpon hym: yf ony man be called in the Heythenshyppe, let hym not be circumcysed. Circumcisyon is nothinge, and vncircumcision is nothynge, but the keppynge of the commaundementes of God. + Let euery one abyde in the callynge wherin he is called. * Arte thou called a seruaunte, care not for it: Neuertheless yf thou mayest be free, vse it rather. For he that is called in the LORDE beynge a seruaunte, is a freman of the LORDE. Lykewyse he that is called beynge free, is a seruaunt of CHRIST. * ye are dearly boughte, be not ye seruauntes of men. Brethren, let euery one wherein he is called, therein abyde wyth God.

As concernynge virgines, I haue no commaundement of the LORDE, neuertheless I saye my good meanyng, as I haue optayned mercy of the LORDE to be faythfull, I suppose it is good for the present neadde, for it is good for a man so to be. Arte thou bound vnto a wyfe, seke not to be lowsed. Arte thou lowsed frõ a wyfe, seke not a wyfe. But yf thou takest a wyfe thou synnest not. And yf a virgine mary, she synneth not. Neuertheless suche shall haue trouble in ỳ flesh. But I fauour you.

Howbeit this I saye brethren: * the tyme is shorte. Farthermore this is the meanynge, that they whiche haue wyues, be as though they had none: and they that wepe, be as though they wepte not: and they that reioyce, be as though they reioyced not, and they that bye, be as though they possessed not, and they that vse thys world, be as though they vsed it not. * For the fashion of thys worlde passeth awaye. Esa.40.8. 1.Joh.2.c + But I wolde that ye shulde be wythout care. * He that is syngle, careth for ỳ thinges of the LORD, how he maye please the LORDE. But he that is maryed, careth for the thynges of the worlde, how he maye please hys wyfe, and is deuyded. A woman, and a virgine that is syngle, careth for the thynges of the LORD, that she may be holy both in body and also in spyrite. But she that is maried, careth for the thynges of the worlde, how she maye please hyr husbande. 1.Joh.2.c ‡mat.6.c. Luce.12.c *1.ti.5.a

C This I saye for youre profyt, not that I wyll tangle you in a snare, but for that which is honest, and comly vnto you, that ye maye continually cleue vnto the LORD without hinderaunce. But yf ony man thinke that it is vncomly for his virgine yf she passe time of mariage, and yf nede so require, let hym do what he list, he synneth not, let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheless he that purposeth surely in his harte, hauinge no nede but hath power of his owne wilt, and determineth so in his harte to kepe his virgin, doth well. Finally, he that toyneth his virgyn in mariage, doth well: but he that toyneth not his virgin in mariage, doth better. * The wyfe is bounde to the lawe, as longe as hyr husbonde lyueth. But yf hyr husbande slepe, she is at lybertie to mary vnto whome she wyll, onely that it be done in the LORDE. But she is happier yf she so abyde after my iudgement. I thynke verely that I also haue the spyrite of God. Rom.7.a

The.viii.Chapter.

As touchynge thynges * offred vnto Idols ‡ we all haue knowlege. Knowlege puffeth a man vp, loue edifieth. Neuertheless yf ony man thynke ỳ he knoweth ony thing, he knoweth not yet how he ought to knowe. But yf ony man loue God, the same is knowen of hym. I Cor.vi.b ‡Ro.14.b

So are we sure now concernyng the meates offred vnto Idols, * that an Idol 1.Cor.10.c

Deu. 4.f. and .6.b Esa.44.b is nothinge in the worlde, * and that ther is none other God but one. And though ther be that are called goddes, whether Psa. 82.a it be in heauen * or in earth (as ther be goddes many, and Lordes many) yet haue Ephe. 4.a & Rom. 11.d we but * one God, euen the father, * of whom are all thinges, and we in hym, and one LORDE IESVS CHRIST, by whom are all thinges, and we by him.

B But euery man hath not knowlege: 1.Co. 10.b for some make yet * conscience ouer the Idoll, and eate it as a thinge offered vnto Idols: & so their conscience beynge weake is defyled. Neuertheiesse meate furtbereth not vs vnto God. yf we eate, we shall not therfor be the better: yf we eat not: we shal not therfor be the lesse. But take hede that this your liberty be not an occasyon of fallinge vnto the weake. For yf ony man se ỳ (whiche hath knowlege) syt at the table in the Idols house, shall not his conscience whyle it is weake, be occasioned to eate of the Idoll offerynges? And so thorow we thy knowlege shall the weake brother perysh, for whom CHRIST dyed. But whan ye synne so agaynst the brethren, and wounde their weake conscience, ye synne agaynst CHRIST. Wherfor * yf meate offend my Rom. 14.f brother, I will neuer eate flesshe, lest I offende my brother.

The.ix.Chapter.

A Deut. 9.a AM I not an Apostle? Am I not free? * Haue I not sene IESVS CHRIST oure LORDE? Are not ye my worke in the LORDE? yf I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I youre Apostle: For the seale of myne Apostelshyppe, are ye in the LORDE. Myne answere vnto the that are me, is this: Haue we not power to eate and drynke? Haue we not power al 1 Phil. 4.a so to leade aboute * a syster to wyfe, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren Joh. 1.f. of the LORDE, and * Cephas? Or haue Gala. 2.b onely I and Barnabas not power this to do? Who goeth a warfare at ony tyme vpon his owne wages? Who plateth a vyntarde, and eateth not of the frute therof? Who fedeth a flocke, and eateth not of the milke of the flocke?

B Saye I these thinges after the maner of men? Sayeth not the lawe the same also? * For it is written in the lawe of Moses: Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of ỳ Deut. 25.a 1.Tim 5.f oxe that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for the oxen? Or saieth he it not altogether for our sakes? For no doubt it is written for oure sakes. For he that eareth, shulde eare vpon hope: and he that thresheth, shulde trosh e vpon hope, that he might be partaker of his hope. * yf we haue sowen vnto you spirituall thynges, is it a greate thynge yf we reape your bodely thinges? But yf other be partakers of this power on you, wherfore are not we rather: * Neuertheless we haue not vsed this power, but suffre all thinges, lest we shulde hynder the Gospell of CHRIST. Know ye not that they whiche laboure in the temple, haue their liuinge of the temple: and they that wayte at the altare, enioye the altare: * Euen thus also hath the Rom. 1 LORD ordeyned, that they whiche preache the Gospell, shulde lyue of the Gospell. * But I haue vsed none of these thynges. Rom. 12 1.Tes. 2 1.Tes. 4

Nother write I thereof, that it shulde be done so vnto me: for I had rather dye C then ỳ ony man shulde brynge my reioycinge to naughte. For in ỳ I preache the Gospel, I nede not boast my self, for I must nedes do it. And wo vnto me, yf I preache not the Gospell. yf I do it with a good will, I shall haue my rewarde: but yf I do it against me will yet is the office committed vnto me. Wherfore then shall I be rewarde: (Namely therfore) that I preache ỳ Gospell, and do ỳ same freely for naught, ỳ I abuse not my liberte in the Gospell. Rom. 1 * For though I am free from all men, yet haue I made me selfe euery mans seruaũt Rom. 12.a and .f ỳ I winne the moo. * Vnto the Iewes I am become as a Iewe, to winne the Iewes. To them ỳ are vnder the lawe, I am become as though I were vnder the lawe, to winne them whiche are vnder the lawe.

* Vnto them ỳ are without lawe I am D become, as though I were without lawe, 1.Co. 7.a (where as yet I am not without ỳ lawe of God, but am in ỳ lawe of CHRIST) to winne them ỳ are without lawe. To ỳ weake, 1.Co. 8.f am I become as weake to winne ỳ weake. * I am become of all fashions vnto euery man, to saue some at ỳ least. But this I do, for the Gospels sake, ỳ I might be partaker therof.

✣ Know ye not, ỳ they whiche runne in a course, runne al, yet but one receaueth the rewarde: Runne ye so, that ye maye optayne. Euery one ỳ prouyeth maystry, abstayneth from all thynges, and they do it ỳ they maye optayne a corruptible crowne but we do optayne an * vncorruptible crowne. I therfore runne so, not as at an vncertayne thynge. So fyght I, not as one that beateth the ayre: but I tame my body, & bring it in subiectiō, lest whā I preach the vnto other, I my self be cast away. ✠ The.x. Chapter. ✠

BRethren, I wolde not that ye shulde be ignorannt of thys, * that our fathers were al vnder the cloude, * and al passed thorowe the see, and were all baptysed vnder Moses in ỹ cloud, & in the see, * & dyd al eat of one spirituall meat, & dyd al drynke of one spiritual drynk: but they dronke of ỹ spiritual * rocke ỹ folowed thē wich rock was CHRIST. ✠ Neuerthelesse in many of thē had god no delite, * for they were smytten down in ỹ wyldernesse.

These are ensamples vnto vs, that * we shulde not lust after euell thynges as they lusted; nother be ye worshippers of ymages, as were some of them. Accordyng as it is wrytten: * The people sat downe to eate and drynke, and rose vp to playe. Nother let vs committe whoredome, * as some of them commytted whoredome, and fell in one daye thre and twētye thousand. Nother let vs tempte CHRISTE, * as some of them tempted hym, and were destroyed of serpentes. Nother murmure ye, * as some of them murmured, and were destroyed thorowe the destroyer.

All these happened vnto them for ensamples, but they are wrytte to warne vs, vpon whome the ende of the worlde is come. Therfore let hym that thynketh he stondeth, take hede, lest he fall. Ther hath yet no temtacion ouertaken you, but such as foloweth the nature of man. Neuerthelesse * God is faythfull, & whiche shall not suffre you to be tempted aboue youre strength, but shall in the myddes of the temptacion make a waye to come out, that ye maye beare it. ✠ ✠ Wherfore my dearly beloued, flye from worshippyngt of Idols. I speake vnto them which haue discretion, iudge ye what I saye. The cuppe of thankesgeuynge wherwith ye geue thāckes, is it not the partakynge of the blonde of CHRIST? The bread that we breake, is it not the partakynge of the body of CHRISTE? For we many are one bread, and one body, in as muche as we all are partakers of one bread.

Beholde Israell after the flesh. They that eate the sacrifyces, are they not partakers of the altare? What shal I now saye then? * Shall I saye that the Idol is ony thynge? Or that it whiche is offered vnto the Idoll is ony thynge? Naye. But thys I saye, that soke what the Heythen offre, that offre they vnto deuels, and not to God. ✠ ✠ Now wolde I not that ye shuld be in the felowshippe of deuels. ye cā not drynke of the cuppe of the LORDE, and of the cuppe of the deuels. ye can not be partakers of the LORDES table, and of the table of deuels. Or wyll we prouoke the LORDE? Are we stronger then her? * I maye do all thynges, but all thynges are not profytable. I maye do all thinges, but all thynges edifye not. * Let noman seke hys owne profyte, but let euery man seke anothers wealth. 2.Cor.8.a 1.Cor.6.c Eccl.37.b 1.Cor.13.a Whatsoeuer is solde in the fleshmarket, that eate, and aske no question for conscience sake. * For the earthe is the LORDES, and all that therin is. yf ony of them that beleue not, byd you to a feaste, and yf ye be disposed to go, what soeuer is set before you, that eate, axynge no question for conscience sake. Psa.23.a

But yf ony man saye vnto you: This is offered vnto Idols, then eate not of it, for his sake that shewed it, and for hurting of conscience. (The earthe is the LORDES, & al ỹ therin is.) Neuertheles I speake of * cōscience, not thyne, but of the other. For why shulde my libertie be iudged of another mās cōsciēce? * For yf I take my part wt thankesgeuynge, why am I euell spoke of, for ỹ thynge wherfore I geue thankes? 1.Cor.8.b

* Therfore whether ye eate, or drynke, or what soeuer ye do, do al to the prayse of God. ✠ Be not ye an occasyon of fallynge nother to the Iewes, nor the Gentyles, nor to the congregacion of God, * Euen as I also please all men in all thynges, not sekynge myne owne profyte, but the profite of many, that they myght be saued. * Folowe ye me as I do CHRIST. 1.Tim.4.b Colos.3.b 1.Cor.9.b 1.Cor.4.a

The.xi. Chapter.

I Commende you brethren, ỹ ye remēbre me in al poyntes, and kepe ỹ ordinaūces euē as I deliuered thē vnto you: but I certifye you, ỹ CHRIST is ỹ heade of euery mā. * As for ỹ mā, he is ỹ heade of ỹ womā, but god is Christes heade. Euery mā ỹ prayeth, or prophecieth, & hath ony thing on his head, shameth his head. But euery woman that praieth, or prophecieth with vncouered head, dishonesteth hyr Eph.5.c heade. For it is euen alyke muche as yf she were shauen. yf the woman be not couered, let hyr heer also be cut of.

Deut.22.a 1.Co.14.c *But yf it be vncomely for a woman to haue hyr heer cut of, or to be shauen, the let her couer hyr heade. Neuertheles the man ought not to couer his heade, * for

Ephe.4.c so muche as he is ỹ ymage and glorye of God: but the woman is the glory of ỹ mã. * For the man is not of the woman, but

Gene.2.b the woman of the man. Nother was the man created for the womans sake, but the woman for the mans sake.

Therfore ought the woman to haue a power vpon hyr heade, for the angels sakes. Neuertheles nother is the man wythout the woman, nother the woman wythout the man in the LORDE. For as the woman is of the man, euen so commeth ỹ man also by the woman, but all of God.

Iudge ye by youre selues. whether it be comly, that a woman prayе before God bareheaded? Or doth not natur teach you, that it is a shame for a man yf he weare longe heer? For hyr heer is geuen her to couer her withall. * But yf ther be ony mã

1.Ti.6.a amonge you that hath luste to stryue, let hym knowe that we haue no suche custume, nother the congregacions of God.

But this must I warne you of: I commẽde it not, that ye come together not after a better maner, but after a worse. First, whan ye come together in the congregacyon, I heare that ther are dissensyons amonge you, and I partly beleue it. * For

Mat.18.a 1.Joh.2.c ther muste be sectes amõge you, that they whiche are perfecte amonge you, myght be knowen.

Now whan ye come together, ỹ LORDES supper can not be kepte, euery man taketh his owne supper afore, And one is hungrie, another is dronken. Haue ye not houses to eate and drinke in? Or despyse ye the congregacion of God, and shame them that haue not? What shall I saye vnto you? Shall I prayse you in this I prayse you not. + That whiche I delyuered vnto you, receaued I of the LORD. * For

Mat.26.c Mar.14.c Luce.22.b the LORDE IESVS the same nyght in ỹ whiche he was betrayed, toke the bread, and gaue thankes, and brake it, and sayd: Take ye, and eate ye, this is my body, * which is broken for you. This do in ỹ

1.Cor.11.a remembraunce of me. After the same maner also he toke ỹ cuppe whan supper was done, and sayd: This cuppe is the new Testament in my blonde, this do (as ofte as ye drinke it,) in the remembraunce of me. For as ofte as ye shall eate of this breade, and drinke of this cuppe, ye shall * shewe the LORDES death, vntyll he + come.

1.Cor.11 2.Cor.5.

Wherfore whosoeuer shall eate of this bread and drinke of this cuppe of ỹ LORD vnworthely, shalbe gylty of the body, and blonde of the LORDE. * But let a man

1.Cor.11.a examine hymselfe, + so let hym eate of this bread, and drink of this cuppe. For he that eateth and drinketh onworthely, eateth, + drinketh his own dampnacion, because he maketh no difference of ỹ LORDES body.

Therfore are ther so many weake, + sycke amonge you, and many slepe. * For yf we Gala.4 iudged oure selues, we shulde not be iudged. But whan we are iudged, we are chastened of the LORDE, that we shulde not be dampned with the * worlde. Wher

1.Joh.2 fore my brethren, whã ye come together to eate, tary one for another. But of ony man hõger, let him eate at home, ỹ ye come not together vnto condempnacion. As for other thynges, I wyll set them in order whan I come.

The.xii. Chapter.

AS concernynge spirituall gyftes (brethren) I wolde not that ye were ignoraũt. + ye know that ye were Heythen, + wente youre wayes vnto domme Idols, euen as ye were led. Wherfore I declare vnto you, * that noman speakynge

1.Cor.12 thorowe the spyrete of God, defyeth IESVS. And noman can saye that IESVS is the LORDE, but by the holy goost.

* Ther are diuerse gyftes, yet but

Rom.12 one spyrete, and ther are dyuerse offices, yet but one LORDE: and there are diuerse operations, * yet is ther but one God

Iud.6 1.Joh.4 which worcheth all in all. + The gyftes of the spyrete are geuen vnto euery mã to profyte the congregacion. To one is geue thorowe the spyret the vtteraunce of wysdom: to another is geuen ỹ vtteraunce of knowlege, accordynge to the same spyrete: to another, fayth in the same spyrete: to another, the gyftes of healynge in the same spyrete: to another, power to do myracles: to another, prophecyenge: to another, * iudge-

1.Joh.4 ment to discerne spyretes: to another dyuerse tunges: to another, the interpretacyon of tunges. These all doth the same onely sprete worke, and distributeth vnto euery man, accordynge as he wyll. + B

Rom.12 * For as the body is one, and hath yet many membres, neuertheleſſe all the membres of ỹ body thoughthey be many are yet but one body: euen ſo CHRIST alſo. For we are all baptyſed in one ſpyrite to be one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentyls, whether we be bonde or fre, and haue all * dronken of one ſpyrete. For the body alſo is not one membre, but many. Yf the foote ſaye: I am not the hand, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of the body? And yf the eare ſaye: I am not the eye, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of the body? yf al the body were an eye where were then the hearynge? If al were hearynge, where were then the ſmellyng? But now hath God ſet the membres, euery one ſeuerally in the body, as it hath pleaſed hym. Neuertheleſſe yf all the membres were one membre, where were then the body? But now are the membres many, yet is the body but one.

The eye can not ſaye vnto the hande: I haue no nede of the: or againe the heade vnto the fete: I haue no nede of you: but rather a greate deale the membres of the body which ſeme to be mooſt feble, are mooſt neceſſary: and vpon thoſe membres of the body which we thynke leaſt honeſte, put we mooſte honeſtye on: and oure vncomly partes haue mooſt beutye on. For oure honeſt membres nede it not. But God hath ſo meaſured the body, and geuen mooſt honoure vnto the membres which had nede, that ther ſhulde be no ſtryfe in ỹ body, but that the membres ſhuld indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre ſuffer, all the membres ſuffre with him: and yf one membre be had in honoure, all the membres are glad with hym alſo. But ye are the body of CHRIST, and membres, euery one of another.

And God hath ordeined in the congregacion, fyrſt the * Apoſtles ſecondly prophetes, thyrdly ‡ teachers, then doers of myracles, after that the gyftes of healyng helpers, gouerners, dyuerſe tunges. Are they all Apoſtles? Are they all Prophetes? Are they all teachers? Are they all doers of myracles? Haue they all the gyftes of healynge? Speake they all with tunges? Can they all interpryete: But couet ye the beſt gyftes. And yet ſhew I you a more excellent waye.

The.xiii.Chapter.

Though I ſpeake with the tunges of me and angels, and yet had not loue, I were euen as ſowndinge braſſe, or as a tynglyng Cymbal. * And though I coulde prophecie, and vnderſtode all ſecretes, and al knowlege, and had al fayth, ſo, * that I coulde moue mountaynes out of theyr places, and yet had not loue, I were nothinge. And though I beſtowed all my goodes to fede the poore, ‡ though I gaue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue not loue, it profyteth me nothing. A

Loue is pacient and curteous, loue enuyeth not, loue doth not frowardly, is not puft vp, dealeth not dyſhoneſtly, * ſeketh not hyr owne, is not prouoked vnto auger thinketh not euell, reioyceth not ouer iniquite, but reioyceth in the trueth, beareth all thinges, beleueth al thinges, hopeth al thinges, ſuffreth all thinges.

Though Prophecyenges fayle, or tunges ceaſſe, or knowlege peryſhe, yet loue falleth neuer awaye. For oure knowlege is vnperfecte, and oure prophecieng is vnparfecte. But whan that whiche is parfect, cõmeth, then ſhal ỹ vnparfect be done away. Whan I was a child, I ſpake as a child, I vnderſtode as a child, I ymagined as a child. But as ſoone as I was a mã, I put away childiſhneſſe. Now we ſe thorow a glaſſe in a darke ſpeakig, but thẽ ſhal we ſe face to face. Now I know vnperfectly, but then ſhal I know euẽ as I am knowẽ. Now abideth fayth, hope, loue, theſe thre: but the greateſt of theſe is loue. B

The.xiiii.Chapter.

Labour for loue. Couet ſpirituall giftes, but ſpecially that ye maye prophecie. For he ỹ ſpeaketh with tunges, ſpeaketh not vnto men, but vnto God: for noman heareth him. Howbeit in the ſpyrete he ſpeaketh miſteries. But he ỹ prophecieth ſpeaketh vnto men to edifyenge, and to exhortacion, and to conforte. He that ſpeaketh with tũges, edifieth him ſelfe: but he that prophecieth: edifieth the congregacion. I wolde that ye all ſpake with tunges, but rather that ye prophecyed. For greater is he that prophecieth, thẽ he that ſpeaketh with tunges: excepte he alſo expounde it, that the congregacion maye haue edifienge. But now brethren yf I come vnto you, and ſpeake with tunges, what ſhall I profet you, excepte I speake vnto you, other by reuelacyon, or by knowlege, or by Prophecyenge, or by doctryne?

B Lykewyse is it also in the thynges that geue sound, and yet lyue not: whether it be a pype, or an harpe, except they geue dystyncte soundes from them, howe shall it be knowen what is pyped? or harped? And yf the trompe geue an vncertayne sounde who wyll prepare hymselfe to the battayll? Euen so ye lykewyse, whan ye speake with tunges, except ye speake playne wordes, how shall it be knowen what is spoken? for ye shall but speake in the ayre. So many kyndes of voices are in the worlde, and none of them is wythout signification. yf I knowe not nowe what the voyce meaneth, I shall be an aleaunt vnto hym that speaketh, and he that speaketh, shalbe an aleaunt vnto me. Euen so ye (for so muche as ye couet spirituall gyftes) seke that ye maye haue plentye to the edifyenge of the congregacion. Wherfore let him that speaketh with tunges, praye, that he maye interprete also. yf I praye with tunges, my spyrete prayeth, but my vnderstondynge byngeth noman frute. How shal it be the? Namely thus: I wyll praye with the spyret and wyll praye with vnderstondinge also, I will synge Psalmes in the spyrete, and wyll synge Psalmes with the vnderstondinge also.

C But whan thou geuest thankes with the spyrete, how shall he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye Amen at thy geuinge of thankes, seynge he knoweth not what thou sayest? Thou geuest well thankes, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God, that I speake with tunges more then ye all. yet had I leauer in the congregacion to speake fyue wordes with my vnderstondynge that I maye enfourme other also, rather then ten thousande wordes with tunges. * Brethren be not chyldren in vnderstondynge, howbeit as concernynge malicyousnesse be chyldren, but in vnderstondynge be perfecte. Eph 4.a.

Esa. 28.b In the lawe it is wrytten: * With other tunges, and with other lyppes will I speake vnto thys people, and yet shall they not Deut. 7.b heare me, sayeth the LORD. * Therfore are tunges for a token, not to them that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophecyenge, not to them that beleue not, but to them which beleue.

D yf the whole congregacion now came together in to one place, and spake al with tũges, and ther came in they that are vnlearned, or they whiche beleue not, shulde they not saye, that ye were out of your wittes? But yf all prophecied, and ther came in one that beleued not, or one vnlearned, he shulde be rebuked of them all, and iudged of all, and so shulde the secrete of hys harte be opened, and so shulde he fal down vpon his face, worshippinge God, & knowleginge, that of a treuth God is in you. How is is then brethren? Whan ye come together, euery one hath a Psalme, hath doctryne, hath a tunge, hath a reuelacyon, hath an interpretacyon. Let all be done to edifyeng. If ony man speake with tunges let hym do it hymselfe beynge the seconde, or at the moost himselfe beinge the thyrde, and one after another, and let one interprete it. But yf ther be not an interpreter, then let him kepe sylence in the congregacion, howbeit let him speake to himselfe, and to God. As for the Prophetes, let two or thre speake, * let the other iudge. But 1.Cor.14.a yf ony reuelacion be made vnto another, that sytteth, then let ꝑ fyrst hold his peace.

ye maye al prophecie one after another, C that they all maye learne, and that al may haue comforte. And the spyrete of the Prophetes, are subiecte vnto the Prophetes. For God is not a God of dissencyon, * but Rom. xv. of peace, lyke as in all congregacyons of the sayntes. * Let youre wyues kepe sylence in the congregacion, for it shall not be permitted vnto them to speake but to be vnder obedience, * as the lawe sayeth also. But yf they will learne ony thynge, let them axe theyr husbãdes at home. For it becommeth not wemen to speake in the congregacion. Or sprange the worde of God from amonge you? Or is it come vnto you onely? yf ony man thynke hymself to be a prophete, or spiritual, let him know what I wryte vnto you, for they are the commaundementes of the LORDE. But yf ony man be ignorant, let hym be ignoraunt. Wherfore brethren, couet to prophecye, and forbyd not to speake with tunges. * Let all thynges be done honestely and in order. 1.Cor.11.a 1.Tim.2.a Gen.1.a 1.Cor.11.a Col.2.a

The.xv. Chapter.

I Declare vnto you brethren, I the Gospell that I haue preached vnto you (which ye haue also accepted, and in the which ye stonde, by the whiche also ye are saued) after what maner I preached Gal.1.a

it vnto you, yf ye haue kepte it except ye haue beleued in vayne. For fyrst of al I de liuered vnto you that whiche I also receaued, how that CHRIST * dyed for our synnes accordyng to the scriptures, * and that he rose agayne the thyrde daye accordyng to the scryptures, * and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelfe: after ỳ was he sene of mo then fyue hundreth brethren at once, whereof ther are yet many alyue, but some are fallen aslepe. Afterward was he sene of Iames, then of all the Apostles. Last of al was he sene of me also, as of one borne out of due tyme. * For I am ỳ leest of the Apostles, whiche am not worthye to be called and Apostle, * because I persecuted the congregacyon of God. But by the grace of God, I am that I am. And hys grace in me hath not ben vayne. ℞ but I haue laboured more then they all, howbeit not I, but the grace of God whiche is in me. Now whether it be I or they, thus haue we preached, & thus haue ye beleued.

* But yf CHRIST be preached, that he is rysen from the dead, howe saye then some amonge you, that ther is no resurrecyon of the dead? yf ther be no resurrecyon of the dead, then is CHRISTE not rysen. yf CHRIST be not rysen, thẽ is our preachynge in vayne, and youre fayth is also in vayne: yee and we are founde false wytnesses of God, because we haue testyfyed agaynst God, that he hath raysed vp CHRIST, whom he hath not raysed vp yf ỳ dead ryse not agayne. For yf the dead ryse not agayne, then is CHRIST also not rysen agayne. But yf CHRIST be not rysen agayne, then is youre fayth in vayne, and ye are yet in youre synnes: they also that are fallẽ a slepe in Chryst, are perysshed. yf in thys lyfe only we hope in CHRIST thẽ are we of all men the moost mysserable.

But now is CHRIST rysen from the dead, and is become * the fyrst frutes of them that slepe. For by one man commeth death, and by one man the resurrection of the dead. For as they all dye in Adam, so shall they all be made alyue in CHRIST, but euery one in his order. * The fyrst is CHRIST, then they that belonge vnto CHRIST, whan he commeth then the ende, whan he shall delyuer vp the kyngdome vnto God the father: whan he shall put downe all rule, & all superiorite, & power: * For he must raygne, tyll he haue put all his enemies vnder hys fete. The last enemye that shalbe destroyed is death, for he hath put all thynges vnder hys fete. But whan he sayeth, that all thynges are put vnder hym, it is manyfest that he is excepted, whiche put all thynges vnder hym. Whan all thynges shalbe subdued vnto hym, then shall the sonne hymselfe also be subiecte vnto hym, which put all thynges vnder hym, that God maye be all in all.

Or els what do they whiche are baptysed ouer the dead, yf the dead ryse not at all? Why are they then baptysed ouer the dead? and why stonde we in iopardy euery houre? by oure reioycing which I haue in CHRIST IESV oure LORDE, I dye dayly. That I haue fought wyth beastes at * Ephesus after the maner of men, what helpeth it me, yf the dead ryse not agayne? * Let vs eate and drynke, for to morow shal wedye. Be not ye deceaued. Euell speakynges corrupt good maners. Awake rycht vp, and synne not: for some haue not ỳ knowlege of God. This I saye to youre shame. 1.Co.16.b Esa. 22.b Sapi. 2.a

But many mycht saye: How shall the dead aryse? and with what maner of body shall they come? Thou foole, * that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it dye. And what sowest thou? thou sowest not ỳ bodye that shalbe, but a bare corne, namely of wheat, or of some other. But God geueth it a body as he wyll, and vnto euery one of the sedes his owne body. Ioh.12.a

& All flesshe is not one maner of flesshe, but ther is one maner flesshe of men, another of beastes, another of fyshes, another of byrdes. And ther are heauenly bodies, and ther are earthy bodies: but the heauenly haue one glory, and the earthy another. * The sonne hath one clearnesse, the moone hath another clearnesse, and the starres another clearnesse, for one starre excelleth another in clearnesse: Euen so the resurrection of the dead. It is sowẽ in corrupcyon, and shall ryse in vncorrupcion: It is sowen in dishonoure, and shall ryse in glory: It is sowẽ in weaknesse and shall ryse in power: It is sowen a naturall body, and shal ryse a spirituall body. Mat. 13.b

yf ther be a naturall body, ther is a spirituall body also. As it is wrytten: * The fyrst man Adam was made in to a natural lyfe, and the last Adam in to a spirituall lyfe. Howbeit the spirituall body is not ỳ fyrst, but the naturall, and then the spirituall. & The fyrst man is of the earth, thy: the seconde man is from heauen, heauenly. As the earthye is, suche are Gene. 2.b

they also that are earthly: and as the heauenly is, suche are they also that are heauenly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shall we beare the ymage of the heauenly also. This I saye brethre, that flesshe, and bloude can not enherete the kyngdome of God: nother shall corrupcion inhereth vncorrupcion.

1 Behold, I saye vnto you a mystery: 2.Thes.4.c * We shall not all slepe, but we shall all 1.Cor.15.c 1.Phil.3.c † be chaunged, and that sodenly, and in the twynklynge of an eye, at the tyme of † laste trompe. For the trompe shall blowe, and the dead shal ryse vncorruptyble, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptyble must put vncorrupcion, and this mortall must put on immortalyte. But whan thys corruptible shall put on vncorrupcio, and this mortall shall put on immortalyte, the shall the worde be fulfylled that is wrytte: Esai.25.b * Death is swalowed vp in victory. Ose.13.c † Death, where is thy stynge? Hell where Hebr.2.a is thy victorye? The stynge of death is synne. The strength of synne is the law. But thākes be vnto God, * which hath geuen vs 1 Johā.5.a the victory thorowe oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST. Therfore my deare brethren, be ye stedfast, vnmoueable, and alwaye ryche in the worde of the LORDE, for as much as ye knowe that youre labour is not in vayne in the LORDE.

The.xvi.Chapter.

1 Concernynge the * gathering Rom.15.b that is made for the sayntes, 2.Cor.8.a as I haue ordeyned in † con- and.9.a gregacions of Galacia, euen so do ye also. Upon some Sabbath daye let euery one of you put aside by hymselfe, and laye vp whatsoeuer he thynketh mete, that the collectiō be not to gather whan I come. Whan I am come, whomsoeuer ye shall alowe by youre letters them wyll I sende to brynge your liberalyte vnto Ierusalem. Neuertheles yf it be mete that I go thyther also, they Actu.19.c shall go with me. * But I wyll come vn- 2.Cor.1.c to you, whan I go thorowe Macedonia: for thorowe Macedonia wyll I take my iourney. With you peraduenture wyll I abyde, or els wynter that ye maye brynge me on my waye, whyther so euer I go.

6 I wyll not se you now in my passage, for I hope to abyde a whyle with you, yf Actu.20.b the LORDE shall suffre me. * But I will tary at Ephesus vntyll Whitsontyde. For a greate and frutefull doore is opened vnto me, and ther * are many aduersaries. † yf Tymotheus come, se that he be 1.Cor.16 wythout feare wyth you, for he worketh † 2Cor.1.c worke of the LORDE, as I do. Let noma therfore despise him, but cōueye him forth in peace, that he maye come vnto me, for I loke for hym with the brethren.

As for brother Apollo, be ye sure, that I greatly desyred hym to come vnto you with the brethren: And his mynd was not at al to come at this tyme: but he wyl come whan he hath oportunite. Watch ye, stond fast in the fayth, quytte you lyke men, and bestronge: let all youre thynges be done in loue.

But brethren (ye knowe the house of ¶ * Stephana, that they are the fyrst frutes 1.Cor.1 in Achaia, and that they haue appoynted them selues to mynister vnto the sayntes) I erhorte you to be obedient vnto suche: and to all that helpe, and laboure. I am glad of the commynge of Stephana and Fortunatus, ād Achaycus. For loke what was lackynge vnto me on youre parte, that haue they supplied: they haue refreshed my spirete and youres. Knowe them therfore that are suche.

The congregacions of Asya salute you. Aquila † Pyscilla salute you muche in the LORDE, and so doth the congregacyon that is in theyr house. All the brethren salute you. * Salute ye one another Rom.16 wyth an holy kysse. The salutacyon of me Paull wyth myne owne hande. yf ony man loue not the LORD IESVS CHRIST, the same be Anathema Maharan Matha.

The grace of the LORDE IESV CHRIST be vnto you. My loue be with you all in IESV CHRIST. AMEN.

of the Apostle S. Paull to the Corinthians.

The.i.Chapter.

PAUL an Apostle of IESV CHRISTE, by the wyll of God, and brother Tymotheus. Unto the congregacion of God whiche is at Corinthum, all the sayntes, whiche are in all Achaya. Gala.1.a Ephe.1.a
* Grace be with you, and peace from god oure father, and from the LORDE IESV CHRISTE.

* Blessed be God the father of oure LORD IESV CHRIST, the father of mercy, and the God of all comforte, which comforted vs in all oure trouble: in so muche that we are able to comforte them that are in ony maner of trouble, with the same cõforte wherwith we oure selues are comforted of God. * For as the afflictions of CHRIST are plentious in vs, euen so is oure consolacion plenteous by CHRIST. But whether we haue trouble, or comforte it is done for youre wealth. Yf it be trouble, it is done for youre comforte & health, whiche health sheweth hyr power, in that ye suffre the same afflictions which we suffre. Yf it be comforte, it is done also for your comforte and health. Therfore is our hope fast for you, in as much as we knowe, that lyke as ye are partakers of the afflictions so shall ye be partakers also of the consolacyon. 1.Pet.1.a Colo.1.d

Brethren we wolde not haue you ignorant of oure trouble, * whiche happened vnto vs in Asya, for we were greued oute of measure passynge strength, so that we euen dispayred of lyfe, and had concluded in our selues that we must nedes dye. But this was done, because we shulde not put oure trust in oure selues, * but in god whiche rayseth vp the dead to lyfe agayn: whiche deliuered vs frõ so greate a death and yet deliuereth dayly. On whome we truste, that he wyll deliuer vs here after also, * by the helpe of youre prayer for vs: that on oure behalfe many thankes maye be geuen by many personnes, for the gyfte that is geuen vs. B Actu.19.a 1.Ma.2.b Philipp.1.c 2.Cor.9.c

For oure reioycynge is this, euen the testimony of oure conscience, that in syngelnesse, & goddly pureneſſe, not in fleshly wysedome, but in the grace of God, we haue had oure conuersacion in the worlde, but moost of all with you. For we wryte no thynge els vnto you, then that ye rede, and also knowe. yee and I truste that ye shall fynde vs to the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partly.

C For we are youre reioycynge, euen as
B bfil.2.b 1. Cor.2.c 2.co.16.a pe also are oure * reioycynge in the daye of the LORDE IESVS. ✣ And in this confidence was I mynded the other tyme to come vnto you (that ye myghte haue yet another pleasure more) and to passe by you in to Macedonia, and to come agayne out of Macedonia vnto you, & to be led forth to Iewrye warde of you.

Whan I thus wyse was mynded, dyd I vse lyghtenesse? Or are my thoughtes Math.5.b Iacob.5.c fleshly? Not so, * but with me yee is yee, and nay is nay. O faythful God that oure worde vnto you hath not bene, yee and naye. For Gods sonne IESVS CHRIST, whiche was preached amonge you by vs, (namely by me and Syluanus, and Tymotheus) was not yee and nay, but in him it was yee. For all the promyses of God are yee in him, and are amen in him, to the Rom.8.b prayse of God by vs. * But it is God whiche stablysheth vs wyth you, in Ephe.4.c CHRIST, and hath anoynted vs, and * sealed vs and geuen the earnste of the spyrete in oure hartes.

The.ii. Chapter. ✣

I But I * call God to recorde vn
Rom.9.a to my soul, that to fauour you withall I came not agayne vnto Corinthum. Not that 1.Pet.5.a we are * Lordes ouer youre fayth, but we are helpers of youre ioye, for ye stonde in fayth. But I determined thys with my selfe, that I wold not come agayn to you in heynesse. For yf I make you sory, who is it that shall make me glad, but the same whiche is made sory by me? And the same haue I wrytten vnto you, lest whan I come, I shulde take heynesse of them, of whome I ought to reioyce: for so muche as I haue this confydence to you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greate trouble, and anguysshe of harte wrote I vnto you with many teares, not that ye shulde be sory, but that ye myghte perceaue the loue, whiche I haue moost specially vnto you.

B But yf ony man haue caused sorowe, the same hath not made me sory, but partely: lest I shulde greue you all. It is sufficient, that * the same man is so rebuked 1.Cor.12 of many, so that from henceforth ye ought the more to forgeue hym, and to comforte hym, lest he be swalowed vp in ouermuch heynesse. Wherfore I exhorte you, that ye shewe loue vpon him. For therfore dyd I wryte vnto you also, that I myghte knowe the proue of you, whether ye were obedient in all thynges. But loke vnto whome ye forgeue ony thynge, I forgeue hym also. For I also, yf I forgeue oughte vnto ony man, that forgeue I for your sakes in the rowm of CHRIST, lest we shuld be preuented of Sathan. For his thoughtes are not vnknowen vnto vs.

But whan I came to * Troada to C
Rom.15.c preache the Gospell of CHRIST (and a dore was opened vnto me in the LORDE) I had no rest in my spyrete, because I founde not Tytus my brother: but I toke my leue of them, and wente awaye into Macedonia. yet thankes be vnto God, whiche alwaye geueth vs the victory in CHRIST,

The.iii. Chapter.

B Egin we then again to praise I oure selues? Or nede we (as some other) of pistles of commendacio vnto you, or letters of commendacion from you? ye are oure epistle wrytten in oure hartes: whiche is vnderstonde and red of all men in that ye are knowē, how that ye are ỹ epistle of CHRIST, mynystred by vs, and wrytten, not with ynke, but with the spyrete Exo.31.a of the lyuyng god: * not in tables of stone
Exo.34.a ✣ but in fleshly tables of ỹ harte. ✣ Such truste haue we thorowe Christ to Godward Phil.3.a not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thynke ony thynge, as of oure selues, * but our ablenesse commeth of god, which hath
1.Cor.4.c made vs able, * to be ministers of ỹ newe
2.Cor.6.c testament: not of the letter, but of the spyrete. For the letter kylleth, but the spyrete geueth lyfe.

B But yf the mynistracion ỹ * kylleth tho-rowe the letter, and was figured in stones was glorious, ✝ so that the chyldren of Israell myght not beholde the face of Moses, for the clearnesse of his countenaunce (which glorie neuertheles is done away) how shall not the * mynistracion of the spyrete be muche more glorious? For yf the office that preacheth damnacion be glorious, muche more doth ỹ office that preacheth the rygteousnesse exceade in glory. ✝ For the other parte that was glorified, is nothinge glorified in respecte of this excea dynge glorye. For yf that whiche is done awaye, be glorious, muche more shal that whiche remayneth, be glorious.

C Seyng then that we haue such trust,
we vse great boldnesse, and do not as Mo ses, * whiche put a vayle before hys face, so that the chyldren of Israell myght not se the * end of it, that is done away. But theyr myndes ✝ are blynded. For vnto this daye remayneth the same couerynge vntaken awaye in the olde Testament, whan they rede it, whiche in CHRISTE is put away. But euen vnto this daye whan Moses is red, the vayle hangeth before theyr hartes: * Neuertheles whan they turne to the LORD, the vayle shalbe taken awaye. * For the LORD is a spyrete, and wher the spyrete of the LORD is, there is liberty. But now the glorye of the LOR DE appeareth in vs al with open face, and we are chaunged into the same ymage, from one clearnesse to another, euen as of the spyrete of the LORDE.

The. iiij. Chapter.

Therfore seyng we haue suche an office (euen as mercy is come vpon vs) we faynte not:
but caste from vs the cloakes of dyshonestye, and walke not in craftynes: nother corrupte we the word of God, but open the trueth, and reporte oure selues to euery mans conscience in the syght of God.

✝ yf oure Gospell be yet hyd, it is hyd in them that are loste: amonge whome the God of this worlde * hath blynded the myndes of them whiche beleue not, that the lyght of the Gospell of the glory of CHRIST (* which is the ymage of God) shuld not shyne vnto them. ✝ For we prea the not oure selues, but IESVS CHRIST to be the LORDE, and oure selues youre seruauntes for IESVS sake.

* For God that cõmaunded the light B to shyne out of darknesse, ✝ hath geuen a cleare shyne in oure hartes, that by vs the lyghte of the knowlege of the glorye of God myghte come forth in the face of IE-SV CHRISTE.

But this treasure haue we in * earthen vessels, that the power whiche excel-leth might be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not wythout shift. We are in pouertye, but not vtterly without somwhat: We are per secuted, but we are not forsaken: we are op pressed, neuertheles we perysh not: * We alwayes beare about in oure body the dyenge of the LORDE IESVS, that the lyfe also of the LORDE IESVS might ap peare in oure bodye. ✝ * For we which ly-ue, are alwayes deliuered vnto death for IESVS sake, that the lyfe also of IESVS myghte appeare in oure mortall flesche.

Therfore is death now myghtie in vs C but lyfe in you. ✝ * But seyng that we haue the same spyrete of fayth (accordynge as it is wrytten: * I beleued, and therfore haue I spoken,) we also beleue, and therfore we speake, for we knowe that he, wich raysed vp the LORDE IESVS, shall rayse vs vp also by the meanes of IESVS, and shall set vs with you. For all thinges do I for youre sakes, * that the plenteous grace by the thankesgeuynge of many, maye redounde to the prayse of God.
Therfore are we not weery, but though oure outwarde man be corrupte, yet the inwarde is renewed daye by daye. * For oure trouble, whiche is but temporal, and lyghte, worketh an exceadinge and an eter nall weyghte of glorye vnto vs, wich loke not on the thynges that are sene, but on them whiche are not sene. For the thynges whiche are sene, are temporall: but ỹ thyn-ges that are not sene, are eternall. ✝

Seynge now that we haue ſuch promyſes (dearly beloued) let vs clenſe oure ſelues from all fylthynes of the fleſhe & ſprete and growe vp to ful holyneſſe in the feare of God. Underſtonde vs ryghte. Therfore are we cõforted, becauſe ye are cõforted: but exceadyng ỳ more ioyed we, for ỳ ioye of Titus, becauſe his ſpret was refreſhed of you al. God, whiche put in the harte of Tytus, the same diligence towarde you. For he accepted the requeste in dede, yee he was rather so well wyllynge, that of hys owne accorde he came vnto you.

C We haue sent with hym that brother whose prayse is in the Gospell throwout all the congregacions. Not only that, but he is chosen also of the congregacions, to be a felowe with vs in oure journey, for this benevolence that is ministred by vs vnto the prayse of the LORDE, and to steare vp youre prompte mynde, and to beware lest ony man reporte euell of vs because of this plenteousnesse, whiche is ministred by vs: * and therfore make we proues Rom.12.c uisyon for honest thynges, not only before the LORDE, but also before men.

We haue sent with them also a brother of oures, whome we haue ofte proued diligent in many thinges, but now muche more diligent. And this haue we done in greate hope toward you, whether it be for Tytus sake (whiche is my felowe and helper among you) or for oure brethren (which are Apostles of the congregacions, and the prayse of CHRIST.) Shewe now ye proofe 1.Cor.2.c of youre loue, * and of oure boastynge of you vnto these, and openly in the syght of the congregacions.

The.ix.Chapter.

Of the * handreachynge vnto the sayntes, it is no nede for me to wrytte vnto you: for I knowe your redines of mind, Rom.15.d 2.Cor.8.a whereof I boast myself amōg the of Macedonia, and saye: Achaia was redy a yeare ago. And your feruētnes hath prouoked many. Neuertheles yet haue we sent these brethren, lest oure reioycyng ouer you shulde be in vayne in this behalf that ye myght be redy, as I haue reported of you: lest whan they of Macedonia come with me and fynde you vnprepared, we (I will not saye ye) shulde be ashamed in this presumpcion of boastynge.

B Wherfore I thought it necessary to exhorte the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, for to prepare this blessyng promysed afore, that it might be ready, so that it be a blessynge, and not a defraudynge. Pro.11.c ✝ This I thynke: * that he whiche soweth litle shall reape lytle also: and he that Gala.6.a soweth plenteously, shall lyke wyse reape plenteously euery one accordynge as he hath purposed in hys harte, not grudgynly, or of compulsyon. * For God loueth a Prou.22. chearefull geuer. God is able to make you ryche in all grace that ye in all thynges haupynge sufficient to the vttermost, maye be ryche to all maner of good workes. As it is wrytten: * He hath sparsed abrode, Psa.111 and hath geuen to the poore, his ryghteousnesse remayneth for euer.

He that geueth sede vnto the sower C shal minister breade also for foode, and * shal Esa.55.c multiplie youre sede, and increase the frutes of youre ryghteousnesse, that in all thinges ye maye be made ryche, vnto al syngle nesse, whiche causeth throwe vs thanksgeuyng vnto God. For the handreachynge of this collecyon not onely supplieth the nede of the sayntes, but also is abundaunt herin, that for this laudable ministracyon many mynght geue thankes vnto God, and prayse God for youre obedient profession of ye Gospell of CHRIST, and for youre syngleneesse in distributynge vnto them, and to all men, and in theyr prayer for you, whiche longe after you, for the abundaunte grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God for his vnouttespeakeable gyfte.

The.x.Chapter.

I Paull my selfe beseke you by I the mekenesse and softenes of CHRIST, whiche whan I am present amonge you, am of small reputacyō, but am bold towarde you beynge absent, I beseke you that I nede not be bolde whan I am present, and to vse the boldnesse wherewyth I am supposed to be bolde, agaynst some, whiche repute vs as though we walked after the flesshe: for though we walke in the flesshe, yet fyght we not after a fleshly maner. * For the weapens of oure warre are Ephe.6.c not fleshly, but myghtye before god to cast downe stronge holdes, wherwith we ouerthrowe ymaginacions, and euery hyghe thynge that exalteth it selfe agaynste the knowlege of God, and brynge in captiuite all vnderstondynge to the obedience of CHRISTE, and are ready to take vengeaunce on all disobedience whan your obedience is fulfylled. Loke ye on thynges after the vtter appearaunce.

B If ony man truste of hymselfe that he is Christes, let hym thynke this also by hymselfe, that lyke as he is Christes: euen so are we Christes also. And though I shulde boast my self somwhat more of our authorite * whiche the LORDE hath geuen vs to edifye & not to destroye, it shuld not be to my shame. This I saye, leste I shulde seme as though I wente aboute to make you afrayed with letters. For the epistles (saye they) are sore and strong, but his bodely presence is weake, & his speche vile. Let hym that is such, thynke on this wyse, that as we are in worde by letters whan we were absent, suche are we also in dede whā we are present. For we dare not reken, or compare oure selues vnto some, that prayse them selues: Neuertheles whyle they measure them selues by them selues, and holde only of them selues, they understonde nothynge.

Howbeit we wyll not boast oure selues aboue * measure, but only according to the measure of the rule, wherwith God hath distributed vnto vs the measure to reach euen vnto you. For we stretch not oure selues to farre, as though we had not reached vnto you. For vnto you haue we come with the Gospell of CHRIST, and boast not oure selues oute of measure in other mens laboures. yee and we hope whan youre fayth is increased in you, that we wyll come farther, (according to our measure) and preache the Gospel vnto the that dwell beyonde you, and not to reioyce in that, whiche is prepared with another mans measure.

The.xi. Chapter.

LEt hym that reioyceth, reioyce in the LORDE: for he that * prayseth hymselfe is not alowed, but he whom the LORDE prayseth. Wolde God ye could suffre me a litle in my foolishnesse, yet do ye forbeare me. For I am gelous ouer you with Godly gelousye. For I haue maried you vnto one man, to bringe a chaste virgine vnto CHRIST. But I feare, * leste as the serpent begyled Eue with his suttilye, euen so youre wyttes shulde be corrupte from the synglenesse ỳ is in CHRIST. * For yf he that commeth vnto you, preache another IESVS, whome we haue not preached, or yf ye receaue another spyrite, that ye haue not receaued, or an other Gospell which ye haue not accepted, ye myght ryghte well haue ben content. For I suppose that I am no lesse, then the hyghe Apostles are. And though I be rude in speakynge, yet am I not rude in knowlege. Howbeit amonge you, I am knowne to the vttemoost. Or dyd I synne therin, because I submytted my selfe, that ye might be exalted.

For I preached vnto you the Gospell of God * freely, and robbed other congregations, and toke wages of them to prach vnto you. And whan I was present wyth you, and had nede, * I was greuous to noman: & for that whiche was lackynge vnto me, the brethren whiche came from Macedonia, supplyed. And in all thynges I kepte my self so, that I shulde not be greuous to you, and so wyll I kepe my selfe. As surely as the treuth of CHRIST is in me, this reioycynge shall not be taken from me in the regions of Achaya. Wherfore? because I shulde not loue you? God knoweth. Neuertheles what I do and wyll do, that do I to cut awaye occasyon, from them whiche seke occasyon ỳ they myght boast them selues to be lyke vnto vs. For suche false Apostles, and deceatfull workers fashyon them selues lyke vnto the Apostles of CHRIST. And that is no maruayll: for Sathan hymselfe is chaunged in to the fashion of an Angell of lyght. Therfore is it no greate thynge, though his mynisters fashion them selues, as though they were the prechers of ryghteousnesse * whose ende shalbe according to theyr dedes.

I saye agayne, lest ony man thynke that I am foolyshe: or els take me euen as a foole, that I maye boast my selfe a lytle also. That I speake now, that speake I not after the LORDE, but as it were in foolyshnesse, whyle we are now come to boastynge: Seynge that many boast them selues after the flesshe, I wyll boaste my selfe also. + For ye suffre fooles gladly in so muche as ye youre selfe are wyse. For ye suffre euen yf a man bringe you in to bondage, yf a man put you to dishonestye, yf a man take ought from you, yf a man exalte hymselfe ouer you, yf a man smyte you on the face, I speake concernynge rebuke, as though we were weake.

* Wherin soeuer now ony man dare be bolde, (I speake foolyshly) therin dare I be bolde also. They are Hebrues, so am I. They are Israelytes, euen so am I. They are the sede of Abraham, so am I. * They are the ministers of CHRIST, (I speake as a foole) I am more: in laboures more abundaunt, in stripes aboue measure, in prysonmentes more plenteously, in death oft.

The.i.yrst.Chapter.

PAull an Apostle (not of men, neyther by man, but by IESVS CHRIST and by God the father, which rayled hym vp frō the dead) and all the brethren whiche are with me. Unto the congregacions in Galacia.

* Grace be with you, and peace from God the father, and oure LORD IESVS CHRIST, whiche gaue hymselfe for oure synnes, that he myght delyuer vs frō thys present euell worlde, according vnto yͤ wyll of God oure father, to whom be prayse for euer and euer. Amē. 1.Cor.1.c. Ephes 1.a 1.Pet.1.a.

I maruayl that ye are so soone turned (from hym that called you in the grace of CHRIST) vnto another Gospell: whiche is nothynge els, but that ther be some, which * trouble you, and intende to peruerte the Gospell of CHRIST. Acts.15.c.

Neuertheles though we oure selues, or an angel from heauen preach vnto you any other Gospell, then that wich we haue preached vnto you: the same be accursed. * As we haue sayde afore, so saye we now againe: yf ony man preache vnto you ony other thynge, then that ye haue receaued, the same be accursed. Preache I men now, or God? Or go I aboute to please men? * yf I shulde yet please men, I were not yͤ seruaunt of CHRIST. 1.Cor.15.a Iohn.5.b Iacob.4.a

* But I certifye you brethren, that the Gospell which is preached of me, is not of mē. For I nother receaued it, nor learned it of man, but by the reuelacyon of IESVS CHRIST. For ye haue herde

Ierusalem vnto them whiche were Apostles before me: but wente my wayes in to Arabia, and came agayne to Damascon.
Then after thre yeare I came to Ierusa-ne dayes. As for the other Apostles, I saw none of them, saue James the LORDES that went I in to the coastes of Siria, and Cilicia: but of face I was vnknowe of the theiesse they had herde onely, that: He that persecuted in tyme passed, p:eacheth now and they p:ayse God in me.

The. ii. Chapter.

Then after fourtene yeares, Actu.15.a. * I wente vp agayne to Ieru ly with them whiche were in reputacyon, lest I shulde runne, or had runne in vayn.

1.Cor. was not compelled to be cyrcumcyled, though he was a Greke: and that because of certayne incommers beynge false brethren, whiche came in amonge other, to spye out our lybertye, whiche we haue in CHRISTE IESV, that they might bring vs vtterly to bondage: To whome we gaue no rowme, not not for the space of an hour, as concernynge to be brought in to subiectyon: that the treuth of the Gospell myghte continue with you.

As for them that semed to be greate,
what they were in tyme passed, it maketh Actu.10.b. no matter to me. * For God loketh not on the outwarde appearaunce of men. Ne uertheiesse they which semed great taught me nothynge: but contrary wyse whā they sawe that the Gospell ouer the vncircumcisyon was cōmitted vnto me, as the Gos-pell ouer the cyrcumcisyon was committed vnto Peter: (for he that was myghtye with Peter to the Apostelshyppe ouer the cyrcumcisyon, the same was myghty with thynge also I was diligent to do. 1.Cor.16.

But whan Peter was come to Antio-che, I withstode hym in ye face, for he was worthy to be blamed. For afore ther came certayne from James, he dyd eate with ye Heythen. But whan they were come, he withdrue and separated hymselfe, fearing them whiche were of ye circumcisyon. And the other Iewes dissembled with hym lykewyse, in so muche that Barnabas was brought into theyr simulacion also. But whan I sawe that they walked not tyghte after the treuth of the Gospell, I sayde vn to Peter openly before all: yf thou beynge a Iewe, lyuest after the maner of the Gen tyles, and not as do the Iewes, why causest thou the Gentyles then to lyue as do the Iewes?

C * Though we be Iewes by nature, & Phil.3.
not synners of the Gentyles, & (yet in so Gala.2. muche as we knowe, ye a man is not made tyghteous by the dedes of the lawe, but by the fayth on IESVS CHRIST) we haue beleued also on IESVS CHRIST, that we myght be made tyghteous by ye fayth of CHRISTE, and not by the dedes of the lawe, because that by the dedes of the lawe no flesshe shalbe iustifyed.

yf we then whiche seke to be made tyghteous by CHRIST, shulde be yet founde synners oure selues, is not CHRIST then the mynyster of synne? God forbyd.
For yf I buylde agayn that which I haue destroyed, then make I my self a trespasser Rom.7.
* But I thorow the law am dead vnto ye fyed with CHRIST, yet do I lyue: neuerthe loued me, and gaue hymselfe for me, I cast not awaye the grace of God. For yf ryghteousnesse come by the lawe, then dyed CHRIST in vaine.

The.iii. Chapter.

O foolysh Galathians, * who hath bewitched you, that ye shulde not beleue the treuthe? To whome IESVS CHRIST was described before the eyes, and amonge you crucifyed, This onely wolde I learne of you: Receaued ye the spyrete by the dedes of the lawe, or by ỹ preachynge of the fayth? Are ye so vnwyse? ye begã in ỹ spyret, wold ye ende now then in ỹ flesh? Haue ye suffred so much in vayne? yf it be els in vayne. He ỹ geueth you the spyret, * doth suche greate actes amonge you, doth he it thorowe the dedes of the lawe, or by the preachynge of the fayth? ✣ * Euen as Abraham beleued God, and it was counted vnto hym for ryghteousnesse. Thus ye knowe, that they whiche are of fayth, are Abrahams chyldren.

B The scrypture sawe afore hande, that God iustifyeth the Heythen thorow faith: Therfore shewed it glad tydynges afore vnto Abraham, and sayde: * In the shall all Heythen be blessed. So then they whiche be of fayth, are blessed with faythfull Abraham. For as many as go aboute with the workes of the lawe, are vnder the curse. For it is wrytten: * Cursed be euery man that continueth not in all thynges ỹ are wrytten in the boke of the lawe, to do them. That noman is iustified by the law in the syght of God, it is euydent: * For the iust shall lyue by his fayth. ✣ The lawe is not of fayth * but the man that doth the same, shall lyue therin. * But CHRIST hath delyuered vs from the curse of the lawe, whan he became a curse for vs (for it is wrytten: * Cursed is euery man ỹ hangeth on a tre,) that the blessynge of Abraham myght come on the Gentyles in CHRIST IESV, and that we myght so receaue the promysed spyrete, thorowe fayth.

C Brethren I wyll speake after the maner of men. Though it be but a mans testament, yet noman despyseth it, or addeth ony thynge therto, * whan it is confyrmed.

✣ To Abrahã and hys sede were the promyses made. He sayeth not in thy sedes, as in many, but in thy sede, as in one, whiche is CHRIST. This Testament (I saye) wich afore was confyrmed to CHRIST warde, is not disanulled (that the promes shulde be made of none effecte) by the lawe * wich was geuen beyonde foure hundreth, and thyrtye yeares therafter. * For yf the enheretaunce be gotten by the lawe, then is it not geuen by promesse. But God gaue it frely vnto Abraham by promesse.

Wherfore then serueth the lawe? * It was added because of transgressyõ, tyl the sede came to the whiche the promesse was made. * And it was geuen of angels, by ỹ hande of ỹ * mediatoure. A mediatoure is not a mediatour of one only, but god is one.

D Is the lawe then agaynst the promisses of God? God forbyd. Howbeit yf ther had ben geuen a lawe whiche coulde haue geuen lyfe, then no doute ryghteousnesse shuld come of the law. * But the scripture hath shut vp all vnder synne, ỹ the promesse shulde come by the fayth on IESVS CHRIST, geuen vnto them that beleue. ✣ Before fayth came, we were kept and shut vp vnder the lawe, vnto the fayth whiche shulde afterwarde be declared. Thus the lawe was oure scolemaster vnto CHRIST that we might be made righteous by faith. But now that fayth is come, we are nomor vnder the scolemaster. * For ye all are the chyldren of God by the fayth in CHRIST IESV. * For as many of you as are baptysed, haue put on CHRIST. Here is nother Iewe nor Greke: here is nother bonde nor fre: here is nother man nor woman, for ye are all * one in Christ IESV. * yf ye be Christes, then are ye Abrahams sede, and heyres accordynge to the promesse.

The.iiii. Chapter. ✣

B But I saye: As longe as the heyre is a chylde, ther is no differece betwene hym, and a seruaunt though he be lorde of the goodes: but he is vnder tuters and gouerners, vntyll the tyme appoynted of the father. Euẽ so we also whã we were chyldren, were in bondage vnder the outwarde tradicions. But whan the * tyme was fulfylled, God sent hys sonne, borne of a woman, * and put vnder the lawe, to redeme them whiche were vnder the lawe, that we myght receaue the chyldshyppe. * For so muche then as ye are chyldren, God hath sent the spyrete of his sonne into oure hartes, whiche crieth Abba, deare father. Wherfore now, thou arte not a seruaunt, but a sonne. If thou be a sonne, then arte thou the heyre of God thorowe CHRIST. ✣ Notwithstãdyng whan ye knewe not God ye dyd seruyce vnto them, 1.Cor.8.a. * whiche by nature are no goddes. But now seynge ye knowe God (yee rather are Collos.2.c knowen of God) howe is it * that ye turne you backe agayne vnto ỹ weake and beg-gerly traditions, where vnto ye desyre a-gayne a freshe to be in bondage.

B ye obserue dayes and monethes, and tymes, and yeares. I am in feare of you, lest I haue bestowed laboure on you in vayn. Brethre I beseke you be ye as I am, for I am as ye are. ye haue not hurt me at al. For ye know, how ỹ in weakenesse after the flesshe I preached the Gospell vnto you at the fyrst: and my tentacion whiche I suffred after the flesshe, ye despised not, nother Gala.2.a abhorred, but receaued me as an * Angel of God, yee euen as CHRISTE IESV.
How happy were ye then? For I beare you recorde, that yf it had ben possible, ye had plucked out youre owne eyes, and geuen them vnto me. Am I therfore become your enemye, because I tell you the treuth?

They are gelous ouer you amysse, yee they wold make you to fall backe that ye myghte be feruente to them warde. It is good to be feruente, so that it be alwaye in a good thinge, and not only whā I am present with you. My lytle chyldre (of whō Iohn.16.c I * trauayle in * byrth agayne, vntyll 1.Co.4.c CHRIST be fashioned in you) I wolde I were with you now, and coulde chaunge my voyce. For I stonde in doute of you.

C Tell me, ye that wyl be vnder ỹ lawe, haue ye not herde the lawe? * For it is wrytten, that Abraham had two sonnes, Gen.16.b. * the one by a bonde mayden * the other Ygen.21.a. by a fre woman, * as for hym that was of *Ro.9.a. the bonde mayden, he was borne after the flesshe: but he whiche was of the fre woman was borne by promesse. These wordes be-token somwhat. For these wemen are the two testaments; The one from the mount Syna, that gendreth vnto bondage, wich is Agar. For Agar is called in Arabia the mount Syna, and reacheth vnto Ierusalem, whiche now is, and is in bondage wᵗ hyr chyldren.

Apoc.21.a * But Ierusalem that is aboue, is the
fre woman, which is the mother of vs all.
Esai.54.a For it is wrytten: * Reioyce thou baren, that bearest no chyldren: breake forth, and crye thou that trauaylest not, for the dese-late hath many mo children, then she wich hath an husbande. As for vs (brethren) we are the chyldren of Isaac accordynge to the promesse.

* But lyke as at that tyme, he that was Gen.21.a borne after the flesh, persecuted hym ỹ was borne after the spyrte, euen so is it now also. But what sayeth the scrypture? * Put Gen.21.a awaye the bonde mayden, and hyr sonne:
for the sonne of the bonde mayden shal not be heyre with the sonne of the fre woman.
So now brethren, we are not chyldren of the bonde mayde, but of the fre woman. ✠ of the spyrte, then are ye not vnder ỹ lawe.

* The dedes of the flesshe are manyfeste, 1.Cor.6. whiche are these: Aduoutrye, whordome, vnclennesse, wätonnesse, Idolatrie, witchcrafte, * hatred, variaunce, zele, wrath, stryfe, sedicion, sectes, enuyenge, murther, dronkennesse, glotony, and such like: of the whiche I tel you before, as I haue told you in tyme past, * that they whiche commyte suche, shall not inherite the kyngdome of God. * But the frute of the spyrete, is loue, ioye, peace, longe sufferynge, gentlenesse, goodnesse, faythfulnesse, mekenesse, temperaunce. * Agaynst suche is not the lawe: * But they that are Christes, haue crucyfyed theyr flesh, with the lustes & desyres. ✠

The.vj. Chapter. ✠

IF we lyue in the spyrete, let vs walke also in the spyrit. Let vs not be vayngloryous, prouokynge one another, and enuyenge one another. Brethren yf ony man be ouertaken of a faute, ye which are spirituall enfourme hym with a meke spyrete: and consyder thyne owne selfe, that thou also be not tempted. * Beare ye one anothers burthen, and so shall ye fulfyll ỳ lawe of Christ. But yf ony man thynke hymselfe to be somwhat (whan in dede he is nothynge) the same deceaueth hymselfe. Let euery man proue hys own worke, and then shall he haue reioycynge in hys owne selfe, and not in another. * For euery man shall beare hys owne burthen.

* But let hym that is taught with the worde, mynyster in all good thinges, vnto hym that teacheth hym. Be not deceaued, God wyll not be mocked. * For whatsoeuer a man soweth, that shall he reape. He that soweth vpon the flesshe, shall of ỳ flesh reape destruccion. But he that soweth vpõ the spyrete, shall of the spyrete reape lyfe euerlastynge. * Let vs not be weery of well doynge: for whã the tyme is come, we shall reape wythout ceassynge. Whyle we haue tyme therfore, let vs do good vnto all men * but specially vnto them which are of the housholde of fayth. ✠

Beholde, with how many wordes I haue wrytten vnto you * with myne owne hande. They that wyll please in the flesshe, constrayne you to be circumcised, only lest they should be persecuted with the crosse of CHRIST. For euen they them selues which are circumcysed, kepe not the lawe, but wolde haue you circumcised, ỳ they might reioyce in youre flesshe. But God forbyd that I shulde reioyce, saue onely in ỳ crosse of oure LORD IESVS CHRIST, wherby the worlde is crucifyed vnto me, and I vnto the worlde. * For in CHRIST IESV nother circumcysyon auayleth ony thing, nor vncircumcysyon, but a newe creature. Galat.5.a

* And as many as walke accordynge to this rule, peace and mercy be vpon them, and vpon Israell of God. From hereforth let noman put me to busynesse, * for I bere in my body the markes of the LORDE IESV. Brethren, the grace of oure LORDE IESV CHRIST be with youre spyrite. Psal.124.b 2.Cor.4.b

But God whiche is ryche in mercy thorowe his greate loue wherwith he loued vs euen whā we were dead in synnes hath Ephes.5.b and.2.a quickened vs wt Christ (* for by grace are ye saued) and hath rayse vs vp with him, and set vs with hym in heauenly thynges thorowe CHRIST IESV that in tymes to come he myght shewe the exceadyng ryches of his grace, in kindnesse to vswarde in CHRIST IESV. For by grace are ye saued thorowe fayth, and that not of your selues. For it is the gyfte of God, not of workes, lest ony man shuld boast hymselfe.

For we are his workmanshyppe, created in CHRIST IESV * vnto good workes, to the which God ordeyned vs before, that we shulde walke in them.

Wherfore remembre, that ye (whiche afore tyme were Gentyles after the flesshe, and were called vncircumcisyon, of them that are called * circumcisyon after the flesshe, which circumcysyon is made wyth the hande) that ye at the same tyme were wythout CHRISTE, and reputed aleaunes from the comune wealth of Israel, and were straungers from the testamet of promesse, therfore had ye no * hope, and were wythout God in this worlde. For he is oure * peace, which of both hath made one, and hath broken downe ỹ wall, that was a stoppe betwixte vs, and hath also thorowe hys flesshe put away the cause of hatred (namely the lawe of ỹ commaundementes contayned in the law writ ten) that of twayne he myghte create one newe man in hymselfe, and make peace, and to reconcyle both vnto god in one bodye thorowe the crosse, and so he slewe the hatred thorowe hys own selfe and came, & * preached peace in the Gospell, vnto you whiche were farre of, and to them ỹ were nye. For thorowe hym we both haue entraunce in one spyrte vnto the father.

Now therfore ye are nomore gestes and straungers, but cytesyns wyth the sayntes, and of the housholde of god, buyl ded vpon * the fundacion of ỹ Apostles and Prophetes: where IESVS CHRIST is the heade corner stone, in whome euery buyldynge coupled together, groweth to an holy temple in the LORDE, in whom ye are buylded also together, to be an habitacyon of god in the spyrte.

The.iii. Chapter.

For this cause I Paule am * a presoner of IESV CHRIST, for you Heythen, accordynge as ye haue herde of the office of the grace of god which * is geuen me to youwarde. For * by reuelacyon was thys mystery shewed vnto me, as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes: wherby whā ye reade it, ye may perceaue myne vnderstondynge in the mystery of CHRIST, whiche (mistery) in tymes past was not opened vnto the chyldren of men, as it is now declared to hys holy Apostles, and Prophetes by the spyrte, namely, That the Heythen shuld be inheritours also, and of the same body, and partakers of his promesse in CHRIST by the Gospell, whereof I am made a mynister accordynge to the gyfte of the grace of god, whiche is geuen me accordynge to the workynge of hys power.

Vnto me * the least of all sayntes is this grace geuen, that I shulde preache amonge the Heythen the vnsearcheable ryches of CHRIST, and to make all men se, what is the felowshyppe of the * mystery, which from the begynnynge of the worlde hath ben hyd in god, which made all thynges thorowe IESVS CHRISTE: to the intēt that now vnto the rulers, and powers, in heauen myght be knowen by the congregacion the manyfolde wysdom of god, accordynge to the eternall purpose, which he hath shewed in CHRIST IESV oure LORDE, by whom we haue boldnesse, and an entraunce in al confydence thorow fayth on hym. * Wherfore I desyre that ye faynte not because of my tribulacyons, that I suffre for you, wich is your prayse.

For this cause I bowe my knees vnto the father of oure LORD IESVS CHRIST, whiche is the true father ouer all, that is called father in heauen and in earth, that he graunte you (accordynge to the ryches of hys glorye) to be strengthed with power by his spyrte in the inwarde man, ỹ Christ maye dwell in youre hartes by fayth, that ye beynge rooted, and grounded in loue, maye be able to comprehende wt all sayntes, what is the brede, and length, and ỹ depth, and the heyght: and to knowe the loue of Christ, whiche loue yet passeth all knowlege: that ye maye be fylled with all maner of fulnesse of god.

Vnto hym that is able to do exceadyng abūdauntly, * aboue al that we are, or vnderstonde (accordynge to the power that worketh in vs) be prayse in the cōgregacion which is in Christ Jesu, at all tymes for euer, and euer Amen.

The.iiii. Chapter.

A THerfore which am prisoner in the LORDE exhort you * ye walke as it becometh youre callynge wherin ye are called, with all humblenes of mynde and mekenes, and longe sufferynge, forbeareynge one another in loue, and be diligent to kepe the vnyte of the spirite thorow ye bond of peace. One body and one spirite, euen as ye are called in one hope of your callynge. One LORDE, one fayth, one baptyme, one God and father of vs all, whiche is aboue all, and thorow all, and in you all. ✠ and haue no felowshyppe with the vnfrutefull worckes of darkneſſe, but rather rebuke them. For it is shame euen to name thoſe thynges, whiche are done of them in ſecrete. * But all thynges are manyfeſte, whan they are rebuked of the lyghte. For whatſoeuer is manyfeſt, ỳ ſame is lighte.  Take hede therfore how ye walke circumſpectly not as the vnwyſe, but as ỳ wyſe, and redeme the tyme, for it is a myſerable tyme. Wherfore be not ye vnwyſe but vnderſtonde what the * wyll of the LORDE is, ‡ and be not dronken wyth wyne, wherin is exceſſe, but * be full of the ſpyrite, ‡ and talke amonge youre ſelues of Pſalmes, and ymnes, and ſpiritual ſonges, * ſyngynge and makynge melody vnto the LORDE in youre hartes * geuynge thankes alwayes for all thynges vnto God the father, in the name of oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE ſubmyttynge youre ſelues one to another in the feare of God. ℣

C * Let the wemen ſubmytte them ſelues vnto theyr huſbandes, as vnto the LORDE. ‡ For the husband is the wyues heade, euen as CHRIST alſo is the heade of the congregacion, and he is the Sauioure of hys body. Therfore as the congregacion is in ſubiecciõ to CHRIST, lykewyſe let the wyues be in ſubiecciõ to theyr huſbandes in all thynges.

Ye huſbandes loue youre wyues, euen as CHRIST loued the congregacyon, * ‡ gaue hymſelfe for it, to ſanctifye it, ‡ and clenſed it in the fountayne of water by the worde, to make it vnto hymſelf a glorious congregacion, hauynge no ſpot, nor wrynkle, nor ony ſuche thynge, but that it ſhuld be holy and wythout blame.

So ought men alſo to loue theyr wyues, euen as theyr owne bodyes. He that loueth hys wyfe, loueth hymſelfe. For no man euer yet hated his owne fleſhe, but nourſheth, and cherſheth it euen as the LORDE doth alſo ỳ congregacyon. For we are membres of hys body, of hys fleſhe, and of hys bones. * For this cauſe ſhall a man leaue father, and mother, and cleue vnto hys wyfe, and they two ſhalbe one fleſhe: This is a greate ſecrete: but I ſpeake of CHRIST, and the congregacyon. Neuertheleſſe do ye ſo, that euery one of you loue his wyfe euen as himſelfe: but let the wyfe feare hyr husbande.

The.vi.Chapter.

YE * chyldren obey youre elders in the LORD, for that is ryghte. Honoure thy father and thy mother. (* That is the fyrſte commaundement, ỳ hath ony promeſſe) that thou mayeſt proſper, and lyue longe vpon earth. And ye fathers, prouoke not youre chyldren vnto wrath, * but brynge them vp in the nourioure, and informacion of the LORDE.

* Ye ſeruauntes, obey youre bodely maſters, with feare and tremblynge, in ſyngleneſſe of youre harte euen as vnto CHRIST, not with ſeruyce onely in the eye ſyght, as men pleaſers: but as the ſeruauntes of CHRIST, doynge the wyll of God from the harte with good wyll. Thynke ỳ ye ſerue the LORDE and not men: and be ſure, that what good ſoeuer a man doth, he ſhal receaue it agayn of the LORDE, whether he be bonde, or fre.

* And ye maſters, do euen the ſame vnto them, puttynge awaye threatenynges, and knowe that euen youre mayſter alſo is in heauen, * nother is there ony reſpecte of perſonnes with hym.

B * Finally my brethren, be ſtronge in the LORDE, and in the power of his might put on the armoure of God, that ye maye * ſtonde ſtedfaſt agaynſt the crafty aſſaultes of the deuell. For we wreſtle not agaiſt fleſhe and bloud, but agaynſt rule, agaynſt power, namely, agaynſt the rulers of the worlde, of the darkneſſe of this worlde, agaynſt the ſpyrete of wyckedneſſe vnder the heauen. For this cauſe take ye the armour of God, ỳ ye maye be able to reſyſte in the euell daye, ‡ ſtonde perfecte in al thynges.

* Stonde therfore, and youre loynes gyrded aboute with the treuth, hauyng on the preſtplate of righteouſneſſe, and ſhode vpon youre fete with the Goſpel of peace, that ye maye be prepared. Aboue all thynges take holde of the ſhylde of fayth wher with ye maye quench the fyrie dartes of ỳ wycked. And take the helmet of ſaluacyon * and the ſwearde of the ſpyrete, which is the worde of god. ℣

C * And prayе alwayes with all maner of prayer, and ſupplicacion in the ſpyrete, and watch ther vnto with all inſtaunce, ‡ ſupplicacion for all ſayntes, and for me, * that the worde maye be geuen me, that I maye open my mouth boldly, to vtter ỳ

But that ye maye also knowe, what my deare brother, and faithfull minister in the LORDE shall shew you all: whom I haue sent vnto you for the same cause, that ye myght knowe what case I stonde

The summe of thys Epistle.

Chap. i. He exhorteth them to increase in loue, in knowlege, and experience of godly thynges: maketh mencyon of hys preferment at Rome, is glad to heare Christ preached, is content other to lyue, or dye, and prayeth them to lede a godly conuersacyon: to be of one mynde, and to feare no persecucion.

Chap. ii. He exhorteth them to vnite, and brotherly loue: and to beware of stryfe: and vayne glory: And for a sure ensample: he lapeth Christ before them.

Chap. iii. He warneth them to beware of false teachers whom he calleth dogges and enemyes of Christ: and reproueth mans owne rygteousnesse.

Chap. iiii. He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honeste conuersacyon: and thanketh them because of the prouysyon, that they made for hym beynge in prison.

*I wolde ye vnderstode brethren, that Ephes.3.b my busynes is happened vnto the greater forthereaunce of the Gospell, so that my bondes in CHRISTE are manyfeste thorowe out all the iudgementhall, and in al other places: In so muche that many brethren in the LORDE are boldened thorow my bondes, and darre more largely speake the worde wythout feare. Some (no dout) preache CHRIST of envye and stryfe, but some of good wyll. The one parte preacheth CHRIST of stryfe, and not purely supposynge to adde more adversyte vnto my bondes. The other parte of love for they know that I lye here for the defese of the Gospell.

What then? So that CHRIST be preached al maner of ways (whether it be done by occasyon, or true manynge) I reioyce therin, and wyll reioyce. For I knowe that the same shall chaunce to my saluacyon,
* thorowe youre prayer, and mynistrynge of the spryte of IESV CHRIST, as I loke for and hope, that in nothynge I shalbe ashamed: but that with all confydence (as always in tymes past, euē so now) CHRIST shalbe magnifyed in my body, whether it be thorowe lyfe or thorow death. For CHRIST is to me lyfe, and death is to me auauntage.
But in as muche as to lyue in the flesshe is profytfull to me for the worke, I wote not what I shall chose, for both these thynges ly harde vpon me. * I desyre to be lowsed, and to be with CHRIST, whiche thynge were muche better (for me) but to abyde in the flesshe is more nedefull for you.

And this am I sure of, that I shal a-byde, and continue with you all, for the fur therauce, and ioye of youre fayth, that ye may, abundantly reioyce in CHRIST IESV thorowe me, by my commynge to you a-gayne. Onely let youre conuersacyon be
* as it becommeth the Gospel of CHRIST that whether I come and se you, or els be absent. I maye yet heare of you, that ye cōtinue in one spryte, and one soule, labou-rynge (as we do) to mayntayn the fayth of the Gospell, and in nothyng fearyng your aduersaries, whiche is to them a token of perdicion, but vnto you (a token) of salua-cion, and that of God. For vnto you it is geuen, not onely that ye shulde beleue on CHRIST, but also suffre for his sake, and to haue euen the same fyght, whiche ye haue sene in me, and nowe heare of me.

of the Apostle. S. Paull to the Tessalonians.

The fyrst Chapter.

PAull and Syluanus, and Tymotheus. Unto the congregacyon of the Tessalonians, in God the father and ỹ LORD IESVS CHRIST.

* Grace be wyth you and peace from God oure father and from the LORDE IESVS CHRIST.

✣ * We geue thankes vnto God alwaye for you all, makynge mencion of you in oure prayers wythout ceassynge, and call to remembraunce youre worke in the fayth, and youre laboure in * loue, and youre patience in hope, ✣ whiche is oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE before God oure father: Because we knowe (brethren, beloued of God) howe that ye are electe: * for oure Gospell hath not ben with you in worde onely, but both in power, and in the holy goost, and in muche certaynty, * as ye knowe after what maner we were amonge you for youre sakes.

And ye became the folowers of vs, and of the LORDE: & receaued the word in muche affliccyon with ioye of the holy goost: ✣ so that ye were an example to all that beleued in Macedonia, & Achaya. For from you was the word of the LORD sowed out, not onely in Macedonia, and Achaya, but in all quarters also is youre fayth in god spred abrode, so that it nedeth not vs to speake ony thyng at al. For they them selues shewe of you, what maner of entrynge in we had vnto you, and how ye are turned vnto God from ymages, for to serue the lyuynge and true God, and to loke for hys sonne * from heauen whom he raysed vp from the dead, euen IESVS, which hath delyuered vs from the * wrath to come. 1 Thes. 3.c

The. ii. Chapter.

FOr ye youre selues (brethren) knowe of oure intraunce vnto you, howe that it was not in vayne, but as we had suffered afore, * and were shamefully intreated at Philippos (as ye knowe) we were bolde in oure God, * to speake vnto you the Gospell of God with muche stryuynge. For oure exhortacyon was not to brynge you to errour nor yet to vncleannesse, nother was it with gyle, but as we are alowed of God, that the Gospell shulde be committed vnto vs to preache, euen so we speake, * not as though we wolde please men, but God: which trieth ouer hartes. Actu. 16.c Actu. 17.a Galat. 1.b

For we haue not gone aboute with flatterynge wordes: (as ye knowe) nor wayted for oure owne profyte (* God is recorde) nother sought we prayse of men, nother of you, nor of ony other, whā we might haue ben chargeable vnto you as the Apostles of CHRISTE, but we were tender amonge you. Phil. 1.b

Lyke as a norsche cherysheth hyr chyldre, euen so had we hartely affeccyon to warde you, & wolde with good wyl haue dealt vnto you, not onely ỹ Gospel of god, but our liues also, because ye were deare vnto vs. B

✣ ye remembre brethren oure labour and trauayle. * For daye, and nyghte wrought we (because we wold not be chargeable vnto ony of you) and preached the gospell of god amonge you. ye are wytnesses, and so is god, howe holyly, and iustly, and vnblemeable we behaued oure selues amonge you that beleue (as ye know.) Now that as a father hys chyldre, euen so exhorted we and comforted, and besought euery one of you, * that ye wolde walke worthely before god, whiche hath called you vnto hys kyngdome and glorye. Actu. 20.a 2 Thes. 3.a 1. Tes. 4.a

For this cause thanke we god without ceassynge, because that whan ye receaued of vs the worde of the prechynge of god ye receaued it not as the worde of mē, but (euen as it is of a treuth) the worde of god, which worketh in you that beleue. ✣

For ye brethren are become the folowers of * the congregacion of god which in Iewry are in CHRIST IESV, so that ye haue suffered euen lyke thynges of youre kynsmen, as they haue suffred of ỹ Iewes. Whiche as they put the LORDE IESVS C 1 Thes. 2.b

to death, and theyr owne prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs also, and please not God, and are contrarie to all men, Actn. 17.d and.b *forbyddynge vs to speake vnto the Heythen that they myghte be saued, to fulfyll theyr synnes alwayes: for the wrath is come vpon them alreadye vnto ỹ vttermost.

But we (brethren) for as much as we haue ben kepte from you for a season, as concernynge the bodely presence, but not in the harte, we haue haisted the more ẅ greate desyre to se you personnally. Therfore wolde we haue come vnto you, (I Paull) two tymes, * but Sathan wythstode vs. For who is oure hope, or ioye, or crowne of * reioycynge? are not ye it in ỹ syghte of oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST at hys commynge? yes ye are oure prayse and ioye.

The.iii.Chapter.

Actn. 17.e

WHerfore, sence we coulde no longer forbeare, we thoughte it good to remayne at *Athes alone, and sent Tymotheus oure brother and mynister of God, and oure helper in the Gospell of CHRIST, to stablyshe you and to conforte ephes. 3.b ỹ Joh. 15.b 2.Tim. 3.b you in youre fayth * that noman shulde be moued in these troubles: ỹ for ye youre selues knowe that we are euen appoynted thervnto. And whan we were with you, we tolde you before, that we shulde suffre tribulacyon, euen as it is come to passe, and as ye know. For this cause seyng I could no longer forbeare, I sent, that I myghte haue knowelege of your fayth, lest happly the tempter had tempted you, and lest oure laboure had ben inuayne.

B But nowe that Tymotheus is come from you vnto vs, and hath shewed vs of youre fayth and loue, and howe that ye haue alwaye good remembraunce of vs, desyrynge to se vs, as we also longe to se you: therfore brethren we haue consolacyon in you, in all our trouble, and necessyte thorowe youre fayth. For now are we alyue, yf ye stonde stedfast in the LORD. + For what thankes can we recompence to God agayn for you, because of this ioye that we haue concernyng you before our god? We prayе exceadyngly daye and nyght, that we myghte se you presently, and fulfyll ỹ whiche is lackynge in youre fayth.

God hymselfe oure father, and oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE gyde oure iourneye vnto you. But the LORDE increase you, & make you flowe ouer in loue one towarde another, and towarde all me (euen as we do towarde you) that youre hartes maye be stable, and vnblameable in holynesse before god oure father, at the commynge of our LORD IESVS CHRIST wyth all hys sayntes. +

FVrthermore I beseke you brethren, and exhorte you in the LORD IESVS, that ye increase more and more, euen as ye haue receaued of vs, howe ye ought * to walke and to please god. For ye knowe what commaundementes we gaue you by oure LORDE IESVS CHRIST. For this is the * wyll of god, euen youre sanctifienge, that ye shulde abstеyne from whoredome + that euery one of you shulde knowe howe to kepe his vessell in holynesse, and honoure, and not in the lust of concupiscence, as * the Heythe whiche knowe not god. And that noman go to farre and defraude hys brother in bargenynge. For the LORD is the auenger of all such thynges, as we haue sayde, and testifyed vnto you afore tyme. For god hath not called vs to vnclennesse, but vnto holynesse. * He therfore that despyseth, despyseth not man, but god: * which hath geuen his holy spyrte in to you. +

BUt of the tymes and ſeaſons (brethrē) it is no nede to wryte vnto you. For ye your ſelues know perfectly, that * the day of the LORDE ſhal come euen as a theefe in the nyght. For whā they ſhall ſaye: Tuſh. It is peace, there is no daunger, * then ſhall ſodeyn deſtruccion come vpon them, euen as the payne of a woman trauelynge with chylde, and they ſhall not eſcape. But ye brethren are not in darknes that that daye ſhulde come on you as a theefe. ✠ ✠ ye are altogether chyldren of lyght, and children of the day. We are not of the nyght, nother of darkneſſe.

* Therfore let vs not ſlepe as do other, but let vs watche, and be ſober. For they that ſlepe, ſlepe in the nyght: and they that be dronken, are dronken in the nyght. But let vs whiche are of the day, be ſober * armed with the breſtplate of fayth and loue, and with the helmet of hope to ſaluacion.

For God hath not appoynted vs vnto wrath, but to optayne ſaluacion by ỹ meanes of oure LORDE IESV CHRIST, whiche dyed for vs, that * whether we wake or ſlepe, we ſhulde lyue together with hym. Wherfore conforte youre ſelues together, & edifye one an other, euen as ye do. ✠

of the Apostle Saynt Paule

to Timothe.

The [illegible] of this Epistle.

Chap. i He exhorteth Timothe to wayte vpon his office: namely, to se that nothynge be taught but Gods worde. &c. He shewth also wherfore the lawe is good: & telleth these swete and good tydynges, that Christ Iesus came in to the worlde to saue synners, example of hymselfe.

Chap. ii He exhorteth to praye for all men. He wyll not haue women to be ouercostly arayed nor to teache in the congregacion: but to be in silence, and obey their husbandes.

Chap. iii what maner of man a bysshop or prestе ought to be: and what condicyon his wyfe and children shulde haue. The propertyes also requyred in a deacon or minister, and in his wyfe.

Chap. iiii He prophecieth of the latter dayes, and exhorteth Timothe to the diligent in redynge of the holy scripture.

Chap. v. He teacheth hym how he shall behaue himselfe in rebukynge all degrees. An order concernynge widowes.

Chap. vi. The dewtye of seruauntes towarde their maysters. Agaynst suche as are not stablished with the worde of god. Agaynst couetousnes. A good lesson for rychemen.

with all honestye. (But yf a man can not rule his owne house, how shall he care for the congregacion of God:) He maye not be a ponge scoler, lest he be puft vp, and fall in to the iudgemēt of the cuell speaker. He must also haue a good reporte of thē which are wythout, lest he fall in to the rebuke, and snare of the cuell speaker.

Lykewyse must the * mynisters be honest, not double tunged, not geuen to moche wyne, nother to fylthye lucre, but holdinge the mysterye of fayth in pure conscience. And let them fyrste be proued, and then let them mynyster, yf they be blameles.

Euen so must theyr wyues be honest, not cuell speakers, but sober and saythfull in all thynges. Let the mynysters be euery one the husbande of one wyfe, and such as rule theyr chyldren well, and theyr owne housholdes. * For they that mynister well, get them selues a good degre, and greate lyberye in the fayth whiche is in CHRIST IESV.

These thynges wryte I vnto the, trustynge shortly to come vnto the: but yf I tarye longe, yͭ thou mayest yet haue knowlege, how thou oughtest to behaue thy self in Gods house, whiche is the congregacion of the lyuynge God, the pyller & ground * of the treuth: and with out naye, greate is that mysterye of godlynesse. * God was shewed in the flesshe, was iustifyed in the spyrite: * was sene of angels: was preached vnto the Heythen, was beleued on in the worlde, * was receaued vp in glorye.

The.iiii.Chapter.

THe spyrite speaketh euydently. * That in the latter tymes some shall * departe from the fayth, and shall geue hede vnto spyrites of errour, and deuelyshe doctrynes, of them whiche speake falsely thorowe ypocrysye, and haue theyr consciēce marked with an whote yron, forbyddynge to marye, and commaundynge to abstayne from the meates, wiche god hath * created to be receaued with * geuynge thankes, of them whiche beleue and know the treuth. * For euery creature of god is good, and nothynge to be refused, that is receaued with thanksgeuynge: for it is sanctifyed by the worde of God, & prayer. yf thou shalt put the brethren in remembraunce of these thynges, thou shalt be a good minister of CHRIST, * which hath ben norysshed vp in the wordes of fayth, and of good doctryne, whiche thou hast followed hetherto. 2.Tim.3.b

* As for vngoostly and olde wyues fables, cast them awaye, but exercyse thy selfe vnto godlynesse. * For bodely exercyse profyteth lytle, but godlynesse is profitable vnto all thinges, as a thinge wich hath promyses of the * lyfe that is now, and of the lyfe for to come. + This is a sure saienge, and of all partes worthye to be receaued. For therfore we laboure, and suffre rebuke, because we hope in the lyuinge God, which is the Sauecoure of al men, but specially of those that beleue. Suche thynges commaunde thou, and teache. The secõd Epistle

to Timothe.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. i. Paull exhorteth Tymothe to stedfastnesse: and pacience in persecution: and to continue in the doctrine that he had taught him. A commendacion of Oneliphorus.

Chap. ii. Lyke as in the fyrst chapter: so here he exhorteth him to be constant in trouble to suffre manly: and to byde fast in the whol some doctrine of our LORD Jesus Christ.

Chap. iii. He prophecieth of the parlous ty mes: setteth out ypocrites in theyr colours telleth vs what they be wythin: for al their fayre faces outwardly. Persecution for the Gospell.

Chap. iiii. He exhorteth Tymothe to be fer uent in the worde: and to suffre aduersyte:
maketh mencyon of hys owne death: & bydd eth Tymothe to come vnto hym.

The secõd Epistle

of the Apostle S. Paull to Timothe.

The first Chapter.

PAull an Apostle of IESVS

And suche auoyde, * Of this sorte are they whiche runne from house to house, and brynge into bondage wemen ladē with sinne: which (wemen) are led with diuerse lustes, euer learnynge, and neuer able to come vnto ỹ knowlege of the treuth.

* But lyke as Jannes and Jambres withstode Moses, euen so do these also resyste the treuth: men they are of corrupte myndes, and lewde as concernynge the fayth: but they shall preuayle no longer. For their foolysnesse shalbe manyfest vnto all men, as theyrs was.

B But thou hast sene the experiēce of my doctryne, my fashiō of lyuyng, my purpose my fayth, my longe sufferyng, my loue, my patience, my persecutions, my afflictions, which happened to me, * at Antioche, at Iconium, at Lystra, which persecucyon I suffered pacyently, and from them all ỹ LORDE delyuered me. * Yee and all they that wyll lyue godly in CHRIST IESV, must suffre persecucion. But the euell men and deceauers shall ware worse and worse, deceauynge and beynge deceaued.

* But continue thou in the thynges, that thou hast learned, which also were cōmitted vnto the, seynge thou knowest of whome thou hast learned them. And for so muche as thou hast knowen holy scripture of a chylde, the same is able to make the wyse vnto saluacion thorowe ỹ fayth in CHRIST IESV. * For all scripture geuen by inspiraciō of God, is profytable to teache, to improue to amende, and to instructe in rightеousnesse, that a man of god maye be perfecte, and prepared vnto all good workes.

The.iiij. Chapter.

I Testifye therfore before God and before the LORDE IESVS CHRISTE, whiche shall come to iudge the liuing, and the dead, at his appearynge in his kingdome: Preache thou the word, be feruent, be it in season, or oute of season: Improue, rebuke, exhorte with all longe sufferynge and doctryne. For the tyme wil come, whan they shall not suffre wholsome doctryne, but after their owne lustes shall they (whose eares ytche) get them an heape of teachers, and shall turne theyr eares from the treuth, and shall be geuen vnto fables. But watch thou in all thynges, suffre aduersyte, doỹ worke of a good preacher of the Gospell, fulfyll thyne office vnto the vttermoost.

Of whiche saluacyon the * prophetes Gen. 49.b Dani 2.a

haue enquyred and searched, whiche prophecyed of the grace that shulde come vpon you, searchyng when, or at what tyme the spyrete of CHRIST that was in them shulde sygnifye, which (spyrete) testifyed before, the passyons that shulde come vnto CHRIST, and the glorye that shulde folowe after. Unto the whiche (prophetes) it was declared, that not vnto them selues, but vnto vs they shulde mynister ꝑ thynges whiche are now shewed vnto you, by them, which thorow the * holy goost sent downe from heauen haue preached vnto you the thynges * whiche the aungels desyre to beholde.

Wherfore gyrde vp ꝑ * loynes of your mynde, be sober and trust perfectly on the grace that is brought vnto you, by the declarynge of IESVS CHRIST, as obedient chyldren, not fashionynge your selfes to your olde lustes of ygnorannce, but as he which hathe called you is holy, euen so be ye holy also in your conuersacion, for it is wrytten, * Be ye holy, for I am holy.

And yf so be that ye call on the father whiche without respecte of persones iudgeth * accordynge to euery mans worke, se ꝑ ye passe the tyme of your pylgrymage in feare, ✣ * and knowe that ye were not redemed with corruptible syluer and gold from your vayne conuersacyon (whiche ye receaued by the tradicyons of the fathers) * but w^th the precyous bloude of CHRIST, as of an innocent and vndefyled lambe, which was ordeyned before the world was made, but is declared in the laste tymes * for your sakes, whiche thorowe hym beleue on god, whiche raysed hym vp from the dead * and hath geuen hym the glorye, that ye might haue fayth and hope in god. Euen ye which haue purifyed your soules in * obeyenge the trueth thorowe the spyrit vnto loue brotherly without faynynge, feruently one to loue another with a pure harte, as they that are borne anew, not of corruptible sede, but of incorruptible, euen by the lyuynge worde of god, whiche endureth for euer * For all fleshe is as a grasse and all the glory of man is as the floure of grasse. The grasse withereth, and ꝑ floure falleth awaye, but the worde of ꝑ LORDE endureth for euer. ✣ This is the worde that is preached amonge you.

The seconde Chapter. ✣

Wherfore * laye aside all malycyousnes and all gyle, * hypocrisye, and enuye, ‡ al backebytynge, and ‡ as newe borne babes desyre that reasonable mylke, which is wythout corrupcyon, that ye may growe therin, yf so be that ye haue * tasted howe frendely the LORD is. Unto whom ye are come, ‡ as to the lyuynge stone, whiche is disalowed of men, but chosen of god, and precyous. And ye also lyuynge stones are made a spirytuall house * and an holy presthode, to offre vp ‡ spirytuall sacrifyces, acceptable vnto God by IESVS CHRISTE. Wherfore it is contayned in the scrypture. * Beholde I put in Syon an head corner stone, electe and precious, and he that beleueth on him shall not be confoūded. Unto you therfore which beleue, he is precyous: but vnto the that beleue not is the same stone (whiche ꝑ * buylders refused) made the heade stone in the corner, ‡ and a stone to stomble at, and a rocke to be offended at, namely in them whiche stomble at the worde, and beleue not that, wheron they were set.

* But ye are that chosen generacyon, that kyngly presthode ‡ that holy nacyon that peculiar people, * that ye shuld shew the vertues of hym which hath called you out of darknes i to his marueylous lyght. * Euen you whiche in tyme past were not a people, but now are the people of God: whiche were not vnder mercye, but nowe haue obtayned mercy. ✣

✣ Dearely beloued, I beseche you as straungers ‡ pylgrymes, * Abstayn from the fleshely lustes, which fyghte agaynst the soule, ‡ and lede an honest conuersacio amonge the heythen, * that they whiche backbyte you as euell doers, may se your good workes, and prayse god in the daye of visytacyon.

* Submyt your selues vnto al maner ordinaūce of men, for the LORDES sake, whether it be vnto the kynge, as vnto the chefe heade: or vnto rulers, as vnto them that are sent of hym, for the punyshement of euell doers, but for the prayse of them that do well. ✣ For so is the wyll of God, that ye with well doynge shulde put to sylence the ygnorāce of folyshe men: as fre and not hauyng the lybertye for a cloke of wyckednes, but euen as the seruauntes of God: * Honour all men. The secõd Epistle of the Apostle Saynt Peter.

The fyrst Chapter.

SYmon Peter a seruaunt and an Apostle of IESV CHRIST, Vnto them which haue optayned lyke fayth wt vs in þ ryghteousnes that cõmeth of our god, and saueour IESVS CHRIST.

1. Pet. 1. a. * Grace and peace be multyplyed with you thorowe the knowlege of God and of IESVS CHRIST OUR LORDE.

For so muche as his godly power hath geuen vs all thynges (that pertayne vnto lyfe and godlynes) thorowe the knowlege of hym þ hath called vs by his owne glory and power, wherby the excellent & moost great promyses are geuen vnto vs, namely, that ye by þ same shulde be *partakers of the godly nature yf ye flye the corrupte lust of the world, geue ye al your diligence therfore hereunto, and in your fayth minister vertue: in vertue knowlege: * in knowlege temperancy: in temperancy patyence: in patyence, godlynes: in godlynes, brotherly loue: in brotherly loue, general loue. For yf these thynges be plenteous in you, they wyl not let you be ydle nor vnfruteful in the knowlege of our LORDE IESVS CHRIST, But he that lacketh these thynges, is blynde, and gropeth for the waye with the hande, and hath forgotten that he was clensed from his olde synnes.

Wherfore (brethren) geue the more diligence, to make your callyng and electiõ sure, for yf ye do suche thynges, ye shal not fall, and by this meanes shal ther be plenteously mynistred vnto you an entrynge in vnto the euerlastynge kyngdome of oure LORDE and Saueoure IESV CHRIST.

Therfore wyll I not be negligent to C put you alway in remembraunce of suche thynges, though ye know thẽ your selues, and be stablyshed in the present trueth. Notwithstondynge I thynke it mete, as long as I am in this *tabernacle to steare you vp by puttyng you in remembraunce. 2. Cor. 5. a

* For I am sure, that I muste shortly put of my tabernacle, euen as oure LORDE IESVS CHRISTE hath shewed vnto me. Yet wyll I do my diligence that alway after my departynge ye maye haue wherwith to kepe these thynges in remembraunce. Joh. 21. b. 2. Tim. 4. b

✣ For we folowed not deceauable fables when we declared vnto you the power & cõmynge of our LORD IESVS CHRIST, * but with our eyes we sawe his maiestye, Joh. 12. 1. Joh. 1. a when he receaued of God the father honour and prayse, by a voyce that came vnto hym from the excellent glory, after this manner: * This is my deare sonne in whõ I haue delyte. And this voyce herde we brought downe frome heauen, when we were with hym in the holy mount. D Mat. 17. d Mar. 9. b Luke. 9. b

We haue a sure worde of prophecy, & ye do well that ye take hede therunto, as vnto a lyght * þ shyneth in a darke place, vntyll the day dawne, and the day starre aryse in youre hartes. ✣ And this shall ye knowe fyrst, that no prophecye in the scripture is done of ony priuate interpretacyon * For the prophecy was neuer brought by the wyll of man, but the holy men of God spake, as they were moued of þ holy goost. 2. Cor. 4. b Dani. 9. b Zache. 7. b 2. Tim. 3. b

The seconde Chapter.

BVt there were false prophetes al so amonge þ people, * euen as ther shall be false teachers amonge you lykewyse, whiche priuyly shall bryngе in dampnable sectes, euen denyenge the LORDE that hath bought them, and shall bryngе vpon them selues swyfte dampnacyon, & * many shal folow theyr dãpnable wayes by whom the waye of trueth shall be euyll spoken of, and thorowe couetousnes shall they with fayned wordes make marchaun Mat. 24. d Acts. 20. b 2. Tim. 4. b yse of you, * vpon whome the iudgemẽt is not negligent in tarienge of olde, and they? dampnacyon slepeth not.

* For yf God spared not the angels that synned, but cast them downe with the chaynes of darknesse in to hell, and delyuered them ouer to be kept vnto iudgement: * nother spared the olde worlde, but saued Noe the preacher of ryghteousnesse hymselfe beynge the eyghte, and broughte the floude vpon the worlde of the vngodly: * And turned the cyties of Sodom, and Gomor in to asshes, ouerthrewe them, damned them, and made of them an ensample, vnto those that after shulde lyue vngodly: * And deliuered iuste Loth whiche was vexed with the vngodly conuersacyon of the wycked. For in so much as he was righteous and dwelt amonge them, so that he muste nedes se it and heare it, his ryghteous soule was greued from daye to daye with theyr vnlawfull dedes. * The LORD knoweth how to delyuer the godly oute of temptacion, and howe to reserue the vniuste vnto the daye of iudgement for to be punished: but spetially them that walke after the flesh in the luste of vnclennesse, and despyse the rulers: beynge presumptuous, stubburne, and feare not to speake euell of them that are in authorite * whan the angels yet whiche are greater both in power and myghte, beare not the blasphemous iudgement agaynst them of the LORDE. * But these are as the brute beastes, with naturally are broughte forth to be taken, and destroyed: * speakynge euell of that they knowe not, and shall perysshe in theyr owne destruccyon, and so receaue the rewarde of vnryghteousnesse.

They counte it pleasure to lyue delycyously for a season: Spottes are they, & fylthynesse lyuynge at pleasure, and in deceyuable wayes: feastynge with that whiche is youres, hauyng eyes ful of aduoutrye, and can not ceasse from synne, entysynge vnstable soules: hauynge an harte exercysed with couetousnesse: they are cursed chyldren, and haue forsake the ryght waye, and are gone astraye: folowynge the waye of * Balaam the sonne of Bosor, whiche loued the rewarde of vnryghteousnesse * but was rebuked of his iniquyte. * The tame and domme beaste spake with mans voyce, and forbad the foolysshnesse of the Prophete.

These are welles wythout water, and * cloudes caried aboute of a tempeste: to whome the myste of darknesse is reserued for euer. For they speake the proude wordes of vanyte, vnto the vtmooste, and entyse thorowe wantonnes vnto the luste of the flesshe, euen them that were cleane escaped and now walke in errour: and promyse them lybertye where as they them selues are seruauntes of corrupcyon. * For of whõ soeuer a mã is ouercom, vnto the same is he in bondage. * For yf they (after they haue escaped frõ the fylthynesse of the worlde thorowe the knowlege of the LORDE, and Sauioure IESVS CHRIST) are yet tãgled agayne therin and ouercome, * the is the latter ende worse vnto them then the begynnynge. For it had ben better for them, not to haue knowen the waye of ryghteousnesse, then after they haue knowen it, * to turne from the holy commaundement, that was geuen vnto them. It is happened vnto them accordynge vnto the true prouerbe * the dogge is turned to his vomyte agayne: and the sowe that was washed, vnto hyr walowynge in the myre.

The.iii.Chapter.

THis is the seconde Epistle that I now wryte vnto you (ye dearly beloued) where in I stere vp & warne your pure mynde that ye maye remẽbre the wordes, whiche were tolde before of the holy Prophetes: and also the commaundemẽt of vs, that be the Apostles of the LORDE and Sauioure.

This fyrste vnderstonde, * that in the last dayes there shall come mockers which wyll walke after theyr owne lustes, & saye: * Where is the promes of hys commynge? For sence the fathers fell on slepe, euery thynge continueth as it was from the begynnyng of the creature. This they know not (and that wylfully) howe that the heauens were afore tyme also, * & the earth out of the water & was in the water by the worde of god * yet was the worlde at the tyme destroyed by the same with the floude. But the heauens whiche are yet, and the earthe, are kepte in stoare by his worde, to be reserued * vnto fyre agaynste the daye of iudgement, and dampnacyon of vngodlye men.

Dearly beloued, be not ignorante of this one thynge, * howe that one daye is with the LORDE as a thousand yeares: and a thousande yeares: as one daye.

vnto vs. That whiche we haue sene, and harde declare we vnto you, that ye also may haue felowshyp with vs, and that our felowshyp maye be with the father & with his sonne IESVS CHRISTE.

And this wryte we vnto you, * that your ioye may be full.

* And this is the tydynges whiche we haue herde of hym, and declare vnto you, that God is lyght: and in him is no darknes at all. ¶ If * we saye that we haue felowshyp with him, and yet walke in darknes, we lye, and do not the trueth. But yf we walke in lyght, euen as he is lyght, then haue we felowshyppe together, * and the bloud of IESVS CHRIST his sonne clenseth vs from all synne.

* If we saye that we haue no synne, we deceaue our selues, and the trueth is not in vs, * But yf we knowlege our synnes, he is faythfull and iust to forgyue vs our synnes, and to clense vs from al vnryghteousnes. If we say, we haue not synned, we make him a lyer, & his worde is not in vs.

The .ii. Chapter. ✣

My lytle childre, these thynges wryte I vnto you, þ ye shulde not synne, & yf ony man synne, we haue an * aduocate with þ father, euen IESVS CHRIST which is ryghteous: * and he it is that offereth grace for our synnes, not for our synnes onely, but also for the synnes of al the worlde. And hereby are we sure that we knowe him, yf we kepe his cõmaundementes. * He that sayeth: I knowe hym, & kepeth not his cõmaundementes, is a lyar & þ trueth is not in him. But who so kepeth his worde, in him is the loue of God perfect in dede. * Hereby knowe we, that we are in him. * He that sayeth he abydeth in him, ought to walke euẽ as he walked.

Brethren I wryte no newe commaundement vnto you, but that olde commaundment, which ye haue herde from the begynnynge. The olde commaundement is the worde, whiche ye haue herde from the begynnyng. Agayne, a * newe commaundment wryte I vnto you, a thynge that is true in hym, and also in you: for the darknes is past, & the true lyght now shyneth.

He that sayeth he is in lyght, and hateth his brother, is yet in darknes. He that loueth his brother, abydeth in the lyght, and ther is none occasyon of euell in him. But he that hateth his brother, is in darknes, and walketh in darknes, and can not tell whyther he goeth, for the darknesse haue blynded his eyes.

Babes, I wryte vnto you, * that your synnes are forgeuen you, for his names sake. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowen him which is from the begynnynge. I wryte vnto you yonge men, how that ye haue ouercome the wycked. I wryte vnto you lytle childre, how that ye haue knowen the father. I haue wrytten to you fathers, how that ye haue knowen him, whiche is from the begynnyng. I haue wrytten vnto you yong men, how that ye are stronge: and the worde of God abydeth in you, and ye haue ouercome the wycked. Luce.24.b Iohn.4.a

Se that ye loue not the worlde, nother the thynges that are in the worlde. C ¶ If ony man loue the world, the loue of the father is not in hym: for all that is in the worlde (namely the luste of the flesshe, and the luste of the eyes, and the pryde of lyfe) is not of the father, but of the worlde. And * the worlde passeth awaye and the luste therof. But he that fulfylleth & the wyll of God, abydeth for euer. Psa.89.a 1.Cor.7.b Esa.40.a & Iohn.9.c. 1.Pet.1.a

Lytle childre it is the last houre and (as ye haue herde that * Antichrist shall come) euen now are ther many becom Antichristes already: wherby we know that it is the last houre. They went out * from vs, but they were not of vs: for yf they had ben of vs, they wolde no doute haue contynued with vs. But * that they maye be knowen how that they are not all of vs. Mat.24.a Iohn.5.b. Iohn.13.c Actu.20.b 1.Cor.11.b

But ye haue the * anoyntynge of him that is holy, and ye knowe all thynges, I haue not wrytten vnto you, as thoughe ye knewe not the trueth, but ye knowe it, & are sure that no lye cõmeth of the trueth. Who is a lyar, but he that denyeth that D IESVS is CHRIST? The same is the Antichrist, that denyeth the father & the sonne * Who soeuer denyeth the sonne, þ same hathe not the father. Loke what ye haue herd now from the begynnyng: let þ same abyde in you. If that which ye herde from the begynnyng shall remayne in you, then shall ye also abyde in the sonne & in the father. And this is the promes that he hath promysed vs, euen eternall lyfe. Heb.1.b Iohn.14.a

This haue I wrytten vnto you concernynge them that deceaue you. * And the anoyntynge whiche ye haue receaued of hym, dwelleth in you: and ye nede not Esa.54.a Iohn.6.a 14.c.16.b.

þ ony man teache you, but as þ anoyntyng teacheth you al thynges, euen so is it true and is no lye. And as it hath taughte you euen so abyde you therin. And now babes, abyde in hym, that whan he shal appeare, we may be bolde * and not be ashamed of hym at his cõmynge. ¶ ye knowe that he is ryghteous, knowe also that he whiche doth ryghteousnesse, is borne of hym

Psa.22.a declare thy name amonge my brethren, & in the myddest of the congregacyon wyll I prayse the. And agayne: * I wyl put my trust in hym. And agayne: & Behold, here am I and my chyldren, which God hath geuen me.

Isa.8.a Ps.17. Esay.12.

For as much then as the chyldren haue flesshe and bloude, * he also hymselfe lyke wyse toke parte w̄ them, & that he thorow death myght take away the power of him, whiche had lordshyp ouer death, that is to say the deuell: and that he myght delyuer them whiche thorowe feare of death were all theyr lyfe tyme in daunger of bondage. For he in no place taketh on hym the angels, but the sede of Abraham taketh he on hym. Wherfore in al thynges it became hym to be made * lyke vnto his brethren, that he myght be mercyful and a faythful hye preste in thynges concernyng God, to make agrement for the synnes of the people, * For in that he hymselfe suffered and was tempted, he is able to succoure them that are tempted.

Phil.2.c Heb.5.a

The.iii. Chapter.

Therfore holy brethren, ye that are A partakers of ỹ heauenly callyng, consyder the Embassadour & hye preste of our profession CHRIST IESVS which is * faythful to hym that ordeyned hym, euen as was & Moses in al his house. But this mā is worthy of greater honoure then Moses, in as muche as he which prepareth ỹ house hathe greater honour in it, then the house it selfe. For euery house is prepared of some man, * but he that ordeyned all thynges is god. And Moses verily was faythful in al his house as a minyster, * and to beare wytnesse of those thynges which were to be spoken after warde. But CHRIST as a sonne hathe rule ouer his house, * whose house are we yf we hold fast the confydence, and reioycynge of the & hope vnto the ende.

1.Cor.4.a & 8.a Gen.1.d Deu.18.c 2.Cor.3.b and 6.a & Rom.5.d

Wherfore as the holy goost sayeth: * To day yf ye shal heare his voyce harde not your hartes, & as in the prouokyng in the day of temptacyon in the wyldernesse, where your fathers tempted me, proued me, and * sawe my workes foure yeares longe. Wherfore I was greued with that generacyon, and sayd. They erre euer in theyr hartes. But they knew not my wayes so that I sware in my wrath, ỹ they shulde not enter in to my rest.

Psa.95.b & 78.d Deu.11.d

B Take hede brethren, that ther be not in ony of you an euel parte of vnbeleefe to departe frō the lyuyng god. But exhort your selues dayly, whyle it is called * to daye, lest ony of you ware harde harted thorowe the deceatfulnes of synne. For we are become partakers of CHRIST, * yf we kepe sure vnto the ende the begynnynge of the substaunce, so longe as it is sayd, ‡ to day, yf ye shal heare his voyce, harden not your hartes, as in the prouocacyon. For some whan they herde dyd prouoke. Howbeit not al they that came out of Egypt by Moses. But with whome was he displeased forty yeares long? Was he not displeased with them that synned? whose carcases were ouerthrowen in the wyldernesse? * To whom sware he, that they shuld not enter in to his rest, but vnto them that beleued not? And we se that they coulde not enter in because of vnbeleefe.

The.iiii.Chapter.

LEt vs feare therfore, leste ony of vs forsakynge the promes of enterynge in to his reste, shulde seme to come behynde: for it is declared vnto vs as wel as vnto them. * But the worde of preachynge helped not them, whan they had herd it, beleued it not. (For we which haue beleued enter i to his rest) accordyng as he sayd. Euen as I haue sworne in my wrath: They shal not enter in to my rest. And that (spake he) verily longe, after that the woorkes from the begynnyng of ye worlde were made. For he spake in a certayne place of the seuenth day, on this wyse: * and God rested on the seuenth day from all his woorkes. And in this place agayn: * They shal not come in to my rest.

Seynge it soloweth then, that some must enter therinto, and they to whome it was fyrst preached, entred not therin for vnbeleefes sake, therfore appoynteth he a day agayn after so long tyme, and sayeth: To daye (as is rehearsed by Dauid) * To day yf ye shall heare his voyce, then harden not your hartes. For yf Iosua had geuen them rest, then wold he not afterward haue spoken of another day. Therfore remayneth ther yet a rest vnto the people of god. For he ye is entred i to his rest ceaseth from his woorkes, * as god doth from his.

Let vs make hayst therfore to entre in to that reste, lest ony man fall after the same ensample of vnbeleefe. For ye worde of god is quycke, and myghty in operacyon, and sharper then ony two edged * sweard, ‡ entreth thorowe, euen to the deuydynge of the soule and the spryte, and of the ioyntes, and the mary, and is a iudger of the thoughtes and the intentes of the harte, * nother is ther ony creature inuisyble in the syght of hym. But all thynges are naked and bare vnto ye eyes of hym of whom we speake.

The. v. Chapter.

SEynge then that we haue a greate hyghe preste, euen IESVS the sonne of God, whiche is entred in to heauen, let vs holde oure profession, for we haue not an hye preste, whiche can not haue compassyon on our infyrmytyes but was in all poyntes tempted, lyke as we are, but * without synne. Let vs therfore go boldly vnto the ‡ seate of grace, ye we may receaue mercy, and fynde grace to helpe in the tyme of nede.

* For euery hye prest that is taken from amonge men, is ordeyned for men in thynges pertaynyng to god, * to offre gyftes ‡ sacrifyces for synne, which can haue compassyon on the ygnorant, ‡ on them that are out of the way, for so much as he hym selfe also is compassed aboute with infyrmyte. Therfore is he bounde to offer for synnes, as well for hym selfe as for the people. And no man taketh the honour vnto hymselfe, but he that is called of God, * as was Aaron.

Euen so CHRIST glorifyed not hym selfe to be made hye prest, but he that sayd vnto hym: * Thou art my sonne, this day haue I begotten the. As he sayeth also in another place. * Thou art a prest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. ‡ * And in the dayes of his flesshe, he offered vp prayers and supplycacyons, with stronge cryeng and teares vnto hym that was able to saue hym frō death, ‡ was herde also, because he had god in honour. * And though he was Gods sonne, yet learned he obedience, by thyse thynges whiche he suffered. And he beynge made perfecte, became the cause of euerlastyng saluacyon vnto al thē that obey hym, and is called of god an hye prest after ye order of Melchisedech. Wher of we haue many thynges to saye, whiche are harde to be vttred because ye are dull of hearynge.

* For where as concernyng the tyme ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, that we teache you the fyrst preceptes of the worde of god, ‡ are become such as haue nede of mylke, and not stronge meate. For euery one that is fed yet with mylke, is vnexperte in the worde of ryghteousnes, for he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth vnto them that are perfect, which thorow costum haue their wittes exercysed to iudge both good and euel.

The.vi.Chapter.

A Wherfore let vs leaue ỹ doctrine pertaynyng to the begynnyng of a Christen lyfe, and let vs go vnto perfection, and now no more laye the fundacion of repentaunce from dead workes, & of fayth towarde God, of baptyme, of doctryne, of layeng on of hãdes, of resurrection of the dead, and of eternall iudgement. And so wyll we do * yf God permytte: & For it is not possyble, that they whiche were once lyghted, and haue tasted of the heauenly gyfte, & are become partakers of the holy goost, and * haue tasted of ỹ good worde of God, and of the power of the worlde to come yf they fall away (and concernynge them selfes crucifie ỹ sonne of God afresh, and make a mocke of hym) that they shuld be renewed agayne vnto repentaunce.

But God, wyllynge very abundantly to shewe vnto the heyres of promes the stablenesse of his counsell, added an othe, that by two immutable thynges (in the whiche it is vnpossyble that God shulde lye) we myght haue a stronge consolacyon: euen we, which are fled to holde fast the hope that is set before vs, whiche (hope) we haue as a sure & stedfaste anker of our soule. Which (hope) also entreth in, in to those thynges ỹ are within the vayle, whyther ỹ forerunner is for vs entred in, euen IESVS, whiche is made an hye prest for euer after the order of Melchisedech.

The.vii.Chapter.

THis Melchisedech * kyng of Salem (which beyng prest of the moost hye God, met Abraham as he turned agayne frõ the slaughter of the kynges, and blessed hym, vnto whome Abraham also gaue tythes of all the goodes) fyrst is by interpretacion kyng of righteousnesse after that he is kynge of Salem also (that is to saye, kynge of peace) without father, without mother, without kynne, and hath nether begynnyng of dayes, nor ende of lyfe: but is lykened vnto the sonne of God, and continueth a prest for euer.

Gen.14.b

But consyder how great a man this was, to whome the Patryarke Abraham gaue tythes of the spoyles. * And verily ỹ chyldren of Leuy, whan they receaue the presthode haue a cõmaũdement according to the law, to take the tythes of the people that is to saye of their brethren, thoughe they also came out of ỹ loynes of Abrahã.

Num.18.b
2.Par.31.b

B But he whose kynred is not coũted amonge them, receaued tythes of Abrahã, & blessed hym that had the promes. Now is it so without al nay sayeng, that the lesse receaueth blessynge of the better. And here men ỹ dye receaue tythes. But there he receaueth tythes, of whome it is wytnessed, ỹ he lyueth. And to saye the trueth: Leuy hymself also which receaued tythes, payed tythes in Abraham: for he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, whã Melchisedech met hym.

* yf now therfore perfection came by the presthode of the Leuites (for vnder ỹ same presthode the people receaued the lawe) what neded it then furthermore that another prest shulde ryse after the ordinaunce of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron.

Gala.4.b

for he of whom these thinges are spoken, is of another trybe, of the which neuer mā stroued at the altare.

C For it is cupident, * þ our LORD sprong of the trybe of Juda, to the whiche trybe Moses spake nothynge concernyng prestehode, and it is yet a more eudent thynge, þ after þ similitude of Melchisedech ther aryse another prest, which is not made after the lawe of the carnall cōmaundement but after the power of the endlesse lyfe.

For he testifyeth: * Thou art the prest for euer after the ordre of Melchisedech. Thē the cōmaundement that went before, is disanulled, because of his weakenesse and vnprofytablenesse. * For the lawe made nothynge perfecte, but was an introduction of a better hope, by þ which hope we drawe vnto god. And for this cause is it a better hope, that it was not promysed without an oth. Those prestes were made without an oth: but this prest with an othe, by hym that sayd vnto hym: * The LORDE swore and wyll not repente: Thou arte a prest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech. Thus is IESVS become a stablysher of so muche a better Testament.

D And amonge thē many were made prestes, because they were not suffered to endure by the reason of death. But this mā, because þ he endureth euer, hathe an euerlastynge presthode. Wherfore he is able also euer to saue them, that come vnto God by hym: and lyueth euer, * to make intercessyon for vs.

For it became vs to haue suche an hye prest as is holy, innocent, vndefyled, sepearate from synnes, and made hyer then heauen: which nedeth not dayly (* as ponder hye prestes) to offer vp sacrifyce, fyrste for his owne synnes, and then for the peoples sinnes. For þ dyd he once for al, whāne offered vp himselfe. * For the law maketh men prestes, whiche haue infyrmytye, but the worde of the othe, that came sence the law, maketh the sonne prestе, whiche is perfect foreuermore

The.viii. Chapter.

OF the thynges which we haue spoken, this is þ ppth: * We haue such an hye prest that is set on the ‡ ryght hande of the seate of the maiestye in heauen and is a mynister of holy thynges, and of the true Tabernacle, which God pytched, and not man. For euery hye prest is ordeyned to offre gyftes and sacrifyces. Wherfore it is of necessyte, that this man haue sowmwhat also to offer. For he were not a prest, yf he were vpon earth, were are prestes that accordyng to the lawe offer gyftes (* which prestes serue vnto the ensampie and shadowe of heauenly thynges) euen as the answere of God was geuen vnto Moses, whan he was aboute to fynyth the Tabernacle. * Take hede (sayd he) þ thou make al thinges accordyng to the patrone shewed vnto the in the mounte. But now hath he optayned a more excellēt office, in as muche as he is the mediatour of a better Testament, which was made for better promyses. For yf that fyrst (Testamet) had ben fautles, then shuld no place haue ben sought for the seconde. For in rebukynge them he sayeth: * Beholde the dayes wyll come (sayeth the LORDE) that I wyll fynyshe vpon the house of Israel, and vpon the house of Juda, a new Testament: not as þ Testament which I made with their fathers, in that day whan I toke them by the handes, to lede them out of the lande of Egypt: * For they continued not in my Testament, ‡ I regarded them not sayeth the LORDE.

* For this is the Testament, that I wyll make with the house of Israel, after those dayes, sayeth the LORDE. I wyll geue my lawes in their mynde, ‡ in their hartes wyll I wryte them. * And I wyll be their God: and they shall be my people: ‡ they shal not teach euery man his neyghbour, and euery man his brother, sayeng: Knowe the LORD. For they shal knowe me from the least of them to the moost: for I wyll be mercyfull ouer their vnryghteousnesse, and on their synnes, and on their iniquityes wyl I not thynke ony more. In that he sayeth: A newe, he weareth out the olde. Now that which is worne out ‡ waxed olde, is ready to vanyshe away.

uertheles in those sacrifyces ther is made but a remembrauce of synnes euery yeare. Exod.
* For it is vnpossyble that the bloude of oxen and of goates shulde take away synworlde, he sayeth: * Sacrifice and offe- Psa.39

haste thou ordeined me. Burntofferynges and synneofferynges, hast thou not alowed. Then sayde I: Lo, I come: In the begynnynge of the boke it is wrytten of me, that I shulde do thy will O God. Above whan he had sayde: Sacrifyce and offetynge, and burnt sacrifyces, and sinofferin ges thou woldest not haue, nother hast a-lowed (wich yet are offered after the law).

Then sayde he: Lo, I come to do thy wyll o God: there taketh he awaye the fyrste, to stablyshe the latter. In the whiche wyll we are sanctifyed by the offerynge vp of ỹ body of IESVS CHRIST once for all.

And euery preest is ready daylye mynys-tringe, and oftymes offereth one maner of offerynges, whiche can neuer take awaye synnes. But thys man, whan he had offered for synnes one sacrifyce, wich is of value for euer, satte him downe on the ryght hande of God, and from henceforth tarri-eth, * til his foes be made his foote stoole.
For with one offerynge hath he made per-fecte for euer them that are sanctified. And the holy goost also beareth vs recorde of this, euen whan he sayde before: * This is the Testament, that I wyll make vnto the after those dayes, sayeth the LORDE. I wil geue my lawes in theyr hartes, and in theyr myndes will I wryte them, & theyr synnes and inyquities wil I remembre no more. And where remission of these thyn-ges is, there is nomore offering for synne.

Seyng now brethren, that we haue a
* free sure entraunce in to that holy place, by the bloude of IESV (wich he hath pre pared vnto vs for a new and lyuyng way thorowe the vayle, that is to saye, by hys flesh) and seyng also, that we haue an hye preest ouer the house of God, let vs drawe nye w a true hart in a ful fayth, sprenkled in oure hartes from an euell conscience, and washed in oure bodyes w pure water:
and let vs kepe the profession of our hope wout wauerynge (for he is faythfull that hath promysed) and let vs consyder one another to the prouokynge of loue, and of good workes: and let vs not forsake the fe lowshyppe that we haue amonge our sel-ues, as the maner of some is: but let vs erhorte one another, and ỹ so much to more, because ye se the * daye drawyth nye.

* For yf we synne wylfully after that we haue receaued ỹ knowlege of ỹ treuth, ther remayneth vnto vs nomore sacrify-ce for synnes, but a fearefull lokyng of iud gement, and violent fyre, whiche shall deuoure the aduersaries. * He that despiseth Moses lawe, dyeth wythout mercy vnder two or thre wytnesses: Of how much sorer punyshment (suppose ye) shall he be cõ ted worthy, which treadeth vnder foote ỹ sonne of God, and counteth the bloude of the testament (wherby he is sanctifyed) an vnholy thynge, and doth dishonoure to the spryte of grace? For we know hym that hath sayde: * Vengeaunce is myne, I wil recompense, sayeth the LORDE. And a-gayne: * The LORDE shall iudge his people. It is a fearfull thynge to fall in to the handes of the lyuynge God.

But cal ye to remembraunce the dayes that are past, in the whiche after ye had re-ceaued lyght, ye endured a greate fyght of aduersytes: partly whyle all men wondred and gased at you, for the same and trybula cion that was done vnto you: partly why-le ye became companiõs of them which so passed theyr tyme. For ye haue suffred w
* my bõdes, and toke awoyth the spoyling of youre goodes, and that with gladnesse, knowynge in youre selues, how ỹ ye haue in heauen a better and endurynge substan ce. Cast not awaye therfore your confiden ce, whiche hath so greate a rewarde. * For ye haue nede of pacience, that after ye haue done the wyll of God, ye myght receaue
the promesse. * For yet ouer a lytle whyle and then he that shall come, wyl come and will not tary. * But the iuste shall lyue by hys fayth. And yf he withdrawe, hymselfe awaye, my soule shall haue no pleasure in
hym. As for vs, we are not of those which withdrawe them selues to dampnacyon:
but of them that beleue to the wynnyge of the soule.

Remembre therfo:e how thou hast receaued & herde, and hold fast & repent. yf thou shalt not watch, I wil come vnto ỹ as * a theke, & thou shalt not know what houre I wyll come vpon the. Thou haste a fewe names in Sardis, whiche haue not defyled they: garmentes, & they shall walke with me in whyte, fo: they are wo:thy. He that ouercō meth, shal be clothed in whyte aray, and I wil not put his name out of ỹ boke of lyfe, * & I wyll confesse his name befo:e my father, & befo:e his angels. Let him ỹ hathe eares, heare, what the spi:ete sayth vnto the congregacions.

And wryte vnto the angel of the congregacion of Philadelphia: This sayeth he ỹ is holy & true, whiche hath ỹ key of Dauid: whiche * openeth & no man shutteth, and shutteth & no man openeth. I knowe thy wo:kes. Beholde, I haue set befo:e the an open do:e, & no man can shutte it, fo: thou hast a lytle strength, & hast kept my wo:d & hast not denyed my name. Beholde, I shal geue some of the congregacion of Sathā, which cal them selfes Iewes & are not, but do lye: Beholde, I wil make them that they shal come and wo:shyp befo:e thy fete: and shall know that I haue loued the.

Because thou hast kepte the wo:des of my pacience, therfo:e wil I kepe the from the houre of temptacion, which will come vpon all the wo:lde to tempt them ỹ dwell vpon the earth. Beholde, I come shortly. Hold that which thou hast, ỹ no man take away thy crown. Him ỹ ouercōmeth wyl I make a pyler in the temple of my God, & he shall nomo:e go out.

And I wyll wryte vpon him, the name of my God, & the name of ỹ cyte of my God, newe Ierusalē * which cōmeth downe out of heauen frō my God, & I wyl wryte vpō him my newe name. Let him ỹ hath eares hear, what ỹ spi:et sayth to ỹ cōgregacios.

And vnto the angel of ỹ congregacion, which is in Laodicia wryte: This sayeth. Amen, the faythfull & true wytnesse the be gynnyng of ỹ creatures of God, I knowe thy wo:kes, ỹ thou arte nother colde no: whote: I wolde thou were colde o: whote. So then because thou arte betwene both, & nother colde no: whote, I wil spewe the out of my mouth because thou sayest thou arte ryche & encreased with goodes & hast nede of nothyng, & knowest not how thou arte wretched, myserable, & poo:e, blynd, & naked, I coūsell the to bye of me golde tryed in the fyre, ỹ thou mayst be ryche: & whyte rayment, that thou mayst be clothed, ỹ thy fylthy nakednes do not appeare: & noynt thyne eyes with eye salue, that thou mayst se.

* And as many as I loue I rebuke & chasten. Be feruent therfo:e & repent. Behold, I stonde at the do:e & knocke. yf ony man hear my voyce & open the do:e, I wyl come in vnto him & wyl supper wt him, & he with me. To him that ouercōmeth, wyl I graūt * to syt wt me on my seate euen as I ouercame & haue sytte wt my father on his seate. Let him ỹ hath eares, heare, what ỹ spi:ete sayth vnto the congregacions.

The.iiii.Chapter. ✝

After this I loked, & behold, a do:e was ope in heauen, & the fyrst voyce which I herd, was as it were of a tropet talkyng with me, wich sayd: Come vp hyther, & I wyll shew the thynges whiche must be fulfylled hereafter. And immediatly I was in the spi:ete, & behold, a seate was set in heauen, & one satte on the seate. And he ỹ sat, was to loke vpō lyke vnto a Iasper stone, & a Sardine stone. And ther was a raynbowe about the seate, in syght lyke to a Smaragde. * And aboute the seate were .xxiiii. seates. And vpō ỹ seates .xxiiii. Elders syttyng clothed in whyte raymēt, & had on they: heades crownes of golde.

And out of the seat proceded lyghtenynges, & thond:ynges, & voyces, & ther were seuen lampes of fyre, burnynge befo:e the seate, which are the seuen spi:etes of God. And befo:e ỹ seate ther was a see of glasse lyke vnto Crystall, & in the myddes of the seate, & roūde aboute the seate, were foure beastes full of eyes befo:e & behynde. And the fyrst beast was lyke a Lyon, ỹ seconde beast lyke a calfe, & the thyrde beast had a face lyke a mā, & the fourth beast was lyke a flyeng Egle. And the foure beastes had eche one of them .vi. wynges, & roūd about wout and wtin, they were ful of eyes. And they had no rest day nother nyght, sayeng: * Holy, holy, holy is the LORDE God almyghty, which was, and is, & is to come.

the angel toke the censer, & fylled it with fyre of the aultre, & cast it into the earth, & thonders were made, & thonderynges and lyght-nynges, and earthquake.
And the seuen angels whiche had the se- B uen trompettes, prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrste angel blewe, & there was made hayle & fyre, which were mengled in bloude, & they were cast into the earth, and the thyrde part of the trees was brent, & al grene grasse was brent. And the seconde an gell blewe: & as it were a great mountayne burnynge with fyre was cast into the see, & the thyrde parte of ꝑ see turned into bloud, and the thyrde part of the creatures which had lyfe dyed, and ꝑ thyrde part of shyp-

And the thyrde angel blewe, and ther fel a great starre from heauen, burnynge as it were a torche, & it fell into the thyrde parte of the ryuers, & into fountaynes of waters and the name of the starre is called Wormwood. And the thyrde parte of the waters was turned to wormwood. And many mē dyed of ỹ waters, because they were made bytter. And the fourth angell blewe, and ỹ thyrde part of the Sonne was smytten, & the thyrde parte of the Moone, and ỹ thyrd parte of the starres, so that the thyrde part of them was darkened. And the daye was smytten, ỹ the thyrde parte of it shuld not shyne, and lykewyse the nyght. And I behelde, & herde an angell flyenge thorow the myddes of heauen, and sayenge with a loud voyce: Wo, wo, wo, to the inhabiters of the earth, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the thre angels, whiche were yet to blowe.

And the fyfte angell blewe, and I sawe a starre fallen frō heauē vnto the earth. And to hym was geuen ỹ kaye of the * bottomlesse pytte. And he opened the bottomlesse pyt, and ther arose a smoke of the pyt, as it were the * smoke of a great fornace. And the Sonne and the ayer were darkened by the reason of the smoke of the pyt. And ther came out of the smoke locustes vpon the earth: and vnto them was geuen power as the scorpions of the earthe haue power. * And it was sayde vnto thē, that they shulde not hurte the grasse of the earth: nother ony grene thyng, nother ony tre, but onely those men whiche haue not the seale in theyr foreheades, and to them was commaunded that they shuld not kyl them, but that they shulde be vexed fyue monethes, and theyr payne was as ỹ payn that commeth of a scorpion, whan he hath stonge a man. And in those dayes shall mē * seke death, and shall not fynde it: & shall desyre to dye, and death shal flye from thē.

And the symilitude of the locustes was lyke vnto horses prepared vnto battayll, & on theyr heades were as it were crownes, lyke vnto golde, and theyr faces were as it had ben the faces of men. And they had heere as the heere of wemē. And theyr teth were as the tethe of lyons. And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the sounde of theyr winges, was as the sounde of chatrettes, whan many horses runne together to battayl. And they had tayles lyke vnto scorpions, and ther were flynges in theyr tayles. And theyr power was to hurte men fyue monethes. And they had a kynge ouer them, wich is the angell of the bottomlesse pytte, whose name in ỹ Hebrue tunge, is Abadon: but in the Greke tung Appollō. One wo is past, and behold two woes come yet after this.

And the fyrste angel blewe, and I herd a voyce from the foure corners of the golden aulter whiche is before God, sayenge to the fyrste angell, whiche had the trompe: Lowse the foure angels, which are bounde in the greate ryuer Euphrates. And the foure angels were lowsed, which were prepared for an houre, for a day, for a moneth, and for a yeare, for to slaye the thyrde part of men. And the nombre of horsmen of warre, were twentye tymes.x. M. And I herd the nombre of them. And thus I sawe the horses in a vision, and them that sat on them haupnge fyry habbergions of a yalowe and brymstony coloure, and the heades of the horses, were as the heades of lyons. And out of theyr mouthes went forth fyre, and smoke, and brymstone. And of these thre was the thyrde parte of men killed: that is to saye of the fyre, smoke, and brymstone, whiche proceded out of the mouthes of them: For theyr power was in theyr mouthes, and in theyr tayles: for theyr tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, and had heades, and with them they did hurte. And the remnaunt of the men, whiche were not kylled by these plages, repented not of the dedes of theyr hondes, that they shulde not worshyppe deuels, and ymages of golde, and siluer, and brasse, & stone, and of wood whiche nother can se, nother heare, nother go. * Also they repented not of theyr murthur, & of theyr wytchcraft, nother of theyr whordome, nother of theyr theste.

And I sawe another myghtye angell come downe from heauen, clothed with a cloude, and the raynbow vpon hys heade. And hys face as it were the Sonne, and his fete as it were pylers of fyre: and he hadde in his hande a lytel boke open: and he put his ryghte foote vpon the see, and hys lefte foote vpon the earth. And cryed wyth a lowde voyce, as whan a lyon roareth. And whan he had cryed, seuen thondres spake their voices. And whē the seuen thondres had spoken theyr voyces, I was aboute to wryte. And I herd a voyce from heauē sayeng vnto me: Seale vp those thynges which the seuen thōdres spake, and wryte them not.

* And the angel which I sawe stonde

vpon the see, & vpon the earth, lyft vp his hande to heauen, & swaze by him ỹ lyueth for euermoze, which created heauen and ỹ thynges that therin are, and the see, & the thynges whiche are therin, that ther shall be no moze tyme: but in ỹ dayes of ỹ voyce of the seuenth angel, whan he shall begyn to blowe, the mystery of God shall be fynyshed, as he preached by his seruauntes the prophetes.

B And the voyce which I herd frō heauen, spake vnto me agayn, & said: go & take the lytle boke which is open in the hande of ỹ angel which standeth vpon the see, & vpon the earth. And I went vnto the angel, and sayd vnto him: Geue me ỹ lytle boke. And he sayd vnto me: * Take it, & eate it vp, & it shal make thy belly bitter, but it shalbe in thy mouth as swete as hony. And I toke ỹ lytle boke out of his hande, & did eat it vp, & it was in my mouth as swete as hony: & as soone as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter. And he said vnto me: thou must prophecye agayne vnto the people, & vnto the Heythen, and tunges, & to many kynges.

These haue power to shutte heauen, ỹ it rayne not in ỹ dayes of theyr prophecyeng, & haue power ouer waters, to turne them to bloude, & to smyte the earth with all maner plages, as often as they wyll.

B * And whan they haue fynished theyr testimony, the beast ỹ came out of the bottomlesse pyt, shal make warre agaynste them & shal ouercōme them, & kyl them. And theyr bodyes shall lye in the stretes of the great cyte, which spiritually is called Sodom & Egypt, where our lorde is crucifyed. And some of the people, & kynredes, & tunges, & of the nacions, shall se theyr bodyes thre dayes & an halfe, & shal not suffre theyr bodyes to be put in graues. And another angel came out of the temple, cryenge wᵗ a loude voyce to hym that sat on the cloude: * Thrust in thy sykle & reape, fo? ꝑ tyme is come to reape, fo? the corne of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloude, thrust in his sykle on ꝑ earth, & ꝑ earth was reaped. Joel.3.b Apoc.13.a

And another angel cam out of ꝑ temple, E which is in heaue, hauyng also a sharpe sykle. And another angel cam out frõ ꝑ alter which had power ouer fyre, & cryed with a loude voyce vnto hym that had the sharpe sykle, & sayd: Thrust in thy sharpe sykle, & gather the clusters of the earth, fo? his grapes are ripe. And the angel thrust in his sykle on the earth, & cut downe the grapes of the vynyard of the earth, & cast them in to the great wynefat of the wrath of god: and the wyne fat was troden without the cyte, and bloude came out of the fat, euen vnto the horse brydelles by the space of a thousande and syxe hondreth furlonges.

The.xvi.Chapter.

A AND I herde a great voyce out of the temple, sayenge to the seuē angels: Go your wayes, powre oute youre vyalles of wrath vpon the earth. And the fyrst wente, and powred out hys vyal vpō the earth, and ther fel a noysom, and a sore botch vpon the men which had the marke of the beast, and vpon them that worshypped hys ymage. And the second angel shed out his vyall vpō the see, and it turned as it were in to the bloude of a dead man, and euery lyuynge thyng dyed in the see. And the thyrde angell shed out hys vyall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an angell saye: LORDE which art and wast, thou art ryghteous and holy, because thou hast geuen such iudgemētes: for they shed the bloud of saintes, & prophetes, & therfor hast thou geuē thē bloud to drinke: for they
B are worthy. And I herd another angel out of the alter saye: Euē so LORD god almighty, true & ryghteous are thy iudgementes.

And the fourth angel powred out hys vyall on the Sonne, and power was geuen vnto him to vere mē with heat of fyre. And the men raged in the heate, & spake euell of the name of God which had power ouer those plages, and they repented not, to geue him glory. And the fyft angel powred out hys vyall vpō the seate of ỹ beast, & hys kyngdō ware darke, & they gnewe theyr tunges for sorowe, & blasphemed the God of heauē for sorowe, & payne of theyr sores, and repented not of theyr dedes.

C And the syxte angel powred oute hys vyall vpon the great ryuer Euphrates, ād the water dryed vp, that the waye of ỹ kynges of the East shulde be prepared. And I sawe thre vncleane spretes lyke frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon, and oute of the mouth of the beaste, and oute of the mouth of ỹ false prophete. For they are the spretes of deuels worckynge myracles, to go out vnto the kinges of the earth, and of the whole worlde, to gather them to the battayll of the greate daye of God almighty. * Beholde, I come as a thefe. to a place, called in the Hebrue tunge, Armagedden.

And the seuenth angell poured out hys D vyall in to the ayre. And ther came a great voyce out of heauen from the seat sayeng: It is done. And ther folowed voyces, thonderynges, and lyghtninges, and ther was a greate earthquake, such as was not sence men were vpon earth, so myghty an earth quake and so great. And ỹ great cytie was deuyded in to thre partes. And the cyties of nacyons fell. And greate Babylon came in remembraunce before God, to geue vnto her the cuppe of wyne of the fearcenesse of hys wrath. And euery yle fledde away, and the mountaynes were not found. And ther fell a greate hayle, as it had ben talentes, out of heauen vpon the men, and the men blasphemed God, because of the plage of the hayle, for it was greate, and the plage of it was sore.

The.xvii.Chapter.

A AND ther came one of the seuen I angels, whiche had the seuen vialles, and talked with me, sayenge vnto me: Come I wyll shewe the the iudgement of the great whore, that sytteth vpon many waters, with whom the kynges of the earth haue commytted whoredome, and the inhabiters of the earth are dronken with the wyne of hyr fornicacyō. And he caryed me awaye in to the wyldernesse in the spryte. And I sawe a woman syt vpon a rose coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, wich had seuen heades, & ten hornes. And the womā was arayed in purple and rose colour, & decked wt gold, precious stone, and pearles, & had a cuppe of golde in hyr hande, full of abhominations, & fylthynesse of hyr whoredō. And in hyr forehead D was a name wrytten, a mystery: great Babylon ỹ mother of whoredō, & abhominacions of the earth. And I sawe ỹ wyfe dronken with the bloude of saynctes, & with the bloud of ỹ wytnesses of IESV. And whan I sawe her, I wondred wt greate maruayle.

And the angell sayde vnto me: wherfore marueyleſt thou: I wyll ſhewe ỹ the myſtery of the woman, & of the beaſt ỹ beareth her, which hath ſeuen heades, & x. hornes. The beaſt ỹ thou ſeyſt was, & is not, & ſhal aſcend out of ỹ bottomleſſe pyt, & ſhal go into perdicion, & they that dwell on the earth ſhal wonder (whoſe * names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe from the begynnyng of the worlde) whan they behold the beaſt that was, and is not, And here is a mynde that hath wyſdom.

The ſeuen heades are ſeuen moũtayns, on the whiche the woman ſytteth: they are alſo ſeuen kinges: fyue are fallen, & one is, & the other is not come. Whan he cõmeth, he muſt continue a ſpace. And ỹ beaſt that was, & is not, is euen the eyght, & is of the ſeuen, & ſhal go into deſtruccyon. * And ỹ x. hornes which thou ſaweſt, are x. kynges which haue not yet receaued ỹ kyngdom, but ſhall receaue power as kynges at one houre wt the beaſt. Theſe haue one mynde, & ſhal geue theyr power & ſtrength vnto ỹ beaſt. Theſe ſhal fyght wt the lambe, & the lambe ſhall ouercõme them: For he is * LORDE of al lordes, & kynge of al kynges, and they that are on his ſyde, are called, and choſen, and faythfull.

And he ſayd vnto me: The * waters which thou ſaweſt, where ỹ whore ſytteth, are people, & folke, & nacyons, & tunges. And the x. hornes, which thou ſaweſt vpõ the beaſt, are they which ſhal hate ỹ whore and ſhal make her deſolate, & naked, & ſhal eate hyr fleſh, & burne her wt fyre. For god hath put in theyr hartes, to fulfyl his wyl, and to do with one conſent, for to geue hyr kyngdom vnto the beaſt, vntyll ỹ wordes of God be fulfylled. And the womã which thou ſaweſt, is that great cyte, which raygneth ouer the kynges of the earth.

The.xviii. Chapter.

AND after that I ſawe another angel come down frõ heauẽ, hauyng great power, and the earth was lyghtned with his bryghtneſſe. And he cryed myghtyly wt a ſtrong voyce ſayng: * She is fallen, ſhe is fallen, euen great Babylõ, & is become the habitacion of deuels, & the holde of all foule ſpretes, & a cage of al vnclene and hateful byrdes: for all nacyons haue dronken of the wyne of the wrathe of hyr whoredome. And the kynges of the earth haue cõmytted fornicacion with her and hyr marchauntes are wared ryche of the abundaunce of hyr pleaſures.

And I herde another voyce frõ heauen ſay: * Come away frõ her my people, that ye be not partakers of hyr ſynnes, leſte ye receaue of hyr plages. For hyr ſynnes are gone vp to heauen, & the LORD hath remẽbred hir wickednes. Reward her euẽ as ſhe hath rewarded you, & geue her double accoỹding to hir workes. And poure i double to her in the ſame cup, which ſhe fylled vnto you. And as muche as ſhe glorifyed her ſelfe, & lyued wantonly, ſo muche poure ye in for her of punyſhment, & ſorow. For ſhe ſayth in hyr harte: * I ſyt beyng a quene, and am no wydowe, and ſhall ſe no ſorowe * Therfore ſhall hyr plages come at one day, death, & ſorow, & hunger, and ſhe ſhal be brent wt fyre: for ſtronge is ỹ LORDE God which ſhal iudge her.

And the kynges of the earth ſhal bewepe her, & wayle ouer her, whiche haue cõmytted fornicacion and lyued wãtonly wt her, whã they ſhal ſe the ſmoke of hyr burnyng, & ſhal ſtonde afarre of for feare of hyr punyſhment, ſayeng: Alas, alas, ỹ great cyte * Babylõ, ỹ myghty cyte: For at one houre is thy iudgement come. And the marchauntes of the earth ſhal wepe & wayle in them ſelues, becauſe no man wyl bye theyr ware ony more, the ware of golde, & ſyluer, & of precyous ſtones, of pearle & ſylke, & purple & ſcarlet, & al Thymen wood, and al maner veſſels of yuery, and all maner veſſels of mooſt precyous wood, & of braſſe, & of yrõ, & ſynamõ, & odours, & oyntmentes, & frankynſence, & wyne, & oyle, & fyne floure, and wheat, & cattell, & ſhepe, & horſes, & charrettes, and * bodyes and ſoules of men.

And the appels ỹ thy ſoule luſted after, are departed frõ ỹ. And al thynges whiche were deyntye, & had in price are departed frõ the, & thou ſhalt fynd thẽ nomore. And euery ſhyp gouerner, & al they ỹ occupy ſhyppes, & ſhypmen whiche worke in the ſee, ſtode afarre of, & cryed, whan they ſawe ỹ ſmoke of hir burnyng, & ſayd: what cyte is lyke vnto this great cyte? And they caſt duſt on theyr heades, & cryed wepyng & waylyng, & ſayd: Alas, alas, ỹ great cyte, wherin were made ryche al ỹ had ſhyppes

And the twolue gates were twolue pearles, and euery gate was of one pearle, and the strete of the cyte was pure gold, as a thorow shynynge glasse. And I sawe no temple therin.
